

IMPORTANT READING MATTER SELECTED FROM THIS WEEK'S NEWS FOR THE GUARDIAN'S SATURDAY SUBSCRIBERS

MONDAY

The many friends of Mrs. J. C. Clark, Amherst, formerly Miss Mae Marchbank, will be pleased to hear that she is slowly recovering from her recent severe illness.

The marriage took place at St. Mary's Cathedral, Wednesday of Francis L. Brennan, of Montague, P. E. I., a native of Enfield, to Miss Ellen Cummings, a popular member of the staff of the A. O'Connor Co., and daughter of Donald Cummings of No. 37 Penwick Street.

On Wednesday evening, July 5th, at the Methodist parsonage, Kensington, the marriage of Miss Ethel May, daughter of Rev. W. E. and Mrs. Johnson, to C. Cleveland Baker, son of Herbert Baker, of Margate, was solemnized by the father of the bride.

On Friday evening June 23rd, a number of friends assembled at the home of William Champion, Spring Valley, to bid fare well to his son Benjamin and daughter, Mrs. A. McKay who intend leaving for Calgary, Alberta in a short time.

After spending the evening pleasantly by singing and various other amusements ice cream and cake was served to the assembled guests by the fair young ladies of Spring Valley.

During the course of the evening Mr. Champion and Mrs. McKay were presented with very handsome remembrances of their Prince Edward Island home and the following address was read.

As your brother may be permitted in the near future to visit your island home.

On Tuesday last, 4th inst., the funeral of the late John Thompson, of the well known fish merchant and prosperous farmer of Darnley, Lot 18, took place to St. Mary's Church, Indian River. A large number of friends and acquaintances attended the last rites of the deceased so well.

The horse races at Vernon River Saturday were well attended about 1000 being present, and a splendid afternoon sport was enjoyed by an orderly attendance who witnessed some keen racing.

The annual convention of the Churches of Christ, held in the Central Christian Church in this City, opened on Saturday night with social and devotional service at 7.45 followed by an address of welcome by Mr. Floyd, the minister of the Church.

At 3.30 p. m. Rev. Mr. Harding conducted devotional service and Rev. G. F. Camp of East Point preached an excellent sermon on Self Expression, based on the Text "By their fruits shall ye know them."

At the evening service Rev. W. H. Harding preached a most forceful sermon, on "Opportunities for service."

Mr. Harding was formerly located at Summerside some ten years ago and has returned recently to take up work with the same church. Besides the many delegates present from the different congregations of

Years of Suffering

A Desperate Case of Catarrh in the Head

"My father had catarrh in the head for a long time. It was such a desperate case that he didn't know what to do, but one of his friends recommended Hood's Sarsaparilla. He got a bottle immediately, and as soon as he commenced taking it he felt relief and after the use of two other bottles he was completely cured. He was so pleased he has ever since recommended Hood's Sarsaparilla." Dele Aline Begin, Lewis, P. Q.

Christian churches in this province, were several visitors from abroad and three ministerial students in the persons of Stewart and Isaac Linder and Tyler Warren who are at home spending their holidays. The convention will be continued until tonight when the closing service will be held at 7.45.

This morning at 10 a. m. the business session will be held and in the afternoon at 2.30 a session will be held which will be addressed by several speakers including Mr. Harding and Mr. Bell.

Last evening in the First Methodist Church, Rev. Jacob Heaney, who will supply for a day, preached his first sermon in that Church, Rev. Mr. Heaney, in his opening remarks, expressed his pleasure on being stationed with the largest congregation in his native province and said it was since being ordained 10 years ago.

He looked for the co-operation and sympathy of the congregation and by their help would make the coming year a successful one. He tendered thanks for the hearty reception accorded him and Mrs. Heaney. He congratulated the congregation on the purchase of the new Memorial Hall, the parsonage and the new organ and stated that they were possessed of many advantages conducive to success.

God's work. His sermon was a particularly strong one on "The Sanctuary," its significance and helpfulness, and he spoke from Psalms, 20: 2. He typified the Church, a Sanctuary, as the outward symbol of God's presence and of helpfulness referred to the individual and collective efforts of minister and congregation in advancing Christ's Kingdom. Mr. Heaney is a ready and fluent speaker with a delivery which keeps every one's attention ever on his remarks and it can be confidently expected that his ministry here will be one of great benefit and not entirely unfruitful. At yesterday's services in the First Methodist Church W. T. Wellmer officiated at the organ in the absence of Mr. Wright.

Saturday evening an inquest was begun to enquire into the death of Arthur Dalziel, a truckman, who died at the P. E. I. Hospital at 7.30.30 p. m. Saturday as the result of a regrettable accident at the foundation of the new Zion Church.

The following composed the jury: F. P. McCarron, (foreman), John Jenkins, Fred Large, J. G. McFadyen, Edmund Toombs, Benj. Carter, N. Chandler. The inquiring was conducted by Coroner H. D. Johnson.

The following witnesses were examined: J. M. Clark, contractor, Dr. McLaughlin, Robert Dalziel, Ernest Barrett, Thomas Rice, E. Roche, and Geo. Peterson.

Nothing of importance was elicited outside the details of the accident and the details to be obtained the evidence of some as to the possible weight lifting strength of the derrick which caused Dalziel's death, others who witnessed the accident more closely than those who gave evidence Saturday night, and other testimony not then obtainable.

J. M. Clark's evidence was of what he saw after the derrick struck Dalziel and respecting the derrick. Dr. McLaughlin testified to performing a post mortem examination at G. D. Wright's undertaking rooms with coroner H. D. Johnson, M. D. The head was fractured from the top, near the centre down the right side to about an inch in front of the right ear and was internally injured. The right eye was protruding. The neck was also dislocated and either injury in itself would cause death. When called Saturday morning he found Dalziel bleeding from the eye and the nostrils and saw there was no hope of recovery. Thomas Rice, who erected the derrick according to instructions, told of his erection at the cellar. Ernest Barrett had lifted the derrick mast, the top of which had inflicted the injury, off the deceased. E. Roche, who was at the windlass, said the derrick dropped quickly, practically no warning was given. The height of the mast was 24 feet and deceased was about 25 feet away. Geo. Peterson testified as to the hauling of stone. He, Arthur and Robert were hauling together and the three teams were at the cellar. His load was lifted off first, then Robert's and Arthur's last. Robert was at the tail of the truck and Robert was standing near the horse's head when the derrick fell. Robert Dalziel's testimony was of a similar nature.

The enquiry will be continued tonight at 7.30. Dalziel had been engaged in hauling stone for the foundation from the quarry near City. As one of the stones was being swung off the truck a guy rope gave way and the derrick collapsed, the end striking Dalziel on the side of the head, as he was standing at the tail of his truck. He was picked up unconscious and removed to the Prince Edward Island Hospital, where he died about twenty minutes past ten, his neck having been dislocated by the blow.

His brother Robert and George Peterson, two other truckmen were with him at the time. The latter was standing by the horses head, to lead him away when the stone was off the truck. His brother was standing some distance out.

Two men were working the windlass and Arthur was standing close by the truck. The stone which was on the derrick at the time the accident occurred, was a very large one, being almost a horse-load in itself. He had swung on the truck the other one weighing only about one hundred pounds. Arthur had adjusted the books on the stone and stood on the tail of the truck to shove the stone away when it was lifted up. The weight was scarcely off the truck when the derrick started to sway. As it fell, Peterson had a narrow escape himself, being struck by the guy rope. Dalziel never spoke after he was picked up.

It would look as if the surging of the wire had loosened the clamp or clutch, which holds the wire in place. This clamp is bolted over the wire and secured by two nuts, but in some way it had worked loose and the end of the wire pulled through.

J. M. Clark, contractor, says that the derrick was perfectly new and had only been in use for a day. He had put on new wire guys and new blocks and considered the derrick was absolutely safe. He could not understand how the clamp had become loosened. Probably if there had been a steady strain on the rope, the accident might not have happened.

The deceased was a son of John Dalziel, and resided at 12 Upper Queen Street. He was 27 years of age and leaves a father and mother, three brothers, John, William and Robert and two sisters, Minnie and Fanny. His mother is taking the news of his death very hard and Saturday morning she swooned away. It is feared that the shock may seriously affect her.

Young Dalziel was a young man of fine character and had a good record. He was very popular and a good workman and contributed to the support of the home the members of which now keenly feel the bereavement which they are called on to bear. Much sympathy has been felt for them in their sorrow and for the young man who was called away under such sad circumstances.

In Zion Church yesterday morning the pastor, Rev. R. G. Strathie, made the following reference to Dalziel's death:

"We are told by the Apostle Paul to rejoice with those who do rejoice and to weep with those that weep as well as rejoicing. Yesterday the sad news quickly passed over the city of the sudden and accidental death of Arthur Dalziel who was employed by the Quarry Company that furnished the stone for the basement of the new Zion. He was unloading stone from his cart when the fall of the derrick caught him unaware and almost instantly crushed out his life. From this pulpit I have more than once told you that sacrifice is the price of progress; and now the truth is brought home to us in our own church work, and our new Zion has had its baptism in even new undertakings that has not exacted its toll in the lives of workers. Huskisson who promoted the first railway was killed by the train that made its first journey over the rails his enterprise caused to be laid. Within the past few weeks we have been almost appalled to read in our newspapers of the numbers of operators who have yielded their lives in exploiting the new art of air navigation. One short month ago the ministers of war of France was killed by an uncontrollable air machine, and the premier of France lies today with broken limbs as the result of the same accident. A family who works in this church had the sad duty of this week of laying to rest the body of a loved son suddenly called to give up his life while pursuing the path of a citizen-disaster. Such accidents sometimes call them—will happen despite our best care. We nevertheless sincerely regret them, and in the one that has come so closely home to us because it happened where the new Zion is being built our hearts are filled with great sorrow at its occurrence. The bereaved father and mother an all the relatives of this young man know that Zion Church has its deepest sympathy."

The Prince Albert Daily News of June 29, 1911, touching on the then coming marriage of Miss Lucy Maud Montgomery, Park Corner, has the following, which is quite a tribute to the Province's novelist.

With the placing of her latest, and perhaps her best work upon the troubled sea of publication, comes the announcement of the approaching marriage of L. M. Montgomery, familiarly spoken of locally as Maud Montgomery, novelist and poetess, to the Rev. Mr. McDonald, of Prince Edward Island. During her stay of about twelve months in this city, Miss Montgomery made numerous lasting friendships, the parties to which all join in most sincere good wishes for future happiness.

The work referred to as being her title of "The Story Girl," one pre-eminent in its delightfully heart-interesting simplicity, the keynote upon which all of her works are based. The former work of this authoress, Anne of Green Gables, its sequel, Anne of Avolea together with Killmeny of the Orchard are peculiarly interesting, weaving their web around the branches of the simple unaffected child-life, but the writer does not hesitate to say that this work "The Story Girl" is Maud Montgomery's masterpiece. The dedication note to my cousin— in remembrance of old days, old dreams, and old laughter," gives a refreshing and delightful thrill of interest to the reader who is accustomed to looking more deeply than the surface of the scenes of life. It whispers enticingly of scenes from childhood which cannot all be imagination; it gives a lingering suspicion of family traditions true to living ideals—some ideals, perhaps, which were in times past part of the authoress' own child-life. No writer has ever portrayed more truthfully the L. M. Montgomery's sweet, unaffected ingenuousness of childhood, with its frank, outspoken candor, so dear to the thoughts and lives of true humanity.

Miss Montgomery's poems give an inkling of the height of her aspirations, her earnestness to reach the hearts of the literary world, with thoughts of no other reward. "Failure," published in the Congregationalist, Boston, Mass. some time ago, particularly exemplifies this in the verse: "I would not count it failure if in vain, Of some high task fruition to obtain. But did not win the guerdon of success; If my poor effort no base thought did know, I would not call it so."

I strove with earnest self-forgetfulness whilst a later effort, "I Thank Thee," bespeaks a realization of a higher life, and perhaps at this time of her life may recur to her with twofold inspiration in the words of verse:

"I thank thee, Father, for the splendid meed Of my to-morrows; they are bright and fair, With the dear hope of many a worthy deed, And many an inspiration that they make My life most wondrous rich and fine, With love and loneliness almost divine."

TWO DESPERATE CASES These Two Men Owe Their Lives To GIN PILLS.

Stone in the bladder is a direct result of kidney trouble—one of the results of neglecting the kidneys that have taken cold or are slightly out of order. Mr. Herman and Mr. Lessard whose letters are given below, were in a bad way until they tried GIN PILLS which cured their trouble by removing the cause.

There is no other kidney pill anywhere that has the merits of GIN PILLS. Sick and diseased kidneys respond quickly to their treatment. Many a case of incipient Bright's or Diabetes has been cured by them. They cleanse, restore and build up the entire urinary tract.

573 JAMES ST. NORTH, HAMILTON, ONT. GENTLEMEN.

Four years ago I was taken down with inflammation of the bladder. During the attacks, which occurred more and more frequently, the agony was unbearable, and I became so weak I could not walk across the floor. The doctors could do nothing to relieve or cure me.

My wife sent for a box of GIN PILLS to try and see if they would help me. From the first they did me good—the pain was relieved at once, and the attacks began to come at longer intervals. I continued taking the pills for six weeks, and then, to my surprise and delight, the stone I sent you some time ago came from me and my pain stopped. It is now three years since GIN PILLS cured me. I have had no return of the trouble, and I have not lost a day's work on account of it since.

There is not the slightest doubt that GIN PILLS saved my life. Yours gratefully, JOHN HERMAN.

JOLIETTE, P.Q.

"During August last, I went to Montreal to consult a specialist as I had been suffering terribly with stone in the bladder. He decided to operate but said the stone was too large to remove and too hard to crush. I returned home and was recommended by a friend to try GIN PILLS.

They relieved the pain. I took two boxes and went back to the specialist. He said the stone was smaller but he could not remove it although he tried for two hours and a half. I returned home and continued to take GIN PILLS, and to my great surprise and joy, I passed the stone.

GIN PILLS are the best medicine in the world and because they did me so much good, I will recommend them all the rest of my life." J. ALBERT LESSARD.
