SUCCESSFUL BAZAAR—The Ladies Aid of the United Church, Kensington, held a very successful bazaar and supper in the Assembly Hall of their church on Thursday, afternoon and evening, March 12th inst., which was largely patronized. The ladies of this town are indefatigable in their efforts to achieve success in anything they undertake, and the public know they are never disappointed in turning out to an affair of this kind. In the present instance they were more than justified in their faith and expectations.—B

S'side Liberal Press Opposes Bridge Projects

Opposition to the proposed Brighton and Rocky Point bridge project is thus voiced in Saturday's issue of the Summerside Pioneer (Liberal):

"Of more than passing interest is the rather ambitious bridge building project which is attracting a great deal of attention among people in Charlottetown and vicinity. The plan, as outlined in the press, is to build two bridges which would put the capital city in touch with a large rural population which now has to depend on ferries, or has to drive a considerable distance around in order to reach the city.

"This is all very good, and no person should deny the desirability of such bridges. The question which must not be forgotten, however, is 'Who is going to pay for these?'

"It has been suggested that the Federal Department of Public Works might build the bridges as a relief project, furnishing at least a large part of the money, and exercising general supervision over the construction. As matters in Ottawa look at present, however, it does not seem too likely that the Federal Department will furnish the money. The plan would mean the concentration of a very large sum of money in a limited area, to serve a limited group of the population, and under such conditions, the Department will feel that the funds could be spread over a larger area with a larger consequent good.

"Even should this Department contribute the funds, however, the plan is manifestly unfair both to other provinces and to the rest of Prince Edward Island. Ordinarily the building of bridges, other than interprovincial ones, is a matter for the province itself to deal with and if the Federal government builds a bridge in Prince Edward Island, there would seem to be no earthly reason why they should not build bridges in other provinces as well. The Minister of Public Works is very likely to consider this aspect of the matter when and if he is approached regarding the matter. It is very likely to foster similar requests from each of the nine provinces, with considerable difficulty before him to refuse their requests, with a precedent already established in this province.

"Further than that, even should Federal funds build the bridges, the scheme is rather unfair to the rest of the Island. Charlottetown is not the only part of this province in which work is needed; and the expenditure of a vast sum in that area would almost automatically cut the rest of us out of any Federal funds whatever at a time when funds are urgently needed.

"On the other hand, if the local government should embrace the scheme, the effect upon the rest of the province becomes unthinkable. These years of deficits are not the time for the local government to throw all its funds and energies into a single project to benefit only those in a single area. Should such an eventuality arise, the whole province would have to suffer that a few people might benefit.

"The Pioneer is not taking a selfish view of this matter. It is not denying that a bridge project such as that which is proposed would be of benefit. It is raising the question of whether the expenditure of a large sum of public money for the benefit of a few people is justified at this time. If such expenditure is justified, the Pioneer can think of at least one other project which should be carried out at the same time as the Charlottetown bridges, a project which would result in at least as much benefit as the capital city's proposal.

"The point is, however, that in this day the expenditure of public funds should be as judiciously watched as the expenditure of private funds from a point of value received; and the robbing of a whole province in order to benefit a single section of that province can scarcely be expected to receive much support except from the single section which will derive the benefits."

efforts in a case others said could not be solved by inducing the suspected killer to dig up the bones himself.

that her substitute peace proposals be taken up jointly with her renunciation of the Locarno Treaty and that her representative "will take part on equal terms" with council members.

The five-paragraph German reply, signed by Konstantin Von Neurath, Foreign Minister, was made public by the League tonight.

Flandin said he had not read Hitler's reply, addressed to Joseph Avenol, secretary-general of the League, but understood Hitler demanded his substitute peace proposals be discussed simultaneously with Germany's "Locarno guilt." Hitler also was understood to insist that Germany be treated on a footing of absolute equality.

To Act On Appeals

The council is to act on Franco-Belgian appeals against Germany's violation of the Locarno treaty and yesterday invited the Reich to have a representative on hand Monday to state her case.

In announcing the scrapping of Locarno eight days ago by sending troops into the remilitarized Rhineland Hitler offered as a substitute to negotiate 25-year pacts with Germany's neighbors, including France.

Despite urging by Great Britain, France steadfastly refused to consider Hitler's substitute proposals. She contended Hitler's new security proposals and Locarno are two distinct matters and must be dealt with one after the other, not simultaneously.

Confused By Reply

British officials were confused by Hitler's reply, which they considered "disappointing and not hopeful." "We hoped the appeal, which the British government reinforced by its own appeal in Berlin, would lead to an advance tonight and that we would have a German representative at the Council table," said a British spokesman.

He added the situation as a result of the German reply is "not impossible, but very dark."

To meet the new dilemma arising from Hitler's answer it was learned there would be a secret meeting of the Council at 11 a. m. (1 a. m. T.S.T.) tomorrow from which secretaries and minor members of the delegations would be barred.

Deeply Disturbed

Flandin obviously was deeply disturbed.

"I have come here to have Germany's violation of Locarno recognized by the League Council and not for negotiations," he said. "If they try to force that I will leave the council and will leave London. I refuse formally. This is a position I shall not abandon."

The tall French foreign minister, with his arm still in plaster of Paris from an injury in an automobile wreck last May, looked grimly determined as he went to dinner in his hotel.

Joseph Paul-Boncour, French Minister of State who joined Flandin here Saturday, wore a deep scowl when he left the hotel shortly thereafter.

"Let us first take note of Germany's violation of Locarno," he said. "Then we will see about Hitler's proposals."

Pessimistic

Asked if his impression was pessimistic, Paul-Boncour replied with a snap of the jaw: "Of course it is."

The French are confident the League Council will not accept Hitler's conditions. A special session probably will be called tomorrow morning to consider the reply in advance of the formal afternoon session. A corps of League officials and translators was called to St. James Palace tonight to translate Hitler's message.

A French spokesman said: "We had pointed out that the Council's invitation to Germany was based on Article XVII of the League Covenant, which would allow Germany to become a temporary member of the League."

"We stand by that. But if the League Council tries to force us to sit at the table with Germany before she has been adjudged guilty of the violation of Locarno, M. Flandin has said clearly what we shall do—we shall walk out."

Council delegates from 14 nations hastily returned to London from country estates when word was received the German reply had come. Prime Minister Baldwin and Anthony Eden, Foreign Secretary, were in conference at 10 Downing Street. Immediately the official text became known representatives of several delegations declared the reply would be unacceptable in its present form for two reasons:

1. On a basis of equal rights, as demanded by Hitler, "a vote of censure would be ruled out."

2. "Hitler's second condition is untenable because it would mean that Germany, as a country whose flagrant violation of an international treaty is being considered would, at the same time, expect to discuss alternative suggestions instead of the treaty it has flouted."

Was "Evan Ridge," Island Visitor, Will Rogers?

The late Will Rogers, American humorist of stage, screen and newspaper fame, whose tragic death in an airplane crash last summer brought deep sorrow to a world he had brightened and won with his homely manner and talk, is believed to have spent four months in Charlottetown under an assumed name without the people becoming aware of his true identity.

In November, 1932, a gentleman from California advertised in a Charlottetown paper for "board and room" with a Charlottetown family.

Mrs. Henry Callbeck is positive the California man, who called himself "Evan Ridge" was Will Rogers.

Ridge stayed for four months in the home of Mr. Harry Davison of Charlottetown, and Mr. Callbeck made his acquaintance at Charlottetown Baptist Church of which he is a prominent member.

After meeting Mr. Callbeck, Ridge became an intimate friend of the Callbeck family and a frequent visitor at their home.

C.G.I.T. Girls Entertained

About thirty members of the Canadian Girls in Training of Trinity United Church, Summerside, with their leaders, Miss Strong and Miss Davies, were entertained very pleasantly at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur MacEwen on Friday night.

After a program of music, games and contests, refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Miss Rita Pickering and Miss Jean Callbeck.

Before returning home a vote of thanks was extended to Mr. and Mrs. MacEwen for their hospitality by the president of the senior group, Connie Denny, which was gracefully responded to by Mrs. MacEwen who assured the girls it was a pleasure to entertain them and hoped they would have a similar evening in the near future. CLASSES TO TEACH HOUSEWIVES HOW TO BUDGET FUNDS

ALBANY, N. Y., March 15.—The works progress administration, a federal relief-work agency, today announced plans for classes to teach housewives how to budget, plan diets, cook and do their marketing. The WPA said the aim was to attack "household problems created by reduced budgets and shrunken incomes."

The announcement said the "main objective is to provide employment for professionally and technically trained men and women on relief."

Decided Improvement

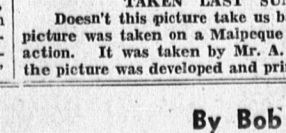

New paint, murexco, and wallpaper work wonders. This is fully demonstrated in Holman's ground floor furniture department. The walls and ceilings have been newly decorated in very pleasing colors, making a wonderful background for the display of the beautiful furniture this firm carry.

Most of the west wall has been partitioned into a suite of rooms—living room, dining room, bedroom and kitchen. The walls are decorated with some of Boxer's newest patterns. The rooms are all set up and you can easily see just how the suites would look in your own home. It is perhaps the nicest furniture display this city has ever seen.

For anyone furnishing a complete new home this firm would be glad to show you a set up in rooms just how your choice would look.

To really appreciate this new display you must drop in at HOLMAN'S the next time you go uptown and see it.
