

Liberal Heckler Chased By Middle-Aged Woman At Lively Toronto Meeting

TORONTO, Sept. 23—Major G. Power, ex-M.P. for Quebec City, visited Toronto Friday and made four speeches, but he had to shout to make himself heard when he spoke for Goldie Fleming, Liberal candidate in East York, at McGregor school last night.

For two and a half hours a fair-sized audience in McGregor school created bedlam for speakers and fired questions at them, refusing to keep quiet until they were answered. When H. J. McConnell, president of Todmorden Liberal Association, made some remark at the back of the hall about the C.C.F. candidate, a crowd led by a stout middle-aged woman, chased him from the building.

Early in the meeting, when hecklers were making it uncomfortable for E. C. Bogart, K.C., the first speaker, someone called police, and two officers in uniform arrived at the meeting in a few minutes. The heckling continued unabated, though the chairman stood through most of the meeting beating a tattoo on the oak table with his gavel.

Army officers, the capitalistic system, lawyers and existing relief laws came under the fire of the hecklers. Mr. Fleming and two of his speakers were officers overseas. "Lay off the bunk and give us facts," they cried when tariff and trade laws were discussed.

"Tell us our future, Goldie," one woman cried. Many war veterans were in the audience and they levelled many questions at the candidate.

"War! War! War!"

"England is prosperous today," exclaimed Mr. Fleming. "What has made this possible?"

"War! War! War!" roared the crowd. "They are busy making munitions."

Appealing for fair play and free speech, Mr. Fleming shouted: "I am in favor of abolition of Section 96 of the code."

"I am not," answered the chorus. Mention of Premier Hepburn's name brought roars of derision and catcalls.

"We hear he is going to cut the relief again; why is that?" asked one man of Major Power.

"Because Bennett has said the provinces must not be treated so luxuriously," replied the Quebec member.

Lewis Duncan, K.C., received the worst treatment of any speaker. Dealing entirely with pension cases, he continued to speak though his voice could scarcely be heard. Singling out hecklers, he attempted to deal with them, but when he stated he was an officer overseas, it was a signal for bedlam until he concluded. When he asked one heckler for his regiment and number, he drew the ire of the veterans, who shouted: "Trying to make him out a liar, eh?"

A gray-haired veteran asked Major Power why Hepburn turned out 700 veterans to eat grass.

"My answer is if they meddled in politics they must expect to take the same chances they had to take in France," he answered.

Grows Nice Geraniums

Major Power said the pension committee formed in 1930, and not the Bennett Government, restored to nearly 19,000 veterans who formerly had taken a lump sum in settlement of their pension, on the pension list. Bob McGregor, Conservative member for the constituency, claimed credit for the Bennett Government, he charged. "I know Bob and he is a good fellow, but—"

"Yes, he grows nice geraniums," shouted a youth.

The mandate should not be given to a man like McGregor, who was so easily fooled, the speaker believed.

The audience did agree with Major Power when he said the returned soldier belonged to no party, and no party belonged to the returned soldier. No matter what government was in power they should be looked after. The Hyndman report was fine as far as it went, he said, but the scale of pension relief should be just and reasonable, entitling a veteran to such assistance as would make unnecessary his dependence upon Red Cross or relief. Speaking of Bennett's attempt to put veterans back on the land, Major Power said $75,000 had been spent and most of the men had abandoned their farms. Many were not physically fit to farm.

W. King, president of the British Ex-serviceman's League, who introduced the speaker, was howled down when he hauled a Distinguished Conduct medal from his pocket and attempted to dramatize a local veteran's case.

Cries of "shame" were heard and King, a 250-pound man, was told in plain language he did not subsist on the "pogey."

E. C. Bogart, who ended a rough ride by being booed from the hall, was in favor of trade with Russia if King were returned and also stated Canada was overgoverned with its county and municipal councils.

IN MEMORIAM

MR. JAMES MACDONALD

The people of West St. Peters and vicinity were shocked to hear of the death of one of the oldest and most respected residents of the community, in the person of James A. MacDonald, who passed away at the City Hospital, Charlottetown, on August 20th last.

The late Mr. MacDonald had been unwell for some time, but his illness was not considered serious until his physician advised his removal to the hospital. He underwent an apparently successful operation but it soon became evident that another operation was his only chance of recovery. Unfortunately the second operation proved too much for his already weakened condition and he passed away on the above mentioned date.

During his illness he received the best medical and nursing care obtainable. He enjoyed the consolations given by his spiritual advisers and by his wife and family. Some members of the family came home from the United States to be with their father in his last illness and death. He died fortified by the rites of the Catholic Church of which he was a devout member.

His remains were taken to A. A. Hennessy's Funeral Parlors, from where they were conveyed to the home of the deceased at West St. Peters, where a continuous throng of people came to pay their respects to their beloved neighbor and friend.

On the morning of August 22nd his remains were conveyed to St. Andrew's Church, followed by a large concourse of people. Requiem High Mass was celebrated by his beloved pastor, Rev. A. F. MacLellan, Present in the sanctuary was Rev. Joseph Rooney, P.P., Morel, who at the completion of the services in the church, interred the remains in St. Andrew's Cemetery.

A large number of Mass Cards, spiritual Bouquets, Messages of Sympathy, Wreaths and Flowers testify the esteem in which the late Mr. MacDonald was held.

The deceased was born at West St. Peters 82 years ago, where he resided all his life. He was light-house keeper at Savage Harbor for forty years and gave entire satisfaction. He was a very capable carpenter, boat building being his specialty.

In the year 1880 he married Mary McGrath of Morel. They celebrated their Golden Jubilee in 1930. Of their happy marriage sixteen children were born, three of whom served in the World War, namely, Augustine, now in B.C.; Ronald J., Postmaster at St. Peter's Bay; Plus, who made the supreme sacrifice in France. Besides those three there are three other sons living, namely, Ruthven at home, John in Halifax, George in New Hampshire; also seven daughters, Mrs. Augustine O'Hanley (Catherine), St. Peter's Bay; Mrs. James MacMillan (Mary), Boston, Mass.; Mrs. Jane Leonard, Boston, Mass.; Mrs. Edward (Agnes), New Hampshire; Mrs. H. J. MacPhee, (Gladys), Janovy, Conn. at home. Three children, William, Duncan and Miriam predeceased him.

The memory of the late Mr. MacDonald or, as he was familiarly known, as Allan James, will long be cherished by his many friends. He was a very obliging neighbor and was ever ready to lend a helping hand.

The Guardian joins with a host of relatives and friends in extending to the late Mr. MacDonald's widow and family heartfelt sympathy.

The pall bearers were: Alex. R. MacDonald, R. MacEachern, Ben L. MacEwen, J. B. MacDonald, Frank Anderson and Lloyd MacEwen.—R. I. P.
