CANCER CONTROL IN MEMORIAM. While it is an advantage in the control of disease to know the specific cause of underlying conditions leading to it, this is not always absolutely necessary. It has been found possible, and there are many illustrations of it in modern medicine, to limit very considerably the spread of certain diseases by the application of very simple methods of control. Public opinion led, in the middle ages, to the application of such severe quarantine regulations in the case of lepers, as to result in a great limitation of the disease in Europe and subsequently elsewhere. At that time the cause of the disease was quite unknown. In recent years we are all familiar with the relationships of diet deficiencies to certain diseases, and we are now living in a time when they are gradually being brought under control. Yet surely, one of these diseases, was at least partially under control in advance of the more exact knowledge of its causation. While certain so-called malignant tumors of birds and animals may possibly be due to very minute living organisms, it is in a position to say that such are the exciting cause of human cancer. We can, however, say that there is an early stage in the development of cancer which yields reasonably to appropriate means of extirpation and cure, and we know quite well of certain controllable conditions which predispose to cancer. We are thus in the position of being able to apply certain definite methods of prevention and cure, and there would not seem to be any reason why such methods, if properly applied, would not have a very marked influence in limiting the condition. Our duty, then, is to oppose the prevalence of cancer by the application, in as thorough a manner and as widely as possible, of methods which have been found to be effective in the prevention and treatment of the disease. Funds are urgently required for educational purposes in order that everybody may be informed regarding these matters. All should know of the early stages of the disease and the very favourable possibilities of certain modern methods of treatment and cure. The deficiencies in our knowledge of the actual cause and predisposing causes of the condition require continued investigation from the scientific and clinical aspects. This, though demanding the expenditure of funds, may lead to even more effective means of control. In addition, funds are required in order that modern methods of diagnosis and treatment, sometimes an expensive matter, can be made promptly available to all and particularly to those of moderate means. Finally, co-operation on the part of the general public, public health authorities, voluntary health organizations and the medical profession is essential in relation to the application of the details of the methods employed. Something effective can most assuredly be done to control a disease which, under past conditions, has been allowed to include altogether too many victims. All money contributed to the King George V. Silver Jubilee Cancer Fund will be dedicated to the fight against cancer in Canada. Those who contribute will not only be giving a practical expression of their loyalty to the Crown in this Silver Jubilee year, but will have the satisfaction of knowing that they are assisting in a truly humanitarian enterprise. Send your contribution—a dollar or more—to Lady Bessborough at Ottawa. Your gift will be acknowledged on a special card prepared for the purpose.

IN MEMORIAM MRS. OWEN WOOD. Sincere regret was occasioned in Lake Verde and surrounding districts by the passing of Mrs. Owen Wood at the Charlottetown Hospital on Friday afternoon, March 22nd, at the age of fifty-eight years. Mrs. Wood was formerly Miss Alice Bowlen, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Michael Bowlen, Cardigan, just in the prime of life, and of a strong and robust constitution, until two months ago, when she was taken ill, and was removed to the Hospital. An operation was performed successfully, and her friends were glad to hear of her improvement, when complications developed, and despite the best medical aid and attentive nursing, fortified by the consoling rites of her Holy Church, she calmly passed away. It was a pathetic coincidence, that just one year ago, the bereaved family were called upon to mourn the loss of a beloved father, and now, a loving mother has been taken from this home, which was once the scene of a family and many happy hours. Though dark clouds gather now, their silver lining will reveal the fact, that she is free from care and pain, and her celestial messages of consolation in The Divine Presence, will help the ones she has left behind. Tender memories of her linger with us. Kindness, gentleness of manner, and a self-sacrificing and devoted mother, who bore with Christian fortitude, the loss of her husband, and again her eldest daughter Marguerite, five years ago. The deceased leaves to mourn, three sons, Patrick and William at home, Parnell, student at St. Dunstan's University; also two daughters, Regina, in the employ of Cash & Carry Store, Charlottetown, and Mildred, at home. Mrs. Wood is the first lady in the family circle of eleven, the remaining sisters, and brothers will sadly mourn for a loved sister, namely, Mrs. J. C. Wisner, Waterville; Mrs. J. J. Curley, Hermitage; Mrs. J. T. Wright, Sturgeon; Mrs. Harold Williams, Gardiner, Maine; Rev. William Bowlen, High River, Alberta; P. D. Bowlan, Texas, former member for Cardigan; John J. Bowlen, Member of Legislature, Calgary; Edward, architect in California; Michael and Dominick, of Alberta. On Tuesday, March 26th, Mrs. Wood was laid to rest in the Catholic Cemetery at Vernon River, beside her husband and daughter predeceased. A Requiem High Mass was celebrated in St. Joachim's Church by Rev. Basil Croken, St. Teresa, who also officiated at the grave in the absence of Rev. P. D. McQuigan, who was then in Toronto. The funeral was largely attended by people from far and near, showing the esteem in which the deceased was held and many floral and spiritual bouquets were received.

Y. with the purpose of giving the farmers of the province and others interested who cannot attend the meeting a full explanation of the principles and workings of the Act.

While standing there upon the shore While I was just a little boy The birds and bees were singing gaily Nature filled my heart with joy. The sun was on the verge of sinking The clouds were red, and white, and blue It seems to remind me now Of our flag so brave and true. In the faint and far-off distance You could see old Currian Isle. When I see those visions nowday, I'm inclined to muse awhile. There with a number of our school chums, We sang and laughed the evening through Danced and played with joy and pleasure Then our lives were bright and new. We would linger there for hours Gazing at the scenery bright, Waiting for the stars in Heaven So soon they'd shed their golden light. There is scenery that would attract you That would steal your heart away, With the nature that surrounds you With the skies all blue and grey. When our evening, there, was over, We knew exactly what to do We all joined hands in friendliness And then we bid adieu. But time and tide make many changes, Many now have moved away, But with each will always linger Memories of Malpeque Bay. —D.B.M., Travellers Rest.
