Simmonds-Wright Nuptials

The marriage of Pauline Cecilia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest S. Wright, Middleton, P. E. I. to Mr. Percival MacDonald Simmonds, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Simmonds, Charlottetown, took place Friday evening at seven o'clock, Sept. 20, 1946, at Trinity United Church, Charlottetown, the Rev. T. E. MacLennan officiating.

The church was beautifully decorated with gladioli and autumn flowers. During the signing of the register Miss Pauline Simmonds, sister of the groom sang "Through the Years." The wedding music was played by Prof. A. Roy Kendall.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked charming in a gown of heavy white satin bordered with velvet, fashioned with a fitted bodice, sweet heart neckline, long puffed sleeves and a full skirt ending in a train. Her veil of embroidered tulle reaching the hem of her dress. She carried a shower bouquet of Better Time Roses.

The bride's only attendant was Mrs. Joyce Nicholson, who wore a gown of pale pink brocade or gandy with bouffant skirt, short shirred sleeves and matching long lace mitts. Her matching veil of tulle was shoulder length. She carried a cascade bouquet of Killarney roses.

Mr. John Simmonds, brother of the groom was best man; and the ushers were Mr. Sidney E. Green and Mr. William Beer.

Mrs. Wright, the bride's mother, wore a pale blue dress, black accessories and a corsage of Dream roses.

Mrs. Simmonds, the groom's mother, wore a black dress, black accessories with silver fox cape and a corsage of Tallman roses.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Secret Of Popularity

Many Worthy People Lonely Because of Inability to Make Friends

The one universal desire of the human heart is for popularity. We all crave to be persons grata with our fellow creatures; to know that the welcome mat will always be spread out for us wherever we go and, as the old poem says, every eye will brighten at our coming.

Yet there are so many fine and worthy people, who deserve our affection and admiration, who have no ability to draw others to them. They go through life lonely, neglected and heart-hungry just because they never learn the secret of popularity, which, after all, is no secret at all. It is just the Golden Rule. Do unto others as you would have them do to you, and you have a formula for making friends that never fails. You know what you like. Well, it is their dish, too. Hand it out to them.

What's the first thing that attracts you to a stranger? It is friendliness. It is the glad hand. It is making you feel that you are worth knowing and that it is a real pleasure to meet you. There is nothing truer than the old saying that to have friends you have to be friendly. You might have all the charms and virtues in the world, but if you have them fenced in with standoffishness nobody will break down the wall to get at you.

Ellen's Diary

By an Island Farmer's Wife

If I missed the beauty of headlands jutting out into an expanse of blue sea this morning and was homesick for a whiff of the salty air that lingers in that vicinity, I had blue asters by the pond-side and the glory of the Autumn hues that have come, if only subtly as yet, to decorate valley and upland. Stubble patterns were mine and gold leaves which floated softly from the old birches to lie so still on the lawn below. Pink and purple and velvety red dahlias I had for the picking and a row of marigolds made a bright picture for me beside a door in the house across the lane. A lowly purple aster I would suppose to be only a sort of a poor relation to the one in the borders is now by a strange twist of circumstance that has been brought about by the weather.

Modern Etiquette

By Roberta Lee

Q. If a salesman or a saleswoman in a store has been indelicately rude, and the customer has not been at fault in the least way, what should the customer do?
A. Write a note to the management, but never anonymously.
Q. When giving a dinner, should the used silver of each course be removed with the used plate?
A. Yes, always.
Q. What is the correct phrase to use when a girl is introducing a young man to her mother?
A. Merely say, "Mother, this is Charles Brown."

PINEAPPLE SQUARE

Judging radishes by the condition of the leaves is a rather doubtful guide. The leaves may be fresh, bright and green but the vegetable itself may be spongy and pungent. Radishes should be well formed, smooth, firm and crisp.

Lemon Pie
When cooking the filling for lemon pie, place the rind into the mixture for a few minutes, and then remove with a spoon. The flavor will be improved but it will not have that bitter taste that grated rind often produces.

Laundering
Washable dresses should be squeezed in thick soap suds and rinsed thoroughly three or four times. Then roll in a towel and lay aside until dry enough to iron.

Tough Beef
If the cut of beef is tough, soak it in vinegar water for an hour before cooking. It will do much towards making it tender.

Cook's Corner

ARTIST'S SALAD
What could be simpler than to set a bowl of fine dressing—be it a French type or a thick one—in the centre of a large plate, then arrange around it, in turn, some such readily available vegetables as these:
A small mass of dark green watercress.
Flowerettes of snowy cauliflower that have been marinated in French dressing.
Piled up slices of crisp radish. Curling leaves of lettuce.
A network of thin green pepper rings free of their needy centres. Delicate slices of marinated cucumber.
Carragee curls made by slicing young carrots around in thin slices, rolling them up, securing with toothpicks and tossing into the water to get crisp and soft in their shape.
Mild onion sliced thinly, then separated into rings and dropped for a time into a well-flavored French dressing.
Or . . . what have you? Sections of tomatoes? Tender chilled cooked green beans? Some baby lima? Cooked peas marinated in a flavor that glows as richly as their coloring? Work in these, and have on hand—the salad is a great user of leftovers!

A new degreaser product will remove grease from almost anything and in particular broiler pans, frying pans and baking dishes. Just pour a few tablespoonsful in the vessel to be cleaned and fill it up with hot water.

CLEAN AND WHITE
To keep pastry boards, rolling pins and wooden bowls sweet and clean, clean weekly with lemon juice and allow to dry in the sun. It will keep them beautifully white and sweet.

Dry out the stale bread in the oven until very hard then roll it out fine into breadcrumbs for fried foods. No bread should be wasted these days and this is an excellent solution for those extra dried out pieces.
