Impressive Graduating Ceremonies In Y M C A Hall—"Standing Room Only."

It was true, as Dr. Richard Johnson said at the convocation of the Hospital Training School in the Y. M. C. A., last night, that Solomon in all his wisdom slightly missed the mark when he exclaimed that there was nothing new under the sun. The ceremony of "capping" the graduates of this Training School is new in Charlottetown. The sapient king only uttered a grand generalization and not a specific fact. At all events the novelty of this public function attracted a gathering of spectators large enough to occupy every seat and every foot of standing room in the large hall. But greater than the attraction of novelty was the spirit of philanthropy and pure human altruism compelling a profound public interest in the proceedings of last evening. The scene was more impressive than pretty. There was no attempt at decoration, the trapezes and horizontal bars were suspended from the ceiling; but in the rear of the room tables were ranged and laden with the genuine "good things" that typed the basic sentiment of the occasion—good will and unmeasured unselfishness. Among

THOSE ON THE PLATFORM WERE

Chas. Palmer, Esq., in the chair, Miss Sheraton, the Matron of the School, L. H Davies, H. J. Cundall, L. L Beer, Dr. Warburton, Alexander McKinnon, Dr. Steve Jenkins, Dr. Beer, A. B. Mackenzie, Dr. Blanchard, B. Balderston, Dr. Richard Johnson, Dr. Harry Johnson, Dr. Taylor and Mr. B. Bremner.

Mr. Charles Palmer in his address as chairman, gave a graphic and a glowing history of hospital work in modern times. The institution of the hospital was coeval with Christianity; the first matron and nurse was the saintly Fabiola of Rome. But with the growth of Christianity grew the practical philanthropy that manifested itself in the care of the sick and wounded; and the thorough development of this good work was one of the greatest and noblest achievements of these modern times. Mr. Palmer described in detail the methods of the great hospitals of large cities. Pre-eminent among all the contributors to the comfort of the invalids in these hospitals was the professional trained nurse. Only those who had hospital experience either as directors or inmates could realise the value of the nurse's service, her gentle, patient kindness and almost

INFINITE DEVOTION TO DUTY.

Therefore in the graduation of Miss Arthur and Miss Tynan Charlottetown has reason to rejoice.

Dr. Richard Johnson formally presented Miss Tynan and Miss Arthur with their diplomas. These certificates he said were signed by the Examiners, the President and Secretary, the matron and directors of the Hospital. They affirmed that the ladies to whom they were given had spent two years in professional study and had acquired all the qualifications of Trained Nurses. Dr. Johnson illustrated what two years of hospital training meant. In the year 1892—93 these nurses had dealt with 34 medical cases and 73 surgical cases, including 48 surgical operations. They had passed a thorough ordeal. They were no novices.

HE CONGRATULATED THEM

on their success, and impressed upon them the sacred and honorable character of the calling which they had chosen, and to which he felt sure they would do honor while they lived.

The Hon. L H Davies was called upon by the Chair. Mr. Davies thrilled his hearers by that unaffected yet fervid eloquence that has marked him one of the foremost public speakers in the Dominion. A few years ago, he said, Charlottetown could not boast of the care she had bestowed on the suffering and destitute sick. The late Bishop McIntyre was the pioneer in hospital work on the Island For the service he had thus done to the Province and for his devotion to all philanthropic work, his memory was fresh and green in the minds and hearts of all. But the first hospital he founded was insufficient for the whole Island. And the P E Island Hospital was built. To Mr. Palmer and all the trustees should be given. It would be invidious to draw distinctions; but everybody knew that Dr. Richard Johnson deserved more credit than any other citizen for the service he had rendered this institution. Nevertheless the Hospital had one defect It imperatively needed a Contagious Disease Ward. To supply this want, despite the hard times, he urged more general and generous contributions. And to his legal friends, who were often asked for advice by testators who could not decide how to make their wills, he said: "Suggest bequests for the Hospital." (Applause) He closed with a powerful plea for a united effort to make the lives of the afflicted less terrible to bear.

THE GRATITUDE OF THE PEOPLE

The speeches were varied by a well-rendered solo, "Cast thy bread upon the waters," by Mrs G. Roome, and a reading of "The Mary of Shields," by Miss Gertrude Davies, evidencing the cultured skill of a histrionic artist.

The luncheon provided by the "King's Daughters," and an enjoyable conversazione ended the evening.

The matron and nurses were attired in the regulation uniform of the Hospital, with white aprons and white caps.

Press and Parliament.

OTTAWA Feb. 14—Speaking of the next session of the House of Commons the Ottawa Journal, which is on the ground, and usually well informed, says: "As far as the Liberals are concerned it will be the fighting session, as they will count upon it to be the last of the present Parliament, whether that turns out to be the case or not. The country, therefore, will be flooded with electioneering literature from Ottawa preparing the people for the next general election campaign."

GOVERNMENT WORK AND WORRY.

The government has decided to call parliament together on the fifteenth of March. Usually the Dominion Parliament meets in January or February. Immediately after a general election a new parliament is summoned a month or so later than usual because of the active work devolving upon the ministers by the campaign and the business arising out of the elections. The first session of the present parliament met on April 29, the first of the preceding parliament on April 13. The tendency has been towards calling the later sessions of each parliament earlier in the year. Thus, the last session of last parliament was called on January 6 There is a general impression that the coming session will be the last of the present parliament, though another session is possible. The late date for which it is called, therefore, is the more extraordinary. Everyone knows the reason, however. The necessary reduction of the tariff is giving some of the ministers a great deal of work and worry Montreal Witness.

Dr. Douglas and Mr. Livingstone.

Dr. George Douglas was for many years the Demosthenes of Methodism. His recent annual trips to the Western Conferences were always looked forward to with pleasure, for at each one he could visit, a sermon or an address reminded the members of the deep-toned eloquence. As a younger man, he had naturally more of fire and more of dramatic force; and was easily one of the first pulpit orators of the continent In Canadian Methodism he was ever a leader. His high Christian character won for him the confidence of his colleagues; and his brilliant parts carried him always to the forefront of any movement with which he was connected. Old age exacts a debt that none can refuse to pay; but, though not unexpected, the death of Dr Douglas will be felt throughout the Christain community as a severe and a personal loss.

Mr John Livingstone (who died in Montreal last week) was not thought by his friends to be near the end of his career. An able and richly informed journalist, it was expected that he would do good work yet, the better for his ripeness A Newbrunswicker in origin, he has been connected with several of the leading newspaper enterprises of the country, the founders of the Toronto Empire choosing him as the first editor of that journal. He was probably the strongest political writer in Canada In newspaper circles there will be surprise and sorrow at his loss; sentiments that will be shared by as much of the community as have learned to know him under the impersonality of the newspaper writer —Montreal Star.

Notes of Islanders Abroad.

THE GUARDIAN readers will be glad to hear of the success of our Island young men. Rev Christopher Munroe, son of the late Rev. Alexander Munroe, of Valleyfield, is minister of a congregation at Oxford, N.S He was, the other day, presented by the ladies of the congregation with an Astrakan coat, beaver cap and driving mittens, accompanied by an address as an expression of good will.

Rev. A B. Macleod, a native of Strathalbyn, is settled in St. Peter's, C. B During the past summer the congregation built a manse at a cost of $1775. The pastor on taking possession of the manse in the fall was agreeably surprised to find cellar and pantry well supplied with provisions of all kinds and the people's generosity in this respect still continues. Though the smallest congregation in the Synod, numerically, 29 families in all, yet it is by no means the smallest in the grace of liberality.

To May In February.

(A VALENTINE)

Still I have May—What though the fields are white?
What though the February skies are grey?
What though the wide land owns the ice-King's migh?—
Still I have May.

With the warm sunshine of thy love's pure ray,
Sweetheart, thou art my springtime, fair and bright,
Summoning flowers to bloom along my way.

So, while I thus remain, safe in the light
Of thy dear eyes, my heart, content, can say,
"What though the earth lie cold in winter's nigh?—
Still I have May."

The Prohibition Question.

TORONTO, Feb. 14.—Much interest is being taken here in an approaching case in the Supreme court to settle the question of prohibition. Mr. W. J. Maclaren, Q. C., formerly of Montreal, who holds a brief for the Ontario Government in the approaching argument in the Supreme court on the constitutional power of the prohibition question, will be assisted by Mr. Johnson, ex deputy attorney general. The two counsel have instructions from the Ontario Government to take every step that can be conscientiously taken towards establishing the right of the province to deal with the question. It will also be argued that the prohibitory power enjoyed by the Province before Confederation still remains. So far as known the temperance and liquor interests have taken no steps to be represented at the argument. It is expected the liquor party will ask to be represented by counsel when the court opens. The other Provinces, which are as much concerned as Ontario, will probably ask leave to be represented by counsel, though all sides here concede the matter must go to the Privy council. The end of the whole business may be witnessed this year. The Supreme court will give judgment by May, then an appeal to the Privy council will be argued a month or two later and final judgment given by December.
