Fierce Fighting On Russians Front

PETROGRAD, Feb. 24.—The following official communication was issued to-night: "In the region of Riga and Dvina on the Ogrs sector, German aeroplanes have dropped bombs. In the region of Ogrs the enemy developed violent fighting which was followed by a movement toward our trenches of scouts who were clad in white and were repulsed by our fire. On the Dvinsk sector near Puniewesch Railway and North of Czartorysk our detachments checked the enemy and made some prisoners. In the region of Polish, Southwest of Olyka, the enemy sent women, probably Russians, to work in the positions most exposed to our fire. In Galicia, Northwest of Tarnopol near the village of Ghadki and Verobievka we exploded a small mine and occupied the Crater. The enemy vainly bombarded the scene of the explosion with mines and trench mortars, throwing projectiles which made in their flight a noise like that of a revolving propeller. In the Black Sea, near the Bosphorus, one of our submarines was twice attacked by two aeroplanes but without result. The submarine destroyed a sailing ship loaded with coal. On the Caucasus front we continue to press the enemy successfully."

CONFISCATING HIDDEN FOOD STUFFS

LONDON, Feb. 26.—A despatch to the Morning Post from Budapest says:—"Consternation has been caused among the bakers and peasantry throughout the country, who are hiding enormous quantities of flour and wheat, through the inauguration of a new method for a proportional distribution of foodstuffs, under which the authorities have begun a systematic search and are confiscating all hidden stocks. The entire country is divided into districts and six thousand inspectors are employed in the search. Prizes have been offered to persons giving information concerning hidden stocks."

TALES TOLD BY MEN ON THE FIGHTING LINES ON LAND AND SEA

NEW ZEALANDERS AT GALLIOLI

In a letter to his brother, Pte. Fred Cooper of the Third Auckland Infantry describes his experiences with the New Zealand forces attached to the Dardanelles expedition. Pte. Cooper was in the second boat to make the beach on the famous landing on April 25 when the British forces suffered such heavy casualties. He came through without a scratch, on this occasion, but was wounded in the leg some seven weeks later during an assault on Turkish trenches. His description follows: "After nine weeks good hard training I left New Zealand in December, 1914, with the second reinforcements. We landed at Port Suez after six weeks uneventful voyage. From there we went to Carlo, and that city was our home for nearly three months. The main body were down on the Suez Canal when we got to Egypt, but the little job down there did not last long. We were attached to the main division when they returned to Carlo, and immediately we started work in the form of divisional training. This lasted two months. We marched on the average 30 miles a day, carrying a weight of 84 pounds per man. This may not seem much to anyone who has not been in Egypt. But, add to the work the fact that we were training with the thermometer registering between 100 and 110 in the shade, and marching up to our boot-tops in sand, and you get some idea of what the business was like. "But it is a long lane that has no turning, and after we had finished our divisional training, we had an easy time until the second week in April, 1915. One night orders came to pack up and be ready to move at 10 p. m. We left Carlo that night and something told us we were in for it, but never were troops more fit and anxious for fighting than we were. By 8 o'clock next morning we were in Alexandria and aboard the transport. We left that night and all wondered when we should see Egypt again. "It took us three days to get to Lemnos, and there we stayed until the night of April 24. "From Lemnos we could hear the guns of our fleet throwing iron into the Turks by the ton, and how we longed to get nearer. Little knowing what was in store for us. "I was in the second boat to beach when we made the landing. It was just enough to drive a man mad. The few of us who went through often wonder how it happened. I was more than lucky, and when I got into them I forgot everything but that it was there to kill. "I lived and fought on these beaches for seven weeks until I got knocked over in a charge on the night of June 8. I was taken back to Egypt and stayed there until August 3 when we (the wounded) set sail for New Zealand, arriving on September 10. At present I am in Roturia receiving treatment for my leg, and hope soon to be ready for work once more.

The magnificent spirit of the French soldiers is beautifully illustrated by the dying words of Maurice Christophe Draterlin, a second lieutenant of the Alpine Infantry, who died in the arms of Lieut. Scott of the Canadian Field Ambulance Corps. Lieut. Scott is a brother of Mr. George Scott of this city and he writes stating that Lieut. Draterlin was wounded by a shell and he died he gasped this soul-stirring farewell: "I see the most beautiful moment of my life. I regret nothing, and I am happy as a king. I am happy to die that my country may be delivered. Say to my friends that I go to victory, a smile on my lips more joyous than that of all the martyrs of all times. We are men of a France—eternal France—must live. France must conquer."

Get ready your most gay apparel, prepare to celebrate the return of the conquering heroes of the great war. It will not be long now. We may not be there, but others will. Weep not for us, nor mourn us, for we die with a smile on our lips, with a superhuman joy in our hearts. "Vive la France! Vive la France! Victory is ours! Have confidence and stumle not. Patience. Be gay. Have confidence. That spirit says the Brantford, Ont. Expositor, is typical of the French soldiers. They are fighting for their country, that their children and their children's children may be spared from the horrors of war. It is a spirit that knows nothing but victory.

RIOTING ON INCREASE IN GERMANY

LONDON, Feb. 23.—The Rotterdam correspondent of the Daily Mail says he has reliable information to the effect that rioting is increasing in Germany. He telegraphs: "Protest meetings, especially by women, continue to be held, notwithstanding severe police measures. The most serious which has so far taken place in Germany occurred on the evening of February 19 in Bergedorf, a suburb of Hamburg, where a woman's meeting was held in front of the burgomaster's house in protest against the butter and fat regulations. It developed into a big street demonstration, people shouting 'down with the government.' The police, summoned from Hamburg, drove the screaming and struggling women into their homes after a street battle. A despatch from Zurich reports serious food protests and riots in Hanover."

SCARCITY OF LABOR STOPS SHIPPING

LIVERPOOL, Feb. 25.—Difficulty in getting a sufficiency of labor to load outgoing steamers and other considerations have necessitated alterations of the sailing dates of several trans-Atlantic mail boats.

The Lapland, which was scheduled to sail today will not sail until Friday, while the St. Paul leaves on March 4 instead of March 2. The Holland-American liner Rotterdam also has delayed her sailing from Falmonth until Friday.

OVER-WORKED MAN

BANK CASHIER ALMOST A WRECK—HOW HE REGAINED STRENGTH.

Charlottetown people will realize that this is one more link in the wonderful chain of evidence proving that Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic has no equal to create strength.

Mr. Chas. A. Ogle, Monrovia, Md., says: "For many years I was a School teacher, then for three years was Deputy Clerk in Frederick County, Md., and for the last three years I have been Cashier of the First National Bank. My nerves got in such a bad condition, and with poor assimilation of food, I was fast becoming a physical and mental wreck. Seeing an advertisement for Vinol I purchased a bottle and found it to be exactly what I needed. It has not only benefited my nerves, but built me up both mentally and physically, and I want to recommend it to anyone suffering as I did." "Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you." E. A. Foster, Central Drugstore Charlottetown; H. J. Mabon, Druggist, Souris.
