SUMMARY

(Special to The Guardian)
LONDON, May 31.—The great battle on the San, to which the Russians fell back after retreating over half of Galicia, still rages, but the Russians assert they have assumed the offensive. This statement is taken in London to mean that another mighty German effort has expended itself. Though the fate of Przemyśl is still uncertain, it is contended in Allied circles that the Austro-Germans have failed in their purpose to crush the Russians in Galicia and that their rush forward, costing as it did thousands of lives, has fallen short, just as did their repeated thrusts at Warsaw and Calais. An official statement issued to-night by the Austrian War Office makes no claim to any noteworthy advances in the east, dismissing the Przemyśl region with a brief declaration that the fighting continues and asserting that there have been no serious engagements elsewhere on the eastern front. The Russians, on the other hand, claim victories virtually along the entire front, especially beyond the Dniester, where they say they have taken 7,000 prisoners. In the west neither side has done much, although the French continue gnawing and harassing the Germans on the Yser Canal.

Italy has retaliated for the Austrian air and naval raids along her east coast by bombarding Pola, an Austrian naval base, from a dirigible, while Italian destroyers have made a dash on Montefalcone, doing considerable damage to Austrian shipping and getting away unscathed.

German submarines have been extraordinarily active, the news to-night adding one more neutral vessel to the growing list of victims; this was the Danish steamer Seaberg, which was sunk forty miles north-east of the Yser. All hands were rescued. The English press is following the German and American exchanges on the Lusitania tragedy with the keenest interest, and there is much speculation as to probable American action.

(Special to The Guardian)
PARIS, May 31.—The following official communication has been issued from the War Office:—On the Yser front there has been an artillery engagement. In North Arras we made progress from Sochez to Carency and have taken possession of Malon Mill and the German trenches extending to the sugar refinery at Souchez. We made about 50 prisoners. In the region of Labyrinth, after repulsing a German counter-attack, we organized the positions we gained. The enemy delivered no infantry attack today. He merely bombarded our front. On the outskirts of La Pretre Forest there has been only artillery action. In the course of an engagement on May 30 we took two machine guns.

MORE VICTIMS OF POISONOUS GASES

ITALIAN PROGRESS HAS BEEN BRILLIANT

King Taking Active Part in Fighting. In Attack on Mount Baldo Took Charge of 75 mm Gun. Expect More Determined Resistance Shortly.

GENEVA, May 31.—News despatches reaching here say King Victor Emmanuel intends taking an active part in the war like King Albert of Belgium. During a recent attack by Italian forces on Mount Baldo His Majesty took charge of one of the big 75 millimetre guns firing many shots himself. The capture of Mount Baldo which dominates Lake Garda is being described in Swiss newspapers as a brilliant affair. Italian infantry moved forward by moonlight from East and West of the mountain. When they reached the top they attacked, and after resistance the Austrians surrendered. The Italians are continuing their advance in Adige Valley and the fighting in deep snow for the Pass of St. Elvio is still going on. On Carinthia frontier the Italians are holding most of the passes and strategic points. Swiss opinion is that so far the Italians encountered only Austrian reserves. They will meet more determined resistance when the seasoned troops from Russia come into action. A report from Geneva says the Russians already feel less pressure as a result of the Italian offensive which surprised the Austrian and German leaders and caused them to change plans.

According to their statements several shells were fired at the steamer and this was the only warning they had. After the crew got into the boats a torpedo was fired into the engine room.

WASHINGTON IS DISAPPOINTED

Over German Reply to American Note Re Lusitania.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—Germany's reply to the American note concerning the sinking of the Lusitania, with the loss of more than 100 American lives, produced a feeling of profound disappointment here. Dissatisfaction at the failure of Germany to answer the demands of the United States was reflected in Government circles generally.

President Wilson had retired early before the text arrived—but from a reading of the summary published to-day, and American Gerard's forecasts, he had an accurate impression of what it contained.

Secretary Bryan would make no comment. Other Cabinet officers were reticent, but there was little concealment anywhere that the answer from Berlin had produced a grave situation in the relations between the United States and Germany. Just what course of action the United States will pursue is undetermined.

Persons close to President Wilson have learned that he is determined to obtain reparation for the Lusitania victims and assurances of respect for American rights in future, and that failing this, he would not hesitate to sever diplomatic relations with Germany. In German quarters here to-night it was reiterated that the Lusitania was armed.

To controvert this, the United States has proof, gathered before the American note was sent, that there were no guns aboard. Furthermore, the British Government entered into an informal agreement with the United States early in the war to see that no British vessel left American ports armed.
