Battering Yankees Take Third Straight Of Series From St. Louis Cards

Yesterday's Game Ended In 7-3 Score—"Red Birds" Out-Hit Yankees But Do Not Show Enough Team Play to Win—Gehrig Gets Two Homers.

By Allan J. Gould, Associated Press Sports Editor

SPORTSMAN'S PARK, St. Louis Mo., Oct. 7.—The Yankee steam roller is still going downhill unchecked and in its wake the flustering hopes of the Cardinals are flatter tonight than ever. With their clouting first baseman Lou Gehrig, at the throttle engineering the drive with two home runs, the American League champions swept over the Cardinals for their third straight World's Series victory and their seventh successive triumph, a new record, in two years over National League opposition.

The final score was 7 to 3 and the Yankees, with Wally Hoy ready to pitch again, are favored to make it the fourth straight tomorrow.

This was a sad and disconsolate game coming from the "Red Birds" and the record crowd of St. Louis rooters that jammed its way into Sportsman's Park. The throng that numbered 39,602 in paid up had also contributed to a record gate of $168,725 for the local field, came out to cheer Jesse Haines, and the Cards in a desperate effort to stop the onrush of the gray clad host from Gotham. After six stormy innings, Jesse Haines, the sage of Philadelphia, Ohio, gave it up as a bad job and retired along the beaten path that Sherdel and Alexander had taken before him.

The Yankees emerged triumphant today behind the masterful pitching of the veteran southpaw, Tom Zachary, and because the big punch is still in the bats of Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig.

These two factors enabled them to win in spite of one of the worst defensive exhibitions a world's championship club has ever given, a slipshod band of support that helped the Cardinals gain an early lead and remain in the running until the sixth inning. The Yankees' defense was not enough, but the Cardinals' fielding was worse in the fatal six, when one of the most unusual of series events, a double error by the usually dependable catcher, Jimmy Wilson, contributed to the decisive three run rally of the victors. Where that other old timer, belying up with a loud detonation, single.

carrying with it their few lingering hopes. Koenig started the sixth with a single and was forced by Ruth on a close at second. Gehrig walked and Meusel rapped to High, who threw out Gehrig at second. There followed as weird an exhibition as this wild battle as ever witnessed. Frisch threw wide to Bottomley, in the attempt at a double play and Ruth dashed for the plate. Bottomley's throw to Wilson had the Babe out, but the catcher dropped the ball and then threw wildly to centre as Meusel perched on third. Haines, becoming unsteady, walked Lazzeri and the Yankees then engineered a double steal, Meusel scoring. Lazzeri came in with the third run of the inning on Robertson's clean single to centre. The Yanks, added their seventh and final run in the seventh when Hasey dropped Dupst's fly, after a long run, enabling Durst to reach second and score on Ruth's single.

WORLD SERIES HEROES

IN GAMES OF THE PAST

Each Series Not Complete Without its Hero—Or Its Goat—Present Games Offer Splendid Opportunity.

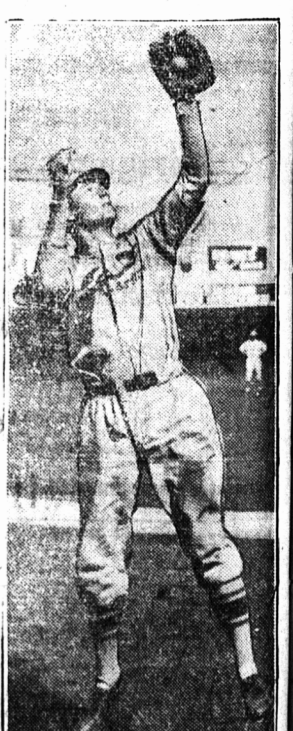

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—No world's series is complete without its hero—or its goat. The wreath of wild razzberries is bestowed, a glance over baseball's main chapters reveals, as impartially as the crown of laurel.

Seldom has a world's series offered so much opportunity for heroic stuff, as much chance for the lowly sub, or ambitious youngster to jump in to the spotlight as does the current tussle between the Yankees and Cardinals. Will one of the stars of other years repeat or will some obscure performer leap into the glare with a great catch, home run, daring play or startling pitching feat?

Babe Ruth can testify as to how it feels to have been the goat or a hero. The Bambino was a "bust" in 1922 when his batting mark fell to a miserable .118, but four years later, in St. Louis, the big fellow was acclaimed as he seldom has ever been when he laced out three home runs in one afternoon in the enemy stronghold.

Mark Koenig, in a much shorter career, has also known the two extremes. The sturdy Yankee shortstop, then in his first major league year, contributed the error that started the Cardinals on their winning rally in the final game of 1926 series. But last year, in the Yankee clean sweep over the Pirates, Mark was the outstanding leader of the regulars of both clubs at bat and shining artist.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 7.—Indianapolis won the little world's series by defeating Rochester 4 to 3 in the fifth game yesterday. Rochester won only one contest of the series and tied another.

Two errors by Shortstop Gelber yesterday with easy double plays in sight, paved the way for Indianapolis, scoring all of its runs.

Urges Lash For Bookmakers

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 6.—Although Chief Constable D. C. Draper advocates the lash for hand-bookmakers, who he regards as a menace to society because they "use their wits to prey on weak-minded men," Curley Crowell, a former member of the bookmaking profession, retorts that "the bookie is a gentleman compared to the parliamentarian."

Crowell, who has paid in Windsor Police Court more than $1,200 for running a book, so who has purchased a hash house and is running it instead, said "You've got to trust a bookie. Nowadays, especially, he doesn't dare to give the bettor a slip. He has to be honest and a gentleman."

"The way it is now at the tracks, the people who go to the races haven't got a chance to win—not a chance."

I know all about it. I've done everything that there is to be done at ovals. I've worked at them since a boy. I've worked them for bookies. I've worked for pari-mutuels, and I've run a book of my own.

"Why the pari-mutuels take about 12 per cent out of a bettor's dollar each race. Figure that out," and Curly grinned. "Seven races a day, and 12 per cent goes with each of them. They take $60,000 out of the track each day to make change for the people, and not one lousy cent goes to the winner. Where, in the old days, with bookies, the bettor would get odds of 150 to 200 to one these are cut down to nothing. How can you beat a racket like that? How can you beat iron men who haul 12 cents off your dollar every race? The bookies used to make money. But by Jimmy they used to lose it, too. I've seen a bookie go out with $10,000 and walk home—broke." Curly looked around his hash house. "If I had a bookie's place, I'd have stolen from the public as in the old days. I'd have a dog cart of mine wouldn't be big enough to hold it."

Curly fairly gnashed his teeth. "Then this feller Draper suggests that a man be whipped for running a book. I ask you. Is that justice? For the government to be able to run a book and for the citizen not to be able to?"

The Markets

(Canadian Press)
MONTREAL, Oct. 7.—A feature of the grain trade here Saturday was the market improvement in the demand from both United Kingdom and continental buyers for grain even at the advanced prices asked overnight and a large volume of business was accomplished by local exporters in barley and wheat for October shipment. The sales of barley sold at 22 cents per bushel. A moderate amount of above there was a good demand for barley in the local market and sales of 100,000 bushels of Manitoba feed grade were made at 75-1-2 cents per bushel. Montreal, and several loads of No. 4 grade at 101-4 cents per bushel over the Winnipeg, October option c.i.f. The car lot cash grain trade was fair with a strong under-tone and prices for wheat were one cent per bushel higher and feed barley was marked up two cents per bushel. Manitoba No. 5 wheat sold at $1.05, No. 6 wheat at $1.08, feed wheat at $1.08, while Manitoba feed barley sold at 22 cents per bushel. A moderate amount of business was done in spring and winter wheat flour and values were unchanged. The demand for all lines of millfeed continued good and the undertone to the market was firm. A fair trade was done in standard grades of rolled oats and values were steady. Prices for all grades of eggs were firmly maintained under a good demand. The receipts Saturday were 755 cases. The inquiry for butter was confined to broken lots to meet immediate wants but values were unchanged. The tone of the cheese market was steeper under an improved demand. The receipts were 8,975 boxes.
