Maj. MacDonald Addresses Large Souris Audience

Eastern King's County Progressive Conservatives and others from Souris and other Eastern King's centres crowded the Souris Theatre at Souris on Monday night to hear Major J.A. MacDonald, Progressive Conservative candidate for that county in the forthcoming Federal election.

The speaker dwelt on the abilities and training of the Hon. George Drew, national leader, pointing out his interest in public affairs from a very early age, his war service for this country in the first war, his apprenticeship in civic politics at Guelph, later mayor of that city; his entry into Provincial politics in Ontario; his election as Premier of that Province on three occasions; his election as national leader of the Progressive Conservative Party in Ottawa in October last; his election to the House of Commons in the Carleton by-election, and finally his excellent leadership in the House of Commons during the past session.

Major MacDonald in his opening remarks stated that the citizens at this time are interested in what the Progressive Conservative Party has to offer and this breaks itself down into: (1) Its leader; (2) Its policy; and (3) Its candidates.

Foresees Race Of Mixed Blood In New Zealand

By J. C. GRAMAM AUCKLAND, N.Z., May 3—(CP) —The development of a mixed race of New Zealanders of European and Maori blood has been forecast by Sir Peter Buck, "acknowledged as the greatest living authority on Pacific ethnology, he recently made a comprehensive tour of almost all Maori settlements.

Sir Peter, who is himself of mixed Maori and Irish descent, has been revisiting New Zealand after many years overseas. He is director of the Bishop Museum, Honolulu, and was formerly professor of anthropology at Yale.

He has found great changes in the Maori race since he was last among his people over 14 years ago. He is convinced that "the Maoris have come to town for good" and that the blood and cultures of the Dominion's two races should be merged for the benefit of themselves and New Zealand.

Arrange Feeding Swamp Specimens For Baby's Needs

CAMBRIDGE, England, May 3—(CP) —Throw away that schedule of babies mealtimes and feed a child when he is hungry, says Dr. Douglas Gardner of Addenbrooke's Hospital here.

"Feed him five or six or seven times a day if he wants," Dr. Gardner told a group of nurses. "Study the child, learn when he is hungry and feed him when he is hungry."

Probe Disappearance Of North Sea Herring

LOWESTOFT, England, May 3—(CP) —Fisheries research scientists are trying to solve the mystery of Britain's vanished herring.

Drifter skippers report their spring herring voyages to the North Sea are a total failure this year and all but a few have abandoned further trips.
