Cured Mr. George Graves, Pitts Ferry, Ont., of a very bad case of kidney trouble.

He tells about the cure in the following words: "I cannot recommend Doan's Kidney Pills too highly. I never took anything that did me so much good. I had a severe pain in the small of my back and could scarcely get up or down without help. I could hardly urinate, but when I did the pain was terrible. I was in the Hotel Dieu, Kingston, last winter and when I came out I was some better but not cured. It was then I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised. Since taking them I have been completely cured and have not had any trouble with my kidneys since."

SAGE OF SLABSIDES

JOHN BURROUGHS, WHO CONTROLLED VERTS THOMPSON-SETON.

President Roosevelt invited the Noted Naturalist and Author to Accompany Him to Yellowstone Park—How He Lives and Works—Author of Many Nature Books.

John Burroughs, author and naturalist, has made a lifelong study of nature and has written many books and articles on outdoor life and the flora and fauna of the United States, Canada, Alaska, and the British Isles. Recently he has been in the Canadian public eye by reason of the position he takes in regard to the animal stories of Ernest Thompson-Seton. Mr. Burroughs has been invited by President Roosevelt to accompany him on his two months' trip to the Rocky Mountains and the Pacific States.

To Mr. Burroughs' fame as a naturalist is perhaps due his invitation to accompany Mr. Roosevelt during the outing Mr. Roosevelt intends to spend a couple of weeks in the Yellowstone National Park, roughing it and studying the big game of that region, in whose preservation he is deeply interested. Owing to natural causes the game in the park is disappearing, and Mr. Burroughs' advice will be sought to remedy that evil.

John Burroughs has come to be recognized everywhere as the dean of the cult of nature-lovers. More than to any other man are the people of the continent to which he belongs indebted for the growth of that love of outdoor life, of trees and flowers and birds and animals, which has been so noticeable in recent years. Indeed there was a time not many years ago when John Burroughs was almost the sole writer on nature that the country possessed.

Mr. Burroughs was born on a farm in New York State and for a time taught school. Later for a time he held a position on the staff of a daily newspaper in New York city, and this was the beginning of his literary career. Since 1874, however, he has resided on his farm, Riverby, on the banks of the Hudson at West Park, a few hours' ride from New York city. There he cultivates grapes and writes.

Slabside, the summer den of Mr. Burroughs, is built on a side hill about a mile from his farm. It is constructed of bark covered slabs on the rough. The front is raised on poles to a level with the rear and has a broad vine covered porch made of cedar poles. It was built by Mr. Burroughs himself about seven years ago.

The house is a story and a half high, the first floor consisting of one room, about eighteen feet, with an alcove for a bed. The attic or second floor is made into two rooms. The chimney of Slabside is built of the gray limestone of that region and is Mr. Burroughs' own handiwork. It is finished with a mantel work, but it is merely the twisted trunk of a sumac tree. On the mantel and above are souvenirs of many a tramp added. An iron teakettle, an iron pot and a couple of wire broilers are arranged about the fireplace.

In Slabside there is no trace of that conventionality from which its proprietor sought to escape when he built it. Things are handy. Begin where they were last used. They are likely to be where they will next be wanted.

"I am a good cook, but a poor housekeeper," he once remarked to a visitor.

He scrubbed the floor of Slabside once. It took two hours, and before it was fairly dry his brother walked over it with mud laden shoes and engendered such murderous instincts in the owner's mind that he has never laid himself open to like temptation.

Mr. Burroughs' writing table, spread with an array of books, correspondence, and writing materials, supported by a top of pine boards, is on an inverted trident shaped trunk of a sumac tree. The dining table is also made of pine boards, with legs of sumac branches. A stand at one side is similarly constructed. A settee between the chimney and the end of the house and the bedstead in the alcove are made of white birch. The knobs of the front door and an improvised knocker which would hardly answer the purpose for which it stands are made of beech knurls, and excrescences from other trees are ingeniously introduced into a variety of services. Woodcuts, sketches and photographs garnered from many sources, with birds' nests and other souvenirs, decorate the walls.

Mr. Burroughs is hale and hearty despite his sixty-six years. Most of his literary work is done in the morning. He rises at 5 o'clock and retires about 8.30. In the afternoon he takes long walks, looks after his grapes in season, and spends many quiet hours at Slabside.

JINGLES AND JESTS.

What Happened.
She pressed her ruby lips to his in one ecstatic kiss; They seemed at peace with all the world. Enrapt in holy bliss; But, with the osculation o'er, It was not hard to find That, though she took her lips away, The ruby stayed behind!

Positively Brutal.
She—Just see how much your little wife loves you. She made this cake for you all by herself.
He—Yes, darling, and now if you will eat it all by yourself I shall possess indisputable proof of your devotion.

Moral—Keep Quiet.
An old crow sat on a hickory limb, Moaning be-caws his eyes were dim; A hunter heard. The noisy beast And straightway made a corpse of him.

The Same Girl.
Young Husband—When I used to kiss you you slapped me.
Young Wife—Well, you won't get slapped now unless you forget to kiss me.

The Insecure Season.
The time draws near when no one knows Just when to shake his winter clothes. For if you wear 'em you feel bad, And if you don't you wish you had.

Their Privilege.
"There's Mrs. Brown wearing the same gown she wore last year."
"Yes, but the Browns are so rich that they can afford to be eccentric."

Nervy Indeed.
"The folks who tantalize me most," exclaimed the charming miss, "Are men who call and have the nerve to ask me for a kiss."

Sure Thing.
Miles—Last night I dreamed that I was wealthy. What's that a sign of?
Giles—It's a sign that you awoke and found your pipe had gone out.

And Several "Extras."
"May I print a kiss on your lips?" I said, And she nodded her sweet permission; So we went to press, and I rather guess We printed a full edition.

Harder Than Flint.
Dashaway—You don't mean to say, she jilted you?
Cleveland—She did, old man. That girl has the heart of a motorman.

Don't.
She—Girls, you should never kiss yourselves do that. Take care. Your little lips were made to hold your street car keys.

Devoted.
She—You say you are devoted to me. What is the particular art that you love best?
He—Thou art.

Sometimes Can't.
The songster with a song to sing Can't always get to sing it; The poet with an ode to sing Can't always get to spring it.

Alimony.
De Style—Did he marry her for her money?
Gumbusta—Yes, and then she divorced him for his.

Oh, how the Man.
No matter how many may dream, Indeed, the swells themselves confess More often 'tis they break him.
—Syracuse Herald.

Faint Hearted.
"I think you ought to have that tooth out."
"M—m—well, guess I'll take it out in thinking."

A Complaint.
"Alas," the housewife cried, "it seems I can't make pickles."
No matter how I mix the things, They always pickle lily."

Troubles of the Rich.
Jaggies—What persons are most subject to appendicitis?
Waggies—Those who are able to pay for an operation.

Mutability.
When first I heard her dulcet voice, It set my heart on leaping; We married, then, it was I and Relief, then, was sleeping.

An Excellent Reason.
"Why do you call it a feminine complement?"
"Because there is a sting in it."
—Chicago Tribune.

Correct.
"The plural form of 'wife' is what?"
The teacher asked. Said Ben, "A most precocious little tot, 'It's bigamy, I vass."

The Natural Result.
"He doesn't seem to enjoy life."
"Of course not. He's got the health food mania and eats nothing else."
—Chicago Post.

No Danger.
"Now, Reginald!" cried Mr. Smith, "Don't point that empty gun."
"It isn't empty, father, dear; It's loaded!" said the son.

Cut Up About It.
Sharpe—Did the barber's conversation make an impression on you?
Whalton—No, but his razor did. —Chicago News.

The Worst.
Men have a lengthy list of woes To spoil their hopes and twist 'em, But his is worst, who betting goes Upon a sure thing system.
—Washington Star.

The Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada

"Prosperous and Progressive."

BARRIE, ONT., April 9th, 1903.

HOLLAND A. WHITE, Esq., District Manager, SUN LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA, HAMILTON, ONT.

DEAR SIR,—I have to-day received through your courteous and obliging representative for Barrie, Mr. Thos. McCroft, your Company's cheque for $1,246.05, being payment of 15-year endowment for $1,000 and profits of $246.05 for which kindly accept thanks.

Being a firm believer in life assurance, I carry policies in the three leading Canadian companies and one in an American company, but I have always received larger profits from the Sun Life of Canada than from any other company. A short time ago a 15-year Endowment policy for $2,000, with accrued profits, matured in another Canadian company, and for the same period, the profits were almost identical on this $2,000 policy and on the $1,000 I held in the Sun Life of Canada. This is a fair comparison, and shows distinctly my reason for applying for $2,000 more assurance in the Sun Life of Canada. I might also state that the profits earned on my policy just matured is more than the agent with whom I placed the assurance told me they would likely amount to. His estimate was $1,230, but the amount received was $1,246. I need hardly tell you that I am delighted with the good results, and will be pleased to speak a good word for the Sun Life of Canada whenever an opportunity presents itself.

I remain, yours faithfully,
D. H. MACLAREN
Manager, Charlottetown.
