KINGS CO. FAIR AND EXHIBITION

(Continued from page one) also won first in a class of aged Ayrshires, with a type cow, having a very large development of udder and milk veins. The second place went to George Annear and the third to Andrew Lavers. All the Ayrshire classes were well contested, which shows the great improvement that is being made in this class. Up to this year Georgetown show has never been noted for its Short-horns, but this year some individuals were brought out that certainly would do credit to any ring. The first prize Short-horn bull owned by Ferdinand Macaulay of St. Georges, is large, lengthy and typical, and he is now being offered for sale, would be a good buy for any breeder. The Short-horn cows were not quite up to the mark, and all of them would stand a lot more flesh and they bear evidence of being good milkers. The Short-horn yearling class was particularly good. George Martin of New Perth, showed two excellent heifers, both large, well fleshed and type bodies. It really is a credit to King's County and you have been shown at the Provincial Fair in Charlottetown. Mr. Martin also showed an excellent Short-horn bull calf. Although he has only lately begun to breed pure Short-horns, Mr. Martin is evidently on the right track, and knows well how to feed. The Short-horn classes, as a whole, were a credit to the show. Holsteins were not out in great numbers and those that did appear were not in particularly good fit. Jerseys were well represented, six beautiful matern 1 cows coming out in the aged class. These were all large, type bodies and of good constitution and gave evidence of being deep milkers.

EXPERIMENTAL FARM EXHIBIT.

The Experimental Station at Charlottetown, under Prof. Clark's capable supervision, had a large stall about 30 ft. long. As a part of the exhibit had to be erected yesterday at the Summerside Exhibition it was not possible to have a full presentation of the Farm's products. However, the showing was a very representative one. Some interesting examples of farm buildings and farm equipment were exhibited. There was a great deal of interest and discussion regarding the various features shown by the Farm to visitors. The superintendent, Mr. Clark, supplied unlimited information and advantage was taken of the quantity of literature available in connection with plant diseases, best varieties of cereals for island cultivation, etc. A fine display of various flowers filled the back-ground of the stall.

HORSES.

Mr. Hugh Greenlees acted as judge and expressed his pleasure at seeing such a good show of horses for a county show. There were a few extra fine horses that would have done credit to any show. The various classes were fairly well represented, only one class failing to appear in the list. The various breeders showing by continuing on the lines seen yesterday were sure to succeed in having a 1 stock in the near future. There were some extra good Clydesdales, one horse in particular in the Percheron breed, being a splendid animal. The light horses also were of a fairly good class.

PIGS.

The chief exhibitors of pigs were Stewart Brothers, of Alliston, Keenan Brothers, of Georgetown, and Patrick Fogarty, of Glenham. Mr. Fogarty exhibited this year for the first time, and brought out a beautiful 6 months old sow.

APPLES.

Mr. G. A. Moore, who acted as judge, stated that the display of fruit this year was most excellent and far ahead of that shown at Charlottetown, taking into consideration the fact that the fruit crop has been practically a failure this year. Mr. A. A. Moore, of Pownal, capably fulfilled the duties of judging this department.

Apples in spite of the weather, made a splendid showing. The magnificent colour of some splendid specimens of the Duchess of Oldenburg, and Red Astrachan were universally admired. Hyslop crab apples also made a very good show. Winter varieties were pretty well coloured although hardly fully matured. Northern Sky, Golden Russet and Ben Davies, all winter apples, are included in the display. Among the fall apples shown are Alexandra, Gravenstein, Fameuse and Wealthy, the last is particularly well represented.

A small display of Bartlett and Favourite pears, and considerable variety of fine Arctic and Brabant plums, damsons, etc., is shown at the end of the central stall. This stall also contains a very fine collection of potted plants, and a stand containing 24 kinds of sweet pea blooms, at most all of which have four blooms to a spray. All the classes of flowers were fairly well filled, considering the extraordinary wet weather of the past few days.

VEGETABLES.

In squashes, Imperial, Hubbard and Mammoth had five really splendid examples. Potatoes, though smaller than usual were of extra good quality. Field carrots comprised some fine large specimens. This was the case with the various field roots, mangolds and turnips shown.

A fine collection of assorted vegetables of over 40 different specimens gained a first prize, while the second went to a collection of 30 different varieties.

Beets held 21 entries alone, and onions also were very numerous, although perhaps a little green in some cases.

Corn had a fair show, as also had the small collection of tomatoes both red and green. In parsnips the fine collection exhibited were far superior to those shown at Charlottetown.

In carrots, no less than 27 different entries were shown, including some very fine specimens. Cauliflower has an extra good exhibit, some splendid heads being shown, while the display of citron melons has never been equalled here before.

DOMESTIC COOKERY, ETC.

The exhibit of home-made bread, in both white and brown varieties, was a worthy one, the grain and texture of the loaves being very fine. Buns also made a good show, while six big samples of cake with heavy icing made up a very tempting display. The show of jams, preserved fruits, etc., in jars was also very creditable, considering the poor crop that has been forthcoming this year.

HOME INDUSTRIES, ETC.

There were no less than nine exhibits of patch work quilts, and several of these were really handsome examples in gorgeous black and white colours. About a dozen home-made hearthrugs in bold design and colour in substantial materials made a very fine line in this department. One in particular showed a pattern in high relief in colours on a black ground, combining the rose, thistle and shamrock.

Three very fine examples of sofa pillows in floral and patriotic designs in painted silk and thread work, and also a beautiful cushion worked in silk. Specimens of fancy art work, crocheted collars in black and white, and a pair of pillow shams also in black and white, and a centrepiece in linen, embroidered in gold and colours was a handsome piece of work.

Two or three pairs of bedroom slippers, with dainty blue and pink ribbons looked very pretty on this stall. Tea cloths were also represented, one especially pretty design in colours with embroidered edging, securing first prize.

Two other fancy art squares were also worthy of note. Fancy art wood-work was represented by a three-legged stool decorated in paper work. In the oil and water colour section a winter scene in oils gained first prize. A study of swans in oil and a water colour of pastoral life were worthy of notice, as also was a pretty little sunset river scene in water colours.

A hearthrug in tartan pattern and a woven counterpane in black and orange were very creditable productions. Two or three rolls of white flannel, twills and dress material were also in view.

SHEEP

There was a good showing of sheep, but as the weather was very wet, it was impossible for our representative to get full particulars regarding them. Stewart Brothers, of Alliston, Keenan Brothers, of Georgetown, E. B. McLaren, of Georgetown, and Edward Poole, of Lower Montague, were the chief exhibitors in long wool, grey faces, C. B. Clay, of Bridgetown, D. A. Wilson, of Cardigan, and T. J. Donaghy, of Roseneath, were the only competitors.

CHEESE.

Three fine factory cheeses were shown, all of which gained prizes, the points gained being 96, 95 1/2 and 95 1/2.

BUTTER.

Butter in crocks, boxes, prints and fancy shapes presented a fine variety in colour and texture. The ladies of the Georgetown Red Cross Society supplied a splendid dinner or luncheon in the town hall during the day, of which many of the visitors took advantage.
