Great Racing On S' Side Ice

(Special to the Guardian)

SUMMERSIDE, Jan. 26.—The first race of the Summerside Driving Club was held on the Summerside harbor on Saturday afternoon with an excellent sheet of ice, and much credit is due Messrs. G. W. Bell, Frank Calbeck, Robert Phillips and others for the work they put on it. The race was held under ideal weather conditions with a large crowd of spectators and four classes with fifteen contestants.

In Class A there were four horses and it was a real battle between Mickey Aubrey and Jessica the Great with Mickey winning out. Jas. Aubrey and Peter Will Tell divided third money. But it is expected that both these horses will loom up better at the next meet as no doubt when Crockett gets the regulators on Jas. Aubrey he will make the best of them step and this being Peter's first start with a new driver and he not having the right key, got away with bad starts.

In the special class there were two starters namely Bud Doble, a recent importation from the Mainland, and Zeke Todd, a turf campaigner and a winner of a number of races across on the Mainland. The latter winning the laurels.

In Class B there were three starters with Helen S., and the two four-year-olds, Princess Catherine and Cyril F. J. The latter two made a horse race in each heat from start to finish, with Cyril F. J. winning out by inches and Helen S. in third position.

Class C came out with six ready-to-go starters, Byng Girl winning in we were expecting great things of them. The speaker's address could rightly be interpreted "The Call to Service." Dr. Robinson told a story on Liberty during the Civil War in the U. S. A., how a school principal had enlisted and as he called his roll all the boys in his class answered "Ready" when their name was called.

The speaker told of many tales of poverty of women and children slaving away night and day in order to exist. He sounded a call to Christian Service to the young folk of the City to follow God's lead and choose a path that he has set for them—a pathway of service.

In closing, Dr. Robinson told of his visit to Assyria and of a nurse at a leper colony there, a young lady, who had given her life, willing to work for those so stricken with the dread disease of leprosy that nobody would come near them, that nobody would touch them and yet this nurse was there, working year in and year out looking after and caring for those unfortunate people.

The hearty thanks was tendered Miss Robinson and Dr. Robinson for coming to Charlottetown and for their service.

The thanks of the Y. M. C. A. was tendered Dr. Robinson and the Steward of Trinity Church for allowing the use of their hall for this service.

Rev. Scott Fulton took the opening prayer and Dr. Ramsay brought the meeting to a close with prayer and benediction.

A very interesting address for men was delivered by Dr. Robinson at the Y. M. C. A. in the afternoon on the significant topic of "Seeing Life." Life is a word sometimes used ambiguously, and Dr. Robinson stated, often means death or decay, as "seeing life" means for many, habits of degradation. Dr. Robinson pointed out that 60,000 women die annually in America from a disease that is the result of man's immorality. The price of "sowing wild oats" is very great, in part to the individual but more so to the delinquent's family, wife and children. Hospitals are full of the product of the fiendish traffic, people whom society scorns. One of the greatest fallacies ever uttered is that it is necessary for a man to "sow his wild oats." Christianity offers relief, and many cases of recovery and return to clean life are recorded. Dr. Robinson concluded with an appeal to young men to keep their minds clean and pure.

a wide area. The craft had fallen apparently from a high altitude. The motor had been torn from the fuselage and hurled more than 100 feet from the ship. The right wing was demolished and the tail was torn off. A search of the deep snow, which was drifted over the wreckage revealed no trace of the fliers. Pilots Joe Crosson and Harold Gillen who made the discovery said Ellison and Rowland must have been killed at the moment of impact. Details of the find were communicated to the Seattle Times today in radio messages from Marion Swenson, marooned on the fur trading ship Hamah at North Cape, Ellison and Rowland left Teller, Alaska, November 9 from North Cape to transport passengers and furs from the Nansk to Nome. They were never seen again.

STIMSON'S PROPOSALS

LONDON, Jan. 25.—A proposal that the London Naval Conference consider limitation of cruisers, destroyers and submarines ahead of every other question has been made by United States Secretary of State, Henry L. Stimson. The American position is that limitation of cruisers and other auxiliaries is the main objective of the five power parity and that other questions including those raised by France should wait until this is settled. There is no objection to this procedure at least thus far from the British and Japanese delegations, it is learned, but the French apparently have not decided what attitude to take towards Stimson's plea. The American view is that limitation of battleships already has been achieved and while desirable to extend the present holiday, this is felt less important than to check the race for cruiser strength.

The Franco-British negotiations on the so called transactional proposal or tonnage shift from one category to another around which the vital work of the conference now centres are said to be preoccupied with following questions.

1—How many categories shall the navies be divided; the British for example propose nine, the French four.

2—How many years of warning must be given before shipping tonnage from one category to another. The French propose one, while the British are understood to favor a longer period.

3. Shall ships from all categories in all categories be permissible or shall some categories be excepted. The British seem to want to except capital ships and submarines, the French want no exception.

4.—May tonnage be shifted from the larger to the smaller categories or the smaller to the larger or both ways. May the whole of one category be shifted to another or only a certain percentage and what percentage.

AGREEMENT MAY BE REACHED OVER WEEK-END

It is hoped a Franco-British agreement on at least some of these questions will be reached over the week-end. Italian circles hope some agreement may be reached, by which France will be given such powers as to make her willing to accept the British principle of naval parity with European continental powers. Members of the French delegation also expressed hope for a solution. Success of the conference will depend to a great extent on the attitude of newspapermen in the general opinion of statesmen and diplomats. On the whole the newspapers of this country show little interest in the preliminary proceedings. Journals of interest including the London Times, the Daily Telegraph, and the Morning Post give their readers about one column a day on the parity. Those newspapers have a circulation of barely 700,000 between them. Regular newspapers such as the Daily Mail, the Express and the Chronicle with a combined circulation close to 5,000,000, not including their special editions do not even feature the conference.

CONFERENCE SATISFACTORY

A British spokesman today repeated assurances that the conference was making satisfactory progress and that the clearing up of ideas which had taken place today had gone much further than was expected. Reports that Foreign Minister Grandi of Italy had been excluded from recent discussions of the celebrated French memorandum were termed wholly untrue.
