Why A Farm Needs A Milwaukee Air Power Water System

Combined in a few words the answer is: Because it is the best investment a farmer can make. Time spent in carrying water, in pumping water and in taking the stock to the watering trough is time that can be used to better advantage at other work. The matter of home comfort also is important. Isn't the wife of the farmer just as good as the city woman? What about the children? Is there any reason why they should not have a home equipped with a bath room and inside toilet just like their city relations? And to think what it means in case of fire to have a hose handy and eighty pounds water pressure to fight it with. Call in the next time you are in town and look over our demonstrating outfit. Currie & Moraghan, 71 Queen St. Charlottetown. 2008-8-2-41.

JUST A GIRL

BY JANE PHELPS A WONDERFUL WOMAN

CHAPTER 77. Although the first room would have answered very well, both Mrs. Fagin and I wanted to see the other before we decided. I was so happy, so astonished at her kindness to us—two girls who had no claim whatsoever on her—that I chattered like a child of six when we took the car. The other room was quite a distance away, and Mrs. Fagin had to get home to look after her roomers. "This is the best place," she said as we found the address. "I mean it is the best locality. See how busy the street is, how many people are out. If you want to do business you have got to go where the people are." I agreed with her—as who would not? But when we saw the inside of the place I almost changed my mind. It was not in nearly as good shape as the first place, and Mrs. Fagin was dilapidated, in fact. The only thing I could see in its favor, aside from the location, was the tiny closet-like room at the end of the hall. "But Mrs. Fagin saw possibilities at once. 'You've got to go in here,' she spoke of the rear room, 'shelves can go up above it. There can be a little pipe set in the roof' which was simply a sort of slanting lean-to, and that will carry off any smoke or smells." "But everything is in such awful condition!" I objected. "The other place looked more attractive." "Mostly plain dirt. After we scrub it out here, you'll see. My business partner assured me. 'Of course you know best, but will that real estate man do all that is necessary to make it clean and nice?' It will have to be painted, the floor fixed, and see, some of the windows are cracked." "I'll make him fix it up." Afterward I knew that she had spoken with more than a little truth; but also that she had determined to do what we wanted done herself rather than have us disappointed. The room was about 20 by 30 feet. There was one good-sized window and glass in the door, so giving light enough during the day. As we would close about six or half past six o'clock, our electric bill would be small. Save for a few months in the winter it would be nothing. After we had planned a while, and I had written down everything the place needed to make it attractive, we hurried back to the real estate office. "I thought you would choose that place," the agent said to Mrs. Fagin. "It is better situated for your business." "It is in awful shape. Here's what it needs," and she reached for the paper. "Whew! This looks as if it's not worth the much to it for the owner," he exclaimed as he ran his eyes down the page. "Mostly soap and water and paint," laconically returned Mrs. Fagin. "I see—um—floor painted. I don't know about that. Paint and labor are both very high now, and that floor would need— 'Three good coats!' Mrs. Fagin interrupted. "When will it be ready?" she asked. "You are taking a lot for granted," Mrs. Fagin said, "I noticed his eyes twinkling as he looked at her. 'Sure I am. Don't I know who I'm dealing with? Ain't I paid you 'oo much rent for years? You've got a chance now to square it, and you ain't the man to refuse a poor widow a little help.' 'You would never make a mistake in your nationality. The blarney stone rolled your way all right.' 'I asked you when it could be ready?' I am in a hurry to sell you them panes." He looked at another book, did a little figuring, called some painter on the telephone, then said: "It will take three weeks." "The rent not to commence until it is all ready," she returned, "and be sure you don't disappoint us in the time." "Don't worry, it will be ready. I will choose the panes." "You wonderful woman!" I said hugging Mrs. Fagin's arm as we hurried home. "You wonderful, wonderful woman!" Tomorrow—Busy Days

SAYS TANLAC MERITS ALL PRAISE GIVEN IT

Mrs. G. S. Cook Tells How Master Medicine Overcame Her Five Years Of Misery From Stomach Trouble.

"Before I had finished my first bottle of Tanlac I knew I had found just the medicine I needed," said Mrs. G. S. Cook, of 18 Hurd St., Halifax, Nova Scotia, a sort while ago. "During the past five years I have endured all the miseries that go with a bad case of indigestion. I had no appetite to speak of, and there were many days when I scarcely ate a thing. In fact, I always dreaded to eat at all, for I knew so well what it would cost. Even the lightest foods would ferment, causing gas, bloating, cramp, cramping pains and severe palpitation of the heart. My nerves were so completely shattered that the least noise would upset me. I had headaches that were so severe sometimes I just had to take my bed and lie there for hours. At night I often had a pressure on my chest like I was smothering, and this, together with my extreme nervousness, often kept me awake for hours, and always in the morning I felt almost too weak and lifeless to move. I just had a weak, draggy feeling all the time, and the east exertion would tire me out so completely I would have to lie down and rest. 'I kept hearing and reading about Tanlac and finally I concluded that a medicine that had helped so many others might help me, so I got a bottle. Well, it helped me from the first, and now that I have finished my fourth bottle I feel better than I have felt for years.' My appetite is just splendid now, and I can eat just anything I want and am never troubled the least bit with indigestion. I am free from those terrible headaches, my nerves are calm and steady and I sleep at night just like I used to when a child. It is a real pleasure for me now to attend to my household affairs, for I feel good all the time. My experience has convinced me that Tanlac deserves all the praise it is getting, and I am only too glad to tell about it." Tanlac is sold in Charlottetown by Reddin Bros., in Montague by J. Mabon, J. P. White, Murray River H. M. Chisholm, North Tryon, R. H. Cameron & Co., Crapaud, and H. P. Cohoon, Murray Harbor.
