Trees Along The Highways

(W. L. Cotton)

That rows of ornamental trees, growing at intervals along the sides of our main roads would add greatly to the appearance and attractiveness of this island need not be stated. Persons who have travelled in Southern Michigan and in other States of the Great Republic have been greatly pleased by the effect of the tall trees that have been planted on the roadsides.

Trees set off the well cultivated fields of the farmer as nothing else can. This is why the government of one of the New England States has lately undertaken to encourage owners of property bordering on the highways to set out and care for trees of approved varieties. The example thus set might with advantage be followed in Prince Edward Island. There is no part of America in which rows of elms, maples, and other fine trees would contribute more of beauty to the broad landscapes of the country.

Every well-to-do farmer in this Province might, without great labor or difficulty plant trees by the fences on the sides of the road on his own ground, and so—without reducing the productiveness of his property—add considerably in a few years, to its value. There is a growing appreciation on the part of the people generally of the beautiful landscapes of the country in which they live; and there is, on the part of many visitors, admiration warm and outspoken.

A deep gloom of sadness was cast over the community of Port Hill and surrounding districts on the morning of Wednesday January fifth when the sad news was heard that Mr. J. Edgar Yeo, the way of the autist is an asset and the value of which cannot be over-estimated. Those who add to it encourage those who add to it testify to the sincere hospitality which they feel. Farmers and other residents of the country districts will therefore do well to consider in these winter months when they may obtain young trees of the right kinds, to plant at intervals of a hundred feet or yards, along the sides of the roads, early next spring.

HOW HONEY MAY BE USED.

(Experimental Farms Note.)

Honey sweetens life in many ways. This is apparent when we see the various uses to which it is put. Formerly it was used mainly as a spread on bread, but today there are a great number of other ways of using it to vary one's menu. Though the best way to serve honey is by incorporating it in form in desserts, as a sweetener, it is used to a large extent in cooking both in the baking of cakes and making of bread to which it imparts the property of keeping fresh for a long time—this is a point which all good housekeepers should note.

Besides this it is used in the making of candies, both as a centre which is chocolate coated and as an ingredient in the many other kinds of sweets, for which recipes are to be found in all good cook books.

A very appetizing new spread is now manufactured by incorporating honey with peanut butter to make what is called "Honey-nut Butter."

Apart from entering directly into use, it is used to make most excellent luscious food by many to be equal to the best produced.

The motorist too may sweeten his temper by the use of it as anti-freeze. It has been found that equal parts of honey, water and alcohol make a mixture that has proved satisfactory to some who have taken the proper precautions to see that all gaskets and connections are tight, so that no leakage can occur, for places where water cannot pass through honey mixture will.

We can realize the value of honey as a natural food when we see some of the large breakfast food manufacturers now advertising on all packages of cereals now put out by them the use of it as a sweetener.

SEED CLEANING PLANTS

An absence of efficient seed cleaning machinery at convenient points has had a depressing effect on the production of registered seed grain in Canada. To overcome this hindrance the Central Division of the Experimental Farms has given close study to various types of cleaning machines and established both at the Central Farm and at the Branch Farms, cleaning plants of the best types. These plants are being used not only for the cleaning of the seed grown on the Farms but they are placed at the disposal of farmers for a fee sufficient to cover the cost of operation. This service last year at the Central Farm at Ottawa amounted to 6,000 bushels of seed grown in the Ottawa district. So gratifying is the work done by these machines that a number of the farmers have established for themselves and their neighbourhoods, seed cleaning plants of similar type.

A fellow we know got a terrible shock the other day. He came home unexpectedly from a trip abroad, and found his wife sitting in the drawing room with another man.

"Who is that?" he thundered.

"My brother from India," she faltered. And it was.

Violent Earthquakes Are Predicted

(Canadian Press)

FAENZA, Italy, Jan. 14.—Raphael Bendandi head of the Telluric Observatory here and well known for his predictions of earthquakes, today said he foresaw a period of violent seismic commotions, beginning tomorrow which would be especially severe in the Balkans at Algeria and Morocco. He predicted heavier shocks on the 15th and 16th. The shocks also would be felt in Switzerland and the Rhine region, he said. Prof. Bendandi also foresaw earthquake shocks of disastrous character in culminating phase which would be especially violent in the submarine areas of the eastern Pacific particularly in Polynesia and in Colombia and Ecuador.

BRAWLEY, Calif., Jan. 14.—Two sharp earthquake shocks were felt here this morning at three o'clock no damage was done.

PROBE IN PARLIAMENT INVITED BY DUNNING

OTTAWA, Jan. 11.—Hon. Charles A. Dunning, Minister of Railways and Canals, welcomes a Parliamentary investigation into the reason for cancelling the contract for erecting a $5,000,000 Canadian National Railway hotel in Vancouver by the late Government, and was later cancelled by the present Administration. Statements made in Vancouver by Mayor Louis D. Taylor blaming the Minister personally for the cancellation of the contract has led to an exchange of telegrams. The Minister tonight issued the following statement regarding the hotel contract cancellation:

"I will welcome Parliamentary investigation for the reason for contract, authorized by the late Government, and I will be glad to take the responsibility, as Minister of Railways, for recommending such cancellation to the Government.

"Regarding the future, the President and Board of Directors of the Railway Company have not yet recommended provision for construction of a hotel in Vancouver in 1927.

"The Mayor's intimation of unworthy motives is scarcely creditable on the part of the Chief Executive of a great city, and is unworthy of an answer."

TRUE STORIES ABOUT LIFE INSURANCE

By a Mutual Life Representative

The FORGOTTEN CLAUSE

I read the Clause to her

A NUMBER of years ago we issued a policy to a man who subsequently became incapacitated from tuberculosis. For three years he was unable to do anything.

One day his mother came to me wanting to surrender the policy on her son's life for the cash value. I examined the policy and found it carried a total disability clause which the poor woman had entirely overlooked.

"Surely," I said, "You don't want to surrender this policy." And I read the mother the disability clause. She didn't yet quite understand.

"It's all right for you to talk," she said, "but

"I need that money NOW"

"It would be a sin to take this policy from you now. I simply won't do it," I told her flatly. I reported the case to the head office. The Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada promptly refunded two years' premiums and in addition paid an amount covering the monthly income for the two previous years.

Regularly each month after that until her son died,

The mother received a cheque from the Mutual Life of Canada. At his death the company sent her a cheque for the amount of the policy in full.

Had she surrendered that policy as she tried to do, she would have been practically penniless before he died, as her son's policy had only been running a few years and its cash surrender value was therefore comparatively small.

All Representatives of the Mutual Life of Canada are equipped to give invaluable counsel upon life insurance, explain the various provisions of different Mutual policies and point out the particular policies called for by your insurance needs. Be frank with them and give them your confidence. They will respect it.
