PERMITS ASKED TO KILL DUCKS

LIBERTY, Sask., Sept. 1.—(CP)—Duck breeding conditions may be worse than expected in many areas in the western provinces but not in this central Saskatchewan community, 70 miles northeast of Regina.

Farmers have petitioned the provincial government for permission to shoot the wildfowl before the official date set for opening of the season, Sept. 1. Thousands of birds, many of them old greenheads from the Long Lake sanctuary, have invaded harvest fields, and destroyed wheat stocks.

The government is faced with a problem to protect both grain and wildfowl. Farmers, diffident about shooting birds merely to scare them away, say there is a limit to what grain they can lose out of the first fair crop in five years. Early migration of the Greenhead mallards from the north is believed to indicate an early winter.

NOVA SCOTIA MAN WRITES FOR GOLD

(By The Canadian Press) CALGARY, Aug. 31.—Officials of the city police court clerk's office here were still sceptical over the following letter from a Sydney, N. S. resident and addressed to "Curk of the City Court, Calgary, Alberta, Canada, N.W.T.—"

"Please investate in the Bank of Nova Scotia about a jest of gold I got in there three years ago, also in Royal Bank. Please sent by 8 hundred Dollars also a suit-case of gold I got in there. Send me a jeck to the Royal Bank in Whycoomeh, N. S., also notify me in Sydney, N. S."

Winnipeg, Sept. 1.—(CP)—Contrary to general expectations the man behind the gun will not enjoy the banner season predicted in 1935 when ducks started their annual flight from the northland.

Lowering of water levels in the nurseries across the three prairie provinces and the drying up of pot holes, sloughs and lakes has resulted in a shortage of waterfowl according to early report. Thousands of ducks were reported to have perished.

Largest nesting area for game birds on the American continent, south and southwestern Saskatchewan and Alberta have suffered most from lack of rainfall. The situation is not serious in Manitoba where concentration is reported at wider intervals than in former years. The far north remained a question mark on the duck crop chart.

Conditions bordering on the critical were reported from extensive sections of southern Saskatchewan. Some species of duck were met with only at rare intervals while others were so reduced in numbers they were said to be in need of more protection.

Breeding conditions for canvasbacks and redheads were at a dangerously low level in the wheat province, a government survey stated. The supply of green-winged teal and ruddy duck was near depletion, officials of the Saskatchewan game branch said. Similar conditions prevailed in southern Alberta.

Northern areas, with more water than in previous years, have benefited from drought conditions to the south. To what extent breeding grounds in the far north will contribute to the hunter's restricted bag this year was not known. Biological survey parties are engaged in a wide-spread survey in the Yukon and other districts.

A survey conducted by land and air last year showed more than 40,000,000 ducks nesting in regions adjacent to the Great Lakes, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba with large increases in border states to the south. Largest migration in six years was reported in prospect.

Wheat Board Head Hastens New Deal

WINNIPEG, Sept. 1.—(CP)—A stout-hearted Irishman who loves to talk of wheat is ushering in a new deal in international wheat trade relations. He is James R. Murray, the man charged with disposal for Canada of one of the largest stocks of surplus wheat in existence.

Selling wheat is first an adventure with this intrepid human chairman of the Canadian Wheat Board whose ruggedness remains unimpaired by 27 active years in grain houses and wheat pits. Since assuming the position of number one trader, last December he has played no minor role in whittling the carryover from the 1935-36 crop year down to less than 100,000,000 bushels lowest in seven years.

His friends say he is a straight, independent thinker, who has ploughed his own way in life. He during his first two weeks as head won agrarian support in the west of the new board by disposing of more than 35,000,000 bushels of wheat. He has a kindly expression, smiles easily and is optimistic and good-humored in conversation.

As the successor to John I. McFarland he acquired present ranking in market nobility through a succession of achievements that stamp him as a leader. An immigrant he arrived at Halifax 30 years ago to seek fame and fortune. Today he holds a prominent place among Canada's men of commerce.

Difference over a career that figured in family councils were shrugged off, by young "Jimmy" when he came to Winnipeg at the age of 20. He first tried his hand at railroad construction work and logging in lumber camps at $45 a month. In 1909 he accepted a position as clerk with the Grain Growers Grain company following which his rise was rapid.

After patiently serving his apprenticeship he accelerated his pace, passing through trusteeships of branch manager and assistant general manager to become secretary of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. In 1931 he was appointed general manager of the Alberta Pacific Elevator company, and in December, 1935, was entrusted with the problem of shaping Canada's wheat selling policies.

Always a diplomat, Mr. Murray is a hard worker and a lover of detail. He is an advocate of the preservation of open markets as an essential part of the Dominion's wheat marketing machinery and a

ZANE GREY HOOKS GIANT DEVIL RAY

MELBOURNE, Australia, Sept. 1 (CP)—Another world's record has fallen to the rod and line of Zane Grey. Fishing off the Queensland coast the novelist hooked a giant devil ray measuring 12 feet across the back, 10 feet six inches in length and weighing more than 1200 pounds.

The capture was made after a battle that lasted four hours. The devil ray is seldom caught with rod and line. It is a giant species of the stingray or "stingaree" and has been known to exceed 20 feet in width and half a ton in weight.

Grey holds the world's record for hooking an enormous shark with rod and line. The capture was made off the coast of New South Wales.
