SLANDER REPUDIATED

the owner sent to prison. It was opened again and beer was being sold, but I am pretty sure it will be closed up now, for the man will spend six months in jail. He was convicted yesterday. That is the only place I know that was selling liquor in violation of the law. It was dealt with before the letter appeared in print.

The writer of the letter also makes the statement that he was in Charlottetown at Exhibition time, when he "happened around your premises waiting for a man who had a prescription being filled 'there,' and that more men could not be seen in any open bar on the mainland.

Mr. Boisner thought that was another display of imagination, highly exaggerated, which no person with common sense would give any credence to.

With regard to the statement, "A fellow told me here the other evening that he could come twenty-six 'boozes' selling 'joints' within two hundred yards of the Market Square," that, said the Prosecutor, is a foolish lie; the "fellow" might have made it 126.

"Why, anybody might say there are a hundred or more 'boozes' joints" around the Market Square, but that wouldn't put them there. There are no twenty-six "boozes" places around here, I can tell anyone that. And as for the "fellow" producing a flask of whisky "he was just after getting," as the writer in the Patriot says, I have not the slightest doubt that he produced such a flask; anybody can get a flask of whisky if he goes to it by a certificate. "The whole letter," concluded Mr. Boisner, "is a gross exaggeration and an attempt to blacken the character of the community."

CITY MARSHAL'S STATEMENT.

The Guardian representative also saw Marshal Cameron in regard to the statement that there was a crowd of drunken men on Grafton Street on Saturday night, one of whom was lying on the sidewalk, "stiff from liquor." He was not on Grafton Street on Saturday night, but he was quite sure that if any drunken men were around they would have been arrested by the policemen who were there.

"There had been, he admitted, one or two complaints occasionally of disorderly behaviour in the neighbourhood of Grafton Street, but the source of the annoyance had been removed in the conviction of a man for selling liquor, the man now being in jail on a sentence of six months. Otherwise the street was kept perfectly free of any persons who were not sober. The police always keep the sidewalks clear, although he was not on Grafton Street on Saturday night, he did not think there could be any man 'lying on the sidewalk stiff from liquor,' who would have escaped the attention of the officers on duty.

SCIENCE AND AGE MARKS

A couple of more fond beliefs have been knocked in the head by the unsentimental scientists—that the age of a rattlesnake can be told by the number of rattles, and that a deer's span of life is accurately recounted by the number of points in his antlers.

Neither is so! As the Zoological Society "Bulletin" says: "The largest rattler may have few rattles and a small one twice the number of the big one. He grows three a year. At birth the rattlesnake has a tiny button where his rattles are ultimately to be. Thereafter, at the end of the first year—if he should live—he would be, according to theory, three years old; or perhaps three and a half, if one consider the button as the nucleus that the rattles increase in number for a certain number of years; remain that number during another period of years, and then degenerate as the snake attains its longevity.

"The degeneration of the rattles of a male deer presents a less bewildering problem, inasmuch as it is possible to prove beyond doubt that the points on his antlers have no bearing whatever on his age. In the first place several species may be reared in captivity with as much certainty as domestic cattle, and therefore the recovery of the shed antlers before they are destroyed either by decay or the teeth of rodents is an assured fact. With such means no other testimony need be presented than two series of antlers, one from an American wapiti and the other from the axis deer. Both series have been photographed in the order of the successive years of the

LAST GAME OF FOOTBALL SERIES TODAY

To-day the third game of the series for the football championship takes place between the teams of Connaught A.A. and St. Dunstan's College.

The Connaughts will have to win the game to-day or lose the championship, as the Saints are now three points in the lead.

Those who saw the last game, which was a good exhibition, although played on a wet field, will doubtless make an endeavour to see the teams play between St. Dunstan's College and the Connaughts. The game will be played at 3 o'clock this afternoon at Victoria Park.

The Conns line-up is:—Fut, H. Fitzgerald; halves, D. Gillis, A. McDonald, R. Fitzgerald and F. McCarry; quarters, M. McGuigan, G. McMahon and A. Hennessy; forwards, Austin McDonald, J. D. McDonald, W. Campbell, W. Keenan, L. Mullins, V. Gay and D. Hogan.

St. Dunstan's will put out their strongest team, and the Connaughts' lineup, which is also very strong, is given below.

If the field at the A.A.A.A. Grounds is in a fit condition, the game will be played there, and if not the game will be played at 3 o'clock this afternoon at Victoria Park.

If You Want Results Purchase Printing With a "PUNCH" to it---

Every piece of printing that bears your name is either a good or a bad piece of advertising. There is no such thing in the printing art as a profitable piece of commonplace printing---there is no safe intermediary course.

Don't overlook the fact that your business and yourself are judged by your printing—good or bad. You cannot afford to permit your printing to be a laughing, talking advertisement of your lack of appreciation for the most essential elements to commercial success.

Your printing to be profitable must have character—individuality—must have a "Punch and Snap" to it. If it does not "Stand out" it will be buried in the oblivion of the commonplace.

For five years I have planned systematically—labored methodically with but one object: To eventually have the most up-to-date printing and book-binding plant in Prince Edward Island. I have equipped my plant with labor-saving machinery—with "Type material that talk"—with presses and ruling machines that do the work in a credible manner—with punching and wire stitching machines—and, last but not least, I am now installing a modern style embossing press.

I am in a position to do the highest class of printing, book-binding, and loose-leaf work—at a price that will compare favorably with any printing house in Canada. charge an honest price—I pay an honest wage to my employees—the more work I get, the more local help I can employ, and with my present facilities, I can handle an almost unlimited quantity of work.

Better call, write, or phone me regarding that job—it will pay you.

"The first antlers of the wapiti bear shedding of the antlers. Eight points, which, according to the popular theory, gives him the age of eight years. In reality, as he was born in June, 1906, at the time this maximum size—in September, 1907—he was exactly seventeen months old."

THE NEW BRITISH NAVAL SHIPS

(Manchester Guardian.)
We have five battleships of the Dreadnought type due for completion which will be armed with the biggest of all modern naval guns. It is the 15 inch gun. These new battleships will be known as the Barham, Malaya, Queen Elizabeth, Warspite and Valiant. We have twelve battleships armed with the 13.5 inch which is a larger gun than the largest German naval gun—the 12 in.—and four battle cruisers with the 13.5 in. gun. The German navy had arranged to have two battleships equipped with a 15 in. gun in 1916. The 15 in. gun for our ships weighs 36 tons, as against 76 tons of the 13.5 in. and the weight of the projectile is 1,950 pounds, compared with the 1,400 for the smaller gun. The German new 15 in. gun is said to weigh 82 1/2 tons, and the weight of the projectile 1,765 pounds, as against 860 pounds of the 12 in. The heaviest gun in the French navy is the 12 in. All her battleships (24 in number) are armed with these guns. The Russian navy, too, has the 12 in. gun on eight of her battleships. A gun of the same calibre is found on six of the Austro-Hungarian ships of war. Our 15 in. gun is reported to be the best in the world we have ever had, and as it is never pressed to its full compass of explosive discharge it will be an exceptionally long-lived gun. The First Lord of the Admiralty said about this new gun some months ago that "its power may be measured by the fact that whereas the 13.5 in. gun huris a 1400 pound projectile, a 15 in. gun discharges a projectile of nearly 2 tons in weight, and can hurl this immense mass of metal ten or twelve miles."

FALLEN LEAVES.

Low lies the summer's glory here and dead—
These fallen leaves—and ah! they were so green!
Alas! that we should on such beauty tread,
That loveliness should have an end so mean!

Long dreary days and nights, with artist care,
Did Nature sit her garments fashioning;
Then deftly wove her bridal raiment fair,
Upon the secret, silent looms of Spring.

And now she casts the wondrous thing away,
And all her labor mingles with the earth;
Forgot the vernal pride of yesterday,
Forward she looks unto another birth.

So do I look beyond our winter woes—
Ah! Love, believe it and it shall be so!
