Germans Seek Credit

NEW YORK, July 14—German agents are dickering with bankers here for short-term credits, to be used for the purchase of grain and grain products to the extent of $49,000,000. A joint credit of $20,000,000 in which New York and London bankers will share, one-half of which is included in the $49,000,000 total brings the total which German bankers now are endeavoring to raise up to $59,000,000.

Four separate groups of bankers are taking part in the negotiations. One of these will raise $25,000,000, one $9,000,000, one $5,000,000 and the last, a joint obligation of $20,000,000 to be held in New York and London banks. The $9,000,000 credit is nearest completion. It was stated today that all details are arranged and but the signatures are lacking. This will be furnished, it is reported, by a a hundred feet of the water, the white caps were running in the breeze that had become decidedly fresh one. The sight of the rough water unnerved one of the men in charge of the two sandbags and he dropped it over the side of the basket. The huge balloon leaped several hundred feet higher. Donaldson swore with rage, but kept his head, pulled wide open the valves in the top of the balloon, and we came down upon the island with a jar that made our teeth rattle. Then we bounced away from it and plunged into the water. Donaldson laid down some law for us in vigorous language, telling us that every man must cling to the car, no matter what happened, and must throw nothing overboard without orders. This done he turned his attention to the men on the near shore, to whom he made himself understood, and with a horse and wagon they raced away to the isthmus to head us off.

(When the balloon struck the water my fellow passengers got the bath up to their necks. My diminutive body measured its entire height under the waves. Donaldson was on the grating above the basket and did not touch the water at all.

We ricocheted across the bay, the basket being lifted out of the water one moment, to plunge beneath it, the next. I went under it with such regular frequency that drowning became imminent. Appealing to Donaldson for permission to stand on the edge of the basket, I was told to stay where I was. "You would fall off," Donaldson roared, "and that would mean the finish of the rest of us."

"But I will drown here," I urged. "All right! A dead man in the basket would chp us more now than a live man outside of it." was the comforting reply. However it was my good fortune to convince Donaldson by weaving my arms in and out among the ropes leading to the network I could make sure of not falling off, and he permitted me to do so.

The villagers from Hull met us as we pulled ashore on the isthmus. They threw themselves upon the basket and into the netting regardless of consequences, holding us for the moment within which Donaldson pulled the cord by which the balloon was rent wide open, and we were saved. Hurried to the hotel at Hull, our soaked clothing was hung before fires to dry and we were well soaked with hot rum. The tug we had seen out at sea came to the Hull landing and waited for us. Midnight found us at home none the worse for our adventure.

TORRENTIAL RIVER

LETHBRIDGE, July 14.—Parts of Alberta were visited by torrential rains Tuesday afternoon and night. At Bow Island, two and one-quarter inches of rain fell in 45 minutes. This is the heaviest rain in the history of that district. At Nobleford hail fell for 20 minutes, damaging a strip about 1 1/2 miles wide and ten miles in length. Chin was also visited by hail, but the damage done there was considerably less. The big Nobleford farms lost 1,500 acres, or one eighth of their crop.

In the Medicine Hat district nearly one-half inch of rain fell during the last 24 hours.

Later reports of the hailstorm which struck Southern Alberta on Tuesday evening indicate that it was much wider in extent than first reports showed. The storm gathered in the foothills west of Claresholm, Nobleford, Coaldale and Chin districts, swinging south through Skiff, on the Lethbridge-Weyburn branch of the Canadian Pacific railway. The storm varied in width from one to three miles and the loss of the crop in its path was nearly total. The length of the storm path was approximately 400 miles. All crops but two on the Canadian Pacific Railway and on the Van Home soldier colony north of Coaldale, in the irrigated belt, were wiped out. Chickens were killed by the force of the storm in some districts.

DOMINION WOOL MARKET REPORT FOR WEEK ENDED JULY 12TH, 1921.

Canadian mills are showing a greater activity in the manufacture of woollen goods and as a result there is a stronger demand for the Canadian wool, but without any advance in prices. Sales of Eastern domestic wools continue to be made at 19c to 21c for medium. Quotations on the lower grades are running from 11c to 13c for coarse; 15c to 17c for the low combing and 17c to 19c for the low medium combing. Western wools are under process of grading and several options have already been taken on certain lots.

Interest is Increasing in the HOLMAN PRIZE GONTEST---the Candidates are Getting nearer the Goal---Who is going to Win that $500.00 Cash Prize

Every day the interest in Holman's Prize Election Contest is increasing—the candidates are nearing the prize goal—every effort now is that much nearer the prize desired.

Who is going to win that first prize of $500.00 cash? It is going to the most popular person—the most ambitious person—the one who shows the most enterprise and ability in securing votes. It is going to YOU, if you only make up your mind to win.

HERE IS THE LIST OF TOP NOTCHERS UP TO SATURDAY, JULY 9

IS YOUR NAME NEAR THE TOP

The following is not a complete count of vote credits polled by customers for their favorite candidates but represent only such votes as have been polled up to 6 p.m. Wednesday, July 13th. Votes polled since would make sensational changes in the standing. Watch for the next announcement in about one weeks time. Now is the time to boost. There will be many startling surprises in the next standing. While the first prize is within the reach of anyone there is no one sure of it. The only way is to DIG—DIG—DIG.
