G. Sullivan as a chaplain in the Royal Canadian Air Force and calling him to report for training at Lachine, Quebec on the twenty-sixth of June. Although Mr. Sullivan presented his request for a change of pastoral relationship the Board of the Church refused the request and by unanimous vote granted him leave of absence for the duration of the war. The Board recorded in its minutes that Trinity is willing to make this sacrifice feeling that The United Church of Canada's selection of our minister and his appointment by the Department of National Defence is an honour conferred upon this congregation." The statement was signed by A. Stirling MacKay, chairman of the Session Committee.

About five o'clock in the morning he took a relapse and did not regain consciousness. Mr. Boswell had a farm on the outskirts of Summerside North and was well known as a stock farmer. He also had a milk route, going in extensively for milking cows. HANSON SCORES

Mr. Hanson appealed to the government to have a clause inserted in the bill to make mandatory "the immediate enforcement of the principles of compulsory selective service without geographical or other limitations."

He urged also that the bill incorporate the detailed methods of procedure by which such complete service would be obtained rather than leave it to order-in-council.

Failure to do this, he said, would mean "that we will not have compulsory selective service in any practical sense—we shall have only the theory on the statute books."

He said he would vote for second reading of the bill but would insist on the changes he had suggested.

At The Cross Roads

"We have come now to the cross-roads," Mr. Hanson said. "Two paths lie before us, the one dark and uncertain and the other straight and direct.

"Which of the two will the Prime Minister choose? Shall he insist that we continue with interminable detours to victory.

"Shall we insist that we plod wearily along a winding and unlighted road in the pious hope that somehow, sometime, somewhere, we may grope, stumble and flounder into the open light of victory?

"Or will he, casting aside all fears and doubts, political and personal, boldly and confidently choose the open, well-marked path along which the Canadian people, strong and united, will march to the goal we seek to achieve—a well-earned victory and an honorable peace?"

Skylark At Capitol Theatre Summerside

Noah Webster described "skylark" as a term meaning "to frolic boisterously; to indulge in antics; to run or skip about in a sportive or playful manner....." which doesn't nearly begin to do justice to the "Skylark" Claudette Colbert, Ray Milland and Brian Aherne indulged in last night at the opening of their new picture at the Capitol Theatre.

Setting a new comedy pace aboard a fast-moving "merry-go-round," Claudette thumbs her nose at a marriage of five years which has made her and her home just a prop and a background to impress her husband's business clients. Ray Milland, the husband, is nonplussed at the fact that his wife considers love more important than his business career. Brian Aherne, the "other man," takes one look at Claudette and from then on realizes how empty his bachelor life has been. Binnie Barnes, the straying wife of Milland's biggest client, has no intention of letting Claudette steal Aherne, her part time boy friend. And caught in the dizzy domestic whirlpool are Walter Abel and Mona Barrie, a happily married couple who try to straighten everything and everybody out.

That's the set-up of Paramount's "Skylark" which worked itself up into a frenzied climax that had last nights audience roaring with laughter.

The romantic comedy, which once again co-stars the famous hit team of last year's "Arise My Love," is crammed full with brittle dialogue, striking backgrounds of luxurious Long Island estates and a parade of advance fashion designs that proved to be the envy of every woman in the audience.

Scenes range from highly sophisticated comedy to all-out slapstick which uncovers a brand new side to the much talented Miss Colbert. It's no guess to say that "Skylark" will rank among the ten best comedies of the year, so take a word from the movie-wise and make this picture a 'must see."

DEBATE OPENS

waters. The amendment, if approved, will permit the government to send them overseas.

In an address lasting 2 1-2 hours, the Prime Minister pictured Canada as threatened by enemies on both the east and west and required to make every effort to safeguard her own territory as well as fight on distant soil.

Conscription for overseas had been the controversial issue in Canada since Confederation, and the fact Canada was not exempt from attack or even invasion was a reason why the government should give the most careful consideration to possible consequences of a change in policy which might result in division or a weakening of national unity.

The government had to consider from day to day what proportion of Canada's forces it was justified in sending overseas and the proportion necessary to keep at home.

"It is perfectly clear that the enemy will have to be destroyed overseas if this continent is not to be the field of the final conflict, or possibly even an immediate field of conflict, with Canada the scene of the first invasion," Mr. King said.

"It is equally true that in the event of an attack, come when it may, and from whatever direction it may, unless we have forces adequately equipped, and trained in sufficient numbers to prevent the enemy from getting a foothold upon our soil, our entire national existence will be imperilled."

blended with the easy democracy of the nations these ships defend.

King George first was piped aboard one of the United States most modern cruisers, then went in Rear Admiral Robert Giffin's flagship barge to a battleship.

He made the minute inspection of a man who knows ships and has served aboard them, chatted and joked with officers and men alike, and ranged the ships from officers' wardrooms to seamen's messes and the sick bays. He poked into big gun turrets and watched the long naval rifles swung and elevated.

A Great Moment

"It was a great moment of naval history," commented one observer. "It meant the welding of the two great navies in the world—right in the face of the Axis."

As the King was piped aboard the cruiser, United States seamen stood at attention, a marine guard outdid even its traditional smartness in presenting arms, and the band struck up "God Save the King."

Alleged British Order Denied

BERLIN, (From German Broadcasts) June 10—(AP)—The German high command declared today that British prisoners captured in the Libyan battle would be denied food and drink until the British command cancelled an alleged order which the Germans said resulted in mistreatment of German prisoners.

(There has been no confirmation of the German contention that their soldiers were refused food or water when captured by the British forces.)

The high command's statement said:—

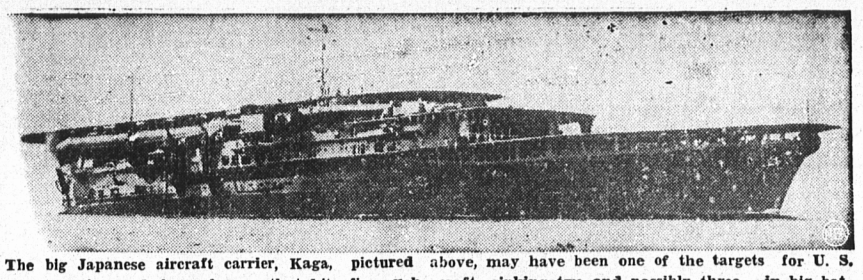
"During fighting in North Africa an order of the 4th British Armored Brigade was captured. It said that prisoners must not be given any food, sleep, water, friendly treatment or any conveniences until they have been questioned by competent quarters."

LONDON, June 5—(OP)—A well-informed source said today that the German allegation of improper treatment of prisoners in Libya was without foundation. He said it had not been determined immediately whether the British Government would take official notice of the charge.

SWEDISH RIFLE FIRE

Swedish rifle club members fired over 8,000,000 cartridges in practice during 1941 compared with 5,800,000 fired in 1940.

U. S. Target?



The big Japanese aircraft carrier, Kaga, pictured above, may have been one of the targets for U. S. Navy, Marine and Army forces that hit five such craft—sinking two and possibly three— in big battle off Midway Island. Battered Japanese fleet, that included battleships and troop transports, was reported fleeing.

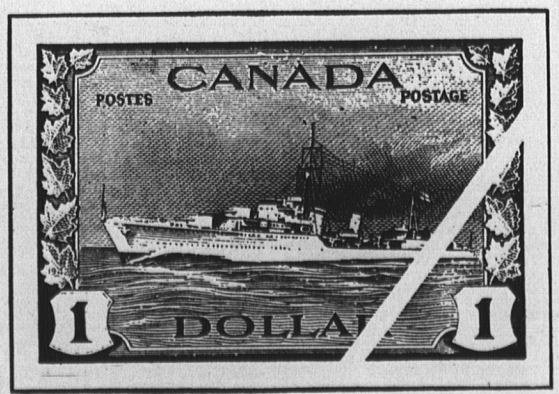
Combining four photographs, this 6-cent airmail stamp records work of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan in Canada. Scene is typical of R.C.A.F. stations.

The dark green, 13-cent denomination is a composite, based on photos, showing the Ram tank used by Canada's Army. Tank was named after the Rocky Mountain ram.

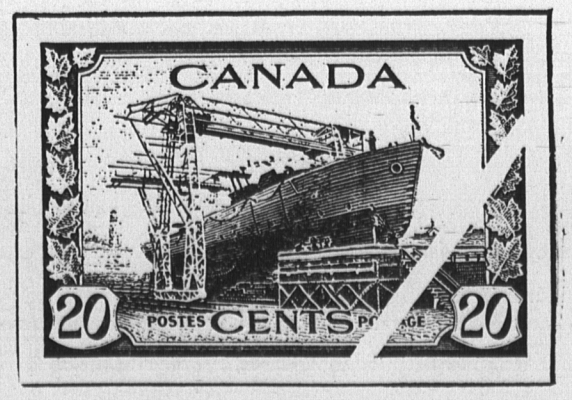
The farm scene in the sepia 8-cent stamp (left) is a tribute to the war effort of the farmer who operates on a small scale. Portraits of the King in uniforms of the three services appear on the one-cent (centre) two, three and five-cent stamps. Canada's war contribution in shipping is pictured in the 4-cent stamp (right).

An excellent example of fine detail in stamp-making, the 50-cent denomination shows a 25-pounder field gun against the background of a Canadian munitions plant.

The new airmail special delivery stamp dramatizes the speeding up of wartime production by swift transfer of documents, plans, orders. Airmail is up 50 per cent.



Destroyers of the Tribal Class, as portrayed on the $1 blue stamp, are being built in Canada and Britain for Canada's Navy. They will be named after Indian tribes.



Emphasizing the contribution of smaller shipyards in building Royal Canadian Navy and merchant vessels, the 20-cent stamp shows a corvette ready to be launched.
