CAPITOL SUMMERSIDE

"The Moon Is Down" At Capitol, S'side

A breathtaking example of flimdom at its finest, "The Moon Is Down," the picture of John Steinbeck's great novel which opened yesterday at the Capitol Theatre, is a truly great motion picture.

Intensely moving and masterfully filmed, is this story of the Nazi invasion of a peaceful Norwegian town. The bitter destiny of the defeated overwhirls the people as the sudden appearance of the German troops takes them completely unaware. But freedom is a precious heritage and therein lies the story that a people's hopes, strength and spirit never completely unvanish - even under the heel of the conqueror, will never be crushed.

Producer Nunnally Johnson, who also wrote the dynamic screen play, has brought the novel to the screen with great care and faithfulness. The cast was selected particularly for ability to fulfill the qualifications of the individual roles.

The entire picture is a rare cinematic masterpiece. Not only has it captured the mood of the book but the brilliance of the individual scenes has seldom, if ever, been surpassed.

Reggio, Italy on September 3rd. The opposition to their landing was slight.

But the fighting according to Corporal Brown, grew tougher as the months went on until, finally, it became almost heart-breaking. The mud, often more than ankle deep, was one of their most serious obstacles. Finally after being wounded in the left leg and shell-shock twice, Corporal Brown was ordered back to Canada.

Asked by the Guardian his opinion of the fighting qualities of the German soldier, he said that they are hard fighters and that the younger they are the more vicious they fight.

As for the civilian population around Reggio, he stated that they are in an almost unbelievable state of poverty - clad in rags and half-starved. Their attitude toward the Allied soldiers was one of hope rather than either friendly or unfriendly.

Asked what the Canadian boys in Italy valued most, he quickly replied "lots of letters and cigarettes."

YEOVIL, England - (CP) - When a teacher at the girls' high school at this Somerset town, in England, was asked to give a message to the school and most of their mothers, fathers, brothers and sisters were vaccinated as a precautionary measure.

Island Soldier Returns From Italy

After four years and four months of service overseas, Corporal Harold Brown has arrived home in Alberton. He came to the city Saturday to visit his aunt, Mrs. J. Bryenton, 38 Water Street, with whom he will be staying for a few days before proceeding to his unit's headquarters in Regina.

Corporal Brown enlisted with the Canadian Unit (Machine Gun Section) in September, 1939, and went overseas in December of the same year. He remained in England until June, 1943, and landed in Sicily on July 10th. He disembarked with his regiment at
