R. R. Bennett New Director Of National Service

OTTAWA, Oct. 15.—Mr. R. R. Bennett, who steps into the important position of Director of National Service vacated by Sir Thomas Tait, is all equipped intellectually and other-wise for the task. Like so many other Canadians who have made a lasting imprint on our public life Mr. Bennett comes from down by the sea. He comes from New Brunswick, the province that gave us Tilley and Foster and Blair and a long list of other too numerous to mention.

When a young man—he is still on the sunny side of fifty—Bennett would not be a student, brilliant and eloquent and it wasn't long before he was earning a big annual income as editor for the "P. I." and a dot of real estate. He certainly has conducted an active part in political life.

ENTERS PARLIAMENT.
In 1911 he entered parliament on the crest of the wave that swept the conservatives in office, and has been increasing his usefulness and prestige ever since. His first speech in the House of Commons—made in moving the address in reply to the speech from the Throne—established for him a reputation as a debater of exceptional ability, and although the quality of his speech is frequently impeached by its quantity, he has an unerring, irresistible manner that peaks of the vastness of the prairie and is impressive in style.

AS STRIKE OF INDEPENDENCE.
He is not what one can strictly call a party man. He has sometimes been referred to as a Radical-Conservative of the Lord Randolph Churchill style. He is probably more of a realist than anything else. Certainly his conduct in parliament has been more the attitude of a man who lives by his wits, perceiving sharply and thinking accordingly. That of one who sticks to the old and traditions and reasons stubbornly. Progressive and conservative, he nevertheless finds his allies more naturally among the "conservative" democrats of the "Vulgar-Nickel Steeple" school than among the professed radicals who appear only to feel the thing ought to be beating beneath the thing they are.

FIGHTING A RAILROAD
When in 1914 the government proposed a certain line of aid to the C. N. R. Mr. Bennett, rightly or wrongly, but certainly honestly opposed it with vigor and ability. His opposition brought him into sharp contact with the brilliant lance of Arthur Meighen.

And for some time the two were pitted against each other in the House of Commons. Mr. Bennett's opposition was certainly a more honorable place to do so than on the battlefield.

I remain,
Your loving son,
H. G. LUY.

DO IT BEFORE WINTER
Paint your house, repair the leaks in the roof, put the eavestroughs in proper condition, and make any other repairs necessary. It is your castle, the place where your happiest moments are spent, and a winter of bleakness will be assured if you attend to these things now. Your wife wants you to do it whether she tells you so or not.

Perhaps you wait a week or two and then the holes or leading to the roof get to the barn, or else when you build it. Women should not be compelled to spend five or ten minutes scraping mud off their feet every time they step out of doors, for it is an uncomfortable job in cold winter months.

Inspect your fence and make necessary repairs. It is more pleasant to do it now than freeze your fingers in the dead of winter. You know it from experience.

Don't forget your stock. If there are any holes in the side of your barn, repair them too. A shivering animal does not think much of its owner, and neither do most people.

Get your roads in better condition. Just how would you like to be a horse, and strain every muscle in an endeavor to pull a load through a lot of sticky mud on the long and weary road to town, and back? Wouldn't like it, would you? Neither does the horse.

Make up your mind to go to the church this winter. Make up your mind, and live up to the make. It is an honor to the church and it will do you a lot of good.

Do a lot of other things now, that when a winter comes on you will wish you had done in the summer time.

Don't leave anything until tomorrow. For tomorrow you may be dead, and then you will not get the credit of doing things that others leave undone.

If you can't stay on this earth for ever, at least leave a record for something behind you.

Mrs. Rogers Went Over.

A Minister in a small country village, who was noted for his absent-mindedness, was once observed to stop suddenly in the middle of his sermon and heard to mutter:—

"I knew she would—I knew she would!"

"After the service was over someone asked him the reason."

"Dear me," said he, "did I? Well, you know, from the pulpit I can just see old Mrs. Rogers' garden, and this morning she was pulling up a cabbage and I thought to myself, 'Now, if that cabbage comes up suddenly it'll go over, and just then it came up and over she went.'"

Letter From 105th

Mrs. Melvin Wood, Farmington, recently received the following letter from her son, H. G. LUY, of the 105th Battalion, now in England:—

Dear Mother,
I received your letter safe, and I am glad to hear you are all well. We may not go to the front for a while, but I would like to go soon. We are all through with our course. Well, Mama, if I do as good shooting in the future as I have done in the past, I will be a sniper sure. We have yet to get one hundred and twenty-five marks and I got fifty already.

My brave young heroes coming from the front line wounded. They would step into the ranks and help drive the enemy back to their own country and change them so for their awful deeds that they would not want to exist in the days of the future. I got seven bullets in a minute, and made thirty-seven bull's eyes; so that would mean thirty-seven Germans I had been at the front. I wish some of the boys home could see some of the brave young heroes coming from the front line wounded. They would step into the ranks and help drive the enemy back to their own country and change them so for their awful deeds that they would not want to exist in the days of the future. I wish some of the boys home could see some of the brave young heroes coming from the front line wounded. They would step into the ranks and help drive the enemy back to their own country and change them so for their awful deeds that they would not want to exist in the days of the future. I got seven bullets in a minute, and made thirty-seven bull's eyes; so that would mean thirty-seven Germans I had been at the front.
