FIELDING AND MARCIL SPEAK

To a Large Enthusiastic Audience Last Night--Both are Pleasing Speakers and Held their Audience Captivated all the Time they Spoke.

MONTAGUE, Sept. 21--The meeting was called to order by Senator J. E. Robertson, chairman. J. J. Hughes, M. P., was the first speaker. He dealt for a short time with the personal charges made against him by Mr. Foster and Mr. McLean. He stated most plainly that he was ready to meet his opponents at any or every platform in connection with this canvass.

Mr. Fielding then took the platform and delivered one of the finest addresses ever listened to by a Montague audience. Mr. Fielding has a clear voice and sympathetic manner which at once secures a good hearing and he kept the attention of his audience to the end. He dealt first with the charges of graft against the Laurier administration. He declared the namelessness of many of these charges and gave explanation in connection with others that put matters in an entirely different light. He then passed from these charges which he characterized as his opponents' stock in trade to the large questions of the development of a young nation. As he passed through these splendid achievements of the Laurier government the whole audience showed their appreciation of that work by round after round of applause.

One Hundred and Fifty Years Ago Yesterday, British Took Possession of St. John.

ST. JOHN, Sept. 19--Just 100 years ago yesterday St. John became in fact a part of the great British empire. Two thousand soldiers landed from a British fleet in the harbor and entered themselves in a fort on the western side of the harbor, whence raising expeditions were sent through the river district and the whole country was placed under British subjection. It had been contemplated by the Historical Society and others interested to have the day fittingly celebrated but the exhibition rush and the fact that the day came on Sunday prevented any ceremony. It is true that the Treaty of Utrecht in 1713 relinquished the claim of France to the region known as Acadia, but British sovereignty was never established until the year 1758, after the fall of Louisbourg, when General Moncton, joined by recruits from then loyal British colonies of New
