Teen Town Topics

On Saturday Teen Town celebrated its last night for the season. There will be no more Teen Town this summer until September. Teen Town has been very successful these months in having a place each Saturday night for the teen-agers of Charlottetown to go. Besides the regular Saturday nights of Teen Town there was a "Waistline Dance", "Cabaret Show," "Barn Dance", and "Free Canteen." Among the distinguished visitors that have visited Teen Town was Tom Auburn, the great magician from Montreal. Teen Town's committee would like to thank the citizens of Charlottetown who have helped Teen Town to be a success by their generous help, and hopes that they will continue to do so when Teen Town opens again.

Each of the regular nights the program consisted of movies, dancing, games and canteen; also novelty dances, for which prizes were given each time to the winners.

This being the last Saturday of Teen Town for the season, there was a special treat for all—"Free Canteen", which everyone really enjoyed!

The movies shown were "This Is Blitz" and "Donald's Decision", which were shown by Jill MacKay and Don Callbeck.

The winners of the novelty dance were Thelma Good and Keith Brehaut. There was also different variety dances, as double-tag, etc. The hit songs of the week were played and the dancing was closed with "Dancing In The Dark."

In September Teen Town's Committee would like to see all the members back and many new members also, to enjoy the fun at "Teen Town".

Girl Guide News

News from the 1st Wellington Guide Company

Wellington Guides are one of our new Companies that is doing exceptionally well in their Guide work, they are a very intelligent group and keen on learning all that Guiding can teach. In the fall or possibly before the Company will become a mixed one like so many other rural Companies and consequently will be larger. The Company is fortunate in having the support of the Catholic Women's League (Wellington Branch) who recently donated $10 for the purchase of Guide hats.

The following Guides passed the Tenderfoot Test perfectly and were justly proud of their ability at knot tying: Hermionne Richards, Doreen Richards, Norma Arsenault, Inez Gallant, Louise Gallant, Zelda Arsenault, Lucille Arsenault. An enrollment ceremony followed conducted by the Field Secretary, Mrs. F. Jenkins and the leader Miss Clarice Richards was enrolled with the above girls. They were all very proud of their new shiny pins and will, I am sure, do their best to live up to the Promise and Laws of Guiding. Tracking was done out of doors followed by games with the bean bag, something new to these girls who are anxious to have one of their own and intend to make one shortly. Lucille and Zelda were the winners of the games. At Camp Fire, although the girls had not previously known our Guide songs they were very quick to learn and were singing as well as any other Guide Company. Nature work, hiking, fire lighting, stalking and tracking for outdoor summer programme was outlined by the Field Secretary and by next visit no doubt some good results will be forthcoming. The interest and enthusiasm was just splendid and the Leader Miss Richards is doing grand work and is to be congratulated. More Patrols are to be formed and Leaders appointed. The lovely and very enjoyable meeting closed with Evensong and Taps and the Company was dismissed by the Field Secretary.

CRAZED FACTORY

David McKenny, Sudbury ambulance helper, wounded in the right wrist, forearm and abdomen as he tried to lift one of the dead policemen into his vehicle.

Carlyle Cerma, 21, Copper Cliff, whose head was grazed by the bullet which killed Constable Dault. Carlyle is a nephew of the slain James Cerma.

Police Chief Jack McLaren suffered severe burns to the eyes and chest when a bottle of tear gas failed to clear a window into which he was trying to throw it. It fell back, exploding in his face.

Fires First Shot

Brosseau fired his first shot sortly before 8 p.m. at his brother-in-law, Lorne Rollins. Minutes later, policemen and deputies had surrounded the house on Lorne Street. Spectators gathered behind every bit of shelter in the area.

Sgt. Hanwell, in charge of Sudbury's morality squad, and Constable Art Rochon were in the first of three cruisers sent to the scene. Knowing only that a shooting had been reported, Sgt. Hanwell sent Constables Terrell and Dault to the front door of the house while he and Constable Rochon approached the rear door.

As the policemen got within 10 feet of the building—none had drawn his gun—a shot cracked out and Terrell dropped, hit in the chest. Sgt. Hanwell got to cover beside the house. Rochon and Dault seeking the protection of Brosseau's automobile, parked in the driveway. From there they made their way to the doorway of an electrical appliance store adjoining Brosseau's house.

As Hanwell, gun in hand, edged around the corner of the house Brosseau was standing in the doorway. Almost immediately, the policeman was shot in his gun arm.

Constable Dault, meanwhile, circled the electrical store and ran up Byng Street to warn bystanders and street traffic in the area to stay out of the line of fire. He was about 100 yards from the Brosseau house when a third shot came from the building. Struck in the head, the Constable died instantly.

Brosseau then returned to the front of the house and, as Sergt. Hanwell was ordering bystanders from in front of the electrical store, fired at the corner of the store. The bullet struck Cerma in the head.

Sgt. Hanwell then forced entry into the store and phoned headquarters for tear gas, rifles and reinforcements. He and Constable Rochon, while awaiting aid, opened fire on Brosseau from the store with a rile and shotgun obtained from residents of the district.

An ambulance then arrived and the operators, McKenny and Alf Dawson, tried to get the body of Dault into it. The vehicle was directly in line with an upstairs window in the Brosseau house. Four shots penetrated the ambulance, two striking McKenny.

Chief McLaren and Sgt. Stan Wilson rushed the house to throw tear gas bottles inside. They made the dash under the covering fire of Tom Thorp, former Chief Forrester for the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests, and Constable Bill Sparks of the city police. It was then that McLaren was injured. Despite his burns he directed the siege operations until Brosseau's body was removed from the bullet-riddled dwelling.

Events Leading To Shooting

Police said this was the sequence of events leading up to the shooting, the worst in Sudbury's history:

Brosseau, who worked his regular day shift in a chemical plant in adjoining Copper Cliff, had an argument with his wife. She called her brother, who lives on nearby Ontario Street. Brosseau in the meantime started to leave in his car with his two children, Clarence, 10, and Melbourne, six, and a neighbor's child, 11-year-old Bobby Gauthier.

The Gauthier boy said later that he and Clarence were in the front seat of the car, sitting on a shotgun. Brosseau stopped the car, Bobby said, pulled the wrapped shotgun from underneath the boys and started for the house with it when Rollins and Mrs. Brosseau appeared on the front porch.

The boy said Rollins grappled with Brosseau and, after one shotgun blast had been fired in the struggle, took the weapon from his brother-in-law and handed it to a bystander.

Rollins then left for his home from where he called police. Mrs. Brosseau and her two children went into an apartment above the store next door.

It was not until after the shooting that she and the children were located. During the battle it was thought that they were in the besieged Brosseau home.

Brosseau himself went into the house where he had a .303 rifle for which, police discovered later, he had an abundance of ammunition. Bullets were found scattered over the kitchen on which also lay the remains of a meal which Brosseau had not had time to finish.

When the call for reinforcements was sent in, members of the Ontario Provincial Police, Royal Canadian Mounted Police, International Nickel Company Police, railway policemen and members of the staff of the Department of Lands and Forests volunteered by the score. Witnesses said that it seemed as though most of the population of 32,000 of this Northern Ontario city rushed to the scene.

Rifles, the majority privately owned, were issued to each man. From vantage points all around the posse fired volley after volley into the house. Scarcely a square foot of the building escaped bullet holes.

Brosseau's other brother-in-law, Melbourne Rollins, tried to enter the house during the shooting but was restrained by citizens.

Brosseau was well known as a keen hunter and was a deadly shot. He used two bullets to kill himself—shooting himself in the abdomen and through his chin, the second bullet emerging through the skull.

Relatives said the man had a serious illness two years ago and since had had intermittent fits of rage.

Kingston Address By Prime Minister

(By Canadian Press Staff Writer)

KINGSTON, Ont., June 19 — (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent cracked back at George Drew Saturday with the statement that "no provincial premier or government or dominion-provincial conference should be given a veto over decisions the constitution gives the federal parliament the right to make."

He contended:

"We differ from the Conservative party in that we conceive of Canada as one nation with 10 provinces and not as a group of 10 separate states each of which has the right of veto over joint decisions of all."

He rejected the Progressive Conservative leader's charges of centralization with the argument that tax agreements offered the provinces by the Liberal Government aim not at centralization but decentralization of wealth for the benefit of all Canadians.

In a day which saw him speak 13 times in a swift movement by train and car some 300 miles from Oshawa to Ottawa, Mr. St. Laurent also:

1. Took a hands-off attitude towards the charges that Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland intimidated voters in an election speech.

2. Suggested that some Conservatives in the Ontario area where John Bracken grew up might not be quite satisfied "with the way he was dealt with and one of the two Georges put in his stead" by the Conservatives.

3. Told the people of the rail centre of Smiths Falls "We don't believe in the amalgamation of the two railways."

He returned to Ottawa late Saturday night to prepare for the final week of the campaign, one that will take him to Ontario, Quebec and Newfoundland platforms..

Mr. St. Laurent's Saturday meetings took him into a cluster of ridings along Lake Ontario and the St. Lawrence which went heavily Conservative in 1945 but it was in Kingston and Brockville that he delivered his main blows.

In Kingston's ball park, he said the Liberals have always advocated "proper respect for provincial rights." But they didn't believe powers given the Federal parliament by the constitution "should be placed under the control of the provinces.

Yet that "seems to be the view" of Mr. Drew "and his allies in Quebec." They charged federal invasion of provincial rights at the same time they declined to admit that in the exercise of Federal functions there is no need of consultation with the provinces.

The one specific instance of centralization given by Mr. Drew was taxation. The charge was not true although the constitution gave Ottawa the right to levy any kind of tax. The truth was, however, that Ottawa had removed, not imposed, new taxes since the war only to see the provinces reimpose them.

Mr. St. Laurent said Ontario would not have had to impose taxes removed by Ottawa if it had accepted the tax agreement offered by Ottawa and accepted by the majority of the provinces.

The only logical conclusion that could be drawn from Mr Drew's remarks about the tax agreements was that they should be eliminated. But Mr. Drew had denied this, apparently because he found they were "exceedingly popular" in the provinces which accepted them.

Mr Drew had also said there would be no dominion-provincial conference under a Liberal government. Mr. St. Laurent reiterated that the government will invite "the premiers of the provinces to a general conference at least a year prior to the expiration of the existing tax agreements in 1952."

At Brockville, he devoted his speech to an answer to an editorial in the Toronto Globe and Mail which set out a variety of reasons why it is time for a change at Ottawa.

The editorial said it is bad for democracy and provokes arrogance when a government is in too long.

Mr. St. Laurent said the Liberals have been kept in power because they meet the people's wishes and asked if any member of the cabinet "is higher in arrogance than the two Georges," presumably Mr. Drew and George McCullagh, publisher of the Globe.

To a charge that the government has failed to hasten the St. Lawrence seaway, Mr. St. Laurent said he is in "constant correspondence" with President Truman who "is just as anxious as we are" to get the project started. But he was "not so sure" that a seaway bill will pass congress this session.

At Oshawa, he indicated he won't interfere in the Smallwood incident despite Mr. Drew's argument that he should repudiate the premier's action. Mr. St. Laurent said "those who are so generous in scattering around charges of centralization" should not be so generous in asking him to intervene in a matter which "relates to provincial autonomy."

Election campaign of Col. George Drew has earned him many friends. Here at Elkshorn, Man., he and Mrs. Drew, his most valued supporter, greet townsfolk anxious to shake the hand of the man running for Canada's highest office.

Gleanings of a Rural District New Glasgow

Mr. R. L. Dickieson has recently purchased a lovely new Dodge sedan.

Mr. George Toombs of the R. L. Dickieson staff, has resumed his work after been confined to his home with the mumps.

Liteut. Arthur B. Dickieson is now stationed in Camp Borden, Ont., where a Cadet camp is in training. Arthur, while en route, spent some time with his brothers Charles and Creelman who have important positions in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Bell, accompanied by their son Roger, recently spent some time and labour at their farm home here, by improving their lawn, planting trees and flowers which will later add beauty to this lovely farm home.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ling are spending sometime on the Island, visiting at the home of Mr. Ling's mother, Mrs. Horace Ling and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Ling, also with his sister, Mrs. Wilbert Wright and at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Campbell, the latter being a sister of Mrs. Ling's, they being both from the land of the heather.

The W.M.S. of the Christian Church held their June meeting of the home of Mrs Edison Rollings, Mrs. Elbert Hill led the devotional period using the theme "You are My Witnesses", different members assisted. Minutes of last meeting were read and approved. New sick committee, Mrs. Ling, Mrs. H. Hill and Mrs T. McNeill. One new member was welcomed. Roll call was answered by 14 members and several visitors. Mrs. Campbell was organist. Lunch was served by the committee in charge assisted by the hostess.

The following will be of interest to the residents of this district. The readers of this paper will remember reading the contest sponsored by New Glasgow's enteprising merchant, Mr. R. L. Dickieson, when he offered ten bags of Pioneer Laying Mash to the ten egg producers whose eggs graded the highest percentage of Grade A's for the month of May. Following are those whose eggs graded 95%: Stanley Houston, Leigh Warren, Frank Pineau, Eric Simpson, Lloyd Houston, Eric Bell, Angus G. Peters, Howard Ling, Wallace Dickieson and lastly the provincial representative for this district Mr. R. R. Bell. Congratulations to the winners. Now with each winner carrying home a bag of Pioneer Mash, those lads are on the fair way for the top notch in the month of June when the same offer has been made. However those that didn't win, don't be discouraged, but put forth a greater effort to be the next winners.

Conservative Meeting Held At St. George's

Federal candidate, Major J. A. MacDonald, King's County, dealt with Canada's declining export markets at a Conservative meeting held Friday night at St. George's School.

Major MacDonald pointed out how farm prices would be affected and would continue to be if immediate action were not taken to regain these markets.

He dealt with the government floor prices for potatoes, stating they should have been higher, having been set at 69 cents as two years ago without regard to the increase in costs of production during those years.

Major MacDonald took up the taxation problems stating that the high taxes of the past few years had contributed to the increased cost of living. He maintained the government could have helped the people substantially by reducing the Sales Tax, but left that unchanged as it was a hidden tax with very little election appeal.

Dr. A. A. MacDonald, former Conservative candidate, spoke of the government's usual methods of trying for a snap verdict from the people. He criticized the many Orders-in-Council passed by it, and urged support of Mr. Drew's candidate in return to power of government by the people. Having returned recently from hospital at Montreal, Mr. MacDonald reported the feeling was general there that the Conservatives would make great gains in that Province.

He also predicted a much stronger vote for the Conservative candidate, Major MacDonald, in the Souris district this election.

Mr. Daniel MacLean also spoke briefly dealing mainly with farm problems.
