"MAN IN HALF MOON STREET" TENSE DRAMA

—The tense dramatic London stage play by Barre Lydon, "The Man In Half Moon Street," which ran for nine solid months to the gratification of British audiences, opened last night at the Capitol Theatre as a splendid Paramount screen production . . . and audiences acclaimed it as a worthy successor to the stage hit!

Fraught with suspense and with exciting moments piling one on the other, "Half Moon Street" presents Nils Asther and Helen Walker in leading roles with Edmund Breon, Paul Cavanagh and Matthew Boulton lending invaluable support in their respective portrayals of a loving father, a family physician and a Scotland Yard inspector. In addition, Reinhold Schunzel, departing from his usual character of a Nazi, gives a splendid enactment of an aged scientist whose discovery threatens to disrupt the medical profession. In this experiment, Asther is his partner and co-worker.

As the story opens, Asther, who has just finished a portrait of Helen, declares his love for her. She accepts his proposal and their intention is to wed after his important medical experiment is given to the world. In the meantime, however, Helen's father, played by Breon, and the family physician, Cavanagh, becomes suspicious of Asther's actions. After enlisting the aid of Scotland Yard the secret leaks out piece by piece and the parts of a jumbled puzzle slowly form.

Research Official Visiting Province

Mr. Thomas Kennedy, representative for New Brunswick and temporarily for Prince Edward Island of the Research and Development Branch of the Federal Department of Reconstruction and Supply, is at present in Summerside and is making his headquarters in the office of the Department of Reconstruction in the Journal Building.

Interviewed yesterday, Mr. Kennedy explained that his job is to act as liason between manufacturers and the Research and Development Branch of the Dept of Reconstruction. His work to date has been to visit manufacturers and attempt to discover if they have any technical problems and if they have to refer them to the Department's Technical Information Service at Ottawa where they attempt to solve the difficulties. The National Research Council and the research laboratories of the different Government Departments are at the service of this Department.

Mr. Kennedy said that this service has proved very satisfactory to date and over 600 inquiries of this nature have been received from all over Canada. The main idea, he said, is to bring the results of research of the pre-war years and the war years to the assistance of industry. Technical information is also available for civic projects. Mr. Kennedy said that he plans to visit all the manufacturers in Summerside and Charlottetown at this time and will return later in the season to visit other sections of the Province. Citing the Irish moss industry as an example of an Island industry that should benefit from research, he said that while Irish moss is harvested here to the value of thousands of dollars annually it could also be processed here.

The important thing, he explained, is for the people to become acquainted with the service that this branch of the Department of Reconstruction is rendering and to use it. Its advice and information is also available to anyone contemplating opening up a new industry. Mr. Kennedy may be reached during his stay in the Province through the Summerside office of the Department of Construction. Mr. Kennedy is a civil engineer by profession and has recently been discharged after five years of service with the R.C.A.F. —S

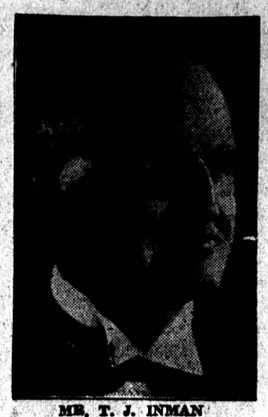
Gives Report On Ass'n Meeting



MR. T. J. INMAN

The following report was read at the annual meeting of the P. E. I. Sheep Breeders' Association by Mr. T. J Inman, Summerside, P. E. I. delegate representing the Canadian Co - Operative Wool Growers at the annual meeting in Toronto, March 29, 1945. Mr. Inman was re-appointed as delegate to attend the meeting this year:

"Although nearly a year has elapsed since the meeting on which I am supposed to give a report was held, yet I will try and give you a brief outline of some of the proceedings and a few facts connected with the wool industry.

"We had a very harmonious meeting with some of the largest sheep ranchers in the Dominion present, with the meetings held in the library of the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, delegates were present from every province, with quite a number of them asking for a higher price level to be set for wool.

"The management reported a large volume of business, with three registered warehouses for grading running continuously throughout the year and two running part time. Western Wool had a little more sand in it than the year previous. The Domestic Wools were better prepared in those Provinces where the 4 ct. Wool Bonus was rigidly applied, and this policy was continued during 1945.

1944 Prices

"The average farm price for all Canada is given at 27.1c per lb. The average weight per fleece at 7.6 pounds in 1945 was slightly higher than that of the previous year. The estimated production in 1945 was a little lower in all provinces except Prince Edward Island, where a slightly higher weight per fleece offset a minor decline in numbers of sheep shorn. In comparison the average price paid in U. S. A. was 42.4c per lb. In both Canada and United States the Governments buy the domestic clips at stated prices.

"Shortages in woollens for civilians continue, but with sufficient wool stocks on hand, as soon as the labor situation adjusts itself, the accumulated stocks of wool in Canada will be rolling from the loom in sufficient quantities to supply the present urgent needs.

"As for Canada there is no longer any great surplus of wool to worry over—the Government is already committed to the take off of 1946, and sheep owners are advised to maintain their flocks at present levels.

"There are about 5% fewer sheep in the world than just before the war, and about 8 per cent less than in the wartime peak of 1942 according to a survey by the Office of Foreign Agricultural Relations.

"It is estimated that there are 717 million sheep in the world.

Present Policy

"It is the present policy of the Canadian Co - Operative Wool Growers to pay as near market price as possible when the wool is received and if at the end of the fiscal year after expenses, and necessary reserves; there are any surplus funds these are distributed as rebates to all shipping members in accordance with the volume of woo, shipped.

The financial standing of this Company is in splendid shape with:

Assets

Current Assets of	$486,977.86
Fixed Assets (after providing for depreciation	60,382.44
Total Assets	$547,360.30

Liabilities

Current Liabilities	$ 90,629.44

Capital Stock issued	120,880.00
	$547,360.30

Profit and Loss Account

Operating Profit for the year 1944	$32,244.31
And after deducting depreciation and running expenses, had:
A net profit for the year 1944 of	$62,962.45

Which after deducting interest on shares, and contribution to employees Pension fund, the balance was to be paid as a rebate to growers.

"It is estimated that 14,513,000 lbs. of shorn wool was produced in Canada in 1945 and of this amount the Canadian Co-Operative Wool Growers Ltd handled 6,364,080 lbs. or about 43 per cent.

"It might be of interest to note the percentage of production received from each province, and as the amount of production is only an estimate decimal points are not counted in the percentages.

Prepare Properly At Time Of Shearing

As the "tolerance or allowance" for reject content permitted by Government regulation has become progressively smaller since the 4 cent bonus was first paid in 1943 the Canadian Co-Op. Wool Growers recommend that the following rules be followed:

1st shear on a clean floor, and avoid second cuts so far as possible. Slatted floors are beneficial where large flocks are shorn.

2nd. Endeavor to keep all short, hairy, grey and black leg and face clippings away from the fleece. Include these with the tags when shipping.

3rd. Remove all dung locks and heavy tags. Pack separately for shipment.

4th. Remove very burry, strawy, or dirty bellies before tieing. Clean belly pieces may be left with the fleece.

5th. Remove any very chaffy, burry or strawy portions of fleece —or shake out light chaff before tying.

6th. Shear when fleeces are dry. Keep wool from getting damp.

7th. Tie with paper fleece twine. Never use binder twine or other sisal twine.

8th. In case of large clips it is best to pack tag locks separate from bellies, locks and pieces. Keep grey, black, and dead wool together.

The bonus will not be paid on:
1st. Any reject wool.
2nd. Fleeces tied with binder twine.
3rd. Wool received in wet or musty condition.
4th. Any clip that requires a lot of re-conditioning at time of grading.

Special Instruction

"The officers and staff of the Co-Op. were all very courteous and obliging, went out of their way to give us a good time and make us feel welcome, those of us who were interested enough to go, were taken out to the warehouses at Weston, where we were given special instruction regarding the grading and care of wool. We spent an afternoon in this immense wool store house (the largest in Canada) comparing all the different types of wool produced in North America, and some from Australia and New Zealand

"At the close of the business sessions the directors and delegates were entertained by the staff of the Canadian Co-Operative Wool Growers and their wives, pouring coffee and passing light refreshments, at an afternoon tea, held in one of the social rooms of the Royal York Hotel. It was during this social hour that certificates were presented for twenty-five years' continuous service with the company to: Mr. W. H. J. Tisdale, Assistant General Manager, L. V. Parent, Branch Manager at Lennoxville, Que., and W. W. Thompson Branch Manager, Regina, bringing the number up to six who had received those 25 year Certificates This number has since been reduced to five owing to the sudden passing on Nov. 20th, 1945, of Mr Bertram G. Hollindrake, who has been the chief grader for the company ever since 1919.

"In conclusion I wish to state that I have sold my own wool through this Canadian Co-Operative Wool Growers Limited ever since they were organized, and have always received as good and generally a little better price than I could get any where else, and have no hesitation in recommending this as the best method of marketing our wool."

DR HAMILTON'S PILLS

The Second Mrs. Draper

By Noel Pierce

Mother's money. We'll go to the Bahamas and sit in the sun and drink stingers under a tropical moon, and leave unhappiness behind."

"Children get lost in the dark," she said. "You're one of them now."

The fog floated like a ghost between their staring faces.

"You're turning me down?" he whispered

"Yes. Because of her. When you ask me again it must be because you can't live another day, another hour, another minute without me."

He put his hand over his mouth, muttered, "I'm sorry," and wrapped her cloak around her with numb fingers. "I'll take you home now. I hope you haven't been too chilled."

"Oh, no," she said. "I haven't."

When he had put his car away Jim walked up the driveway and turned off across the lawns. It seemed to be a most fatal night with sleep as alien to him as to small creatures whose cheeping choruses rose from the grasses and the hidden shapes of the old trees. He felt no wounded vanity. Just a queer desolate loneliness because Dorian had become a separate entity. She was now a little island of feminine resolve and character unto herself. He could visit there, he would be received, but he no longer possessed and controlled the chart of her. So tonight she had grown desperately important and real to him as never before. Jim knew he must judge himself and his actions in terms of Dorian's words on the dunes. But he could not lie to himself that it hadn't hurt damnably to be refused, because it had. He was still quivering with failure and as he walked among the brilliant and unfamiliar gardens his feet crushed hurt and rebellion into the soft grass.

"You're mad if you think I'd take you, darling on terms like that. When I marry you I want you for my lover"... (But that would have come, dear heart,) his mind assured her stubbornly in the dark.. (that would have been lovely and true). He shook himself. No, the truth! He had thought of himself as Dorian's husband first. As her lover, last. "Stoney-eyed child with white feather in his hatband?" Or had those been words wrung from her by some female belief that he was offering himself on the rebound from the second Mrs. Draper.
