If posted begonias, once in flower, start to drop the minute they are opened and the flower stem breaks away the minute you touch it, then you can blame the trouble on faulty watering. Flower drooping invariably follows if the soil is soaked one day and let go bone dry the next. Water regularly or when flowers drop, give the plant a dose of iron sulphate—1 teaspoon to one gallon of water. Sudden collapse among apparently healthy cinerarias, primulas, and such plants is due to rotting of the collar close to the soil where dampness collects. Such plants should never be watered in the centre, only around their sides.

To keep cut flowers as long as possible there are a few rules to follow. Pick the flowers either in the early morning or late at night as the sun goes down. Stand in water up to the bloom for at least an hour to get the stem well saturated and cool the stem fluids. Aspirin or soda or charcoal added to the water are of no use. Just keep replacing the water as it grows stale and remove dead blooms as they appear. Poppies are best cut in bud and their stems sealed by boiling water if possible see that the flowers have as cool a spot in the house to spend the night and they will give you more pleasure.

RAIN DISRUPTS WORK OF STUDENTS—Torrential rainfall hit the province early yesterday morning and within a few hours city streets were miniature streams. Office workers were drenched when they arrived at work and a very heavy downpour about 6.15 a. m. prevented students of Prince of Wales College reaching there in time for classes. So many students failed to turn up that it was decided to cancel all morning classes. However, work was resumed in the afternoon when the rain subsided. Although school children in the city schools were at their desks for the morning session they did not have to attend in the afternoon because of the inclement weather. Not for many years have classes at Prince of Wales been cancelled because of rain. Prof. J. H. Blanchard, Acting Principal, said last night. It only happened once or twice before, he added.

Speakers Laud Efforts Of T. B. League

The 5th annual meeting of the P. E. I. Tuberculosis League held Tuesday in the Charlottetown was a decided success. Dr. D. T. Waye, Charlottetown, was elected President for the coming year, succeeding Mr. John E. Cameron, Charlottetown. The Treasurer's report revealed that the encouraging amount of $4,019.25 was raised last year. A summary of the meeting appeared in yesterday's Guardian and following is an extended report of the various addresses given:

Premier Campbell Premier Campbell, in a brief address, referred to the importance of the work being carried on by the League. Continuing he stated, "we must learn to capitalize upon the spirit of community co-operation which has been engendered and developed by the present war." In Canada, in common with other parts of the British Empire, there has developed community enterprise, community co-operation and national co-operation which is lacking in the normal activities of peace time.

Referring to the statistics dealing with the death rate of the province in connection with tuberculosis, the Premier pointed out that the solution "this problem is being interfered with in peace time by a lack of community co-operation. When the war is over the Governments and citizens will have to take advantage of the community co-operation which is now so evident and lend their efforts to solving such problems.

As an example of the co-operation which has been displayed since the outbreak of war, he pointed to the Victory Loan drive met; also the interest taken by people in the observance of Reconciliation Week. He also referred to the Bristol Day celebration held recently at Morell as another example of community co-operation.

Mayor B. R. Holman His Worship, Mayor B. Roy Holman, in his remarks, wished the executive every success in their meeting and expressed regret that

Liverpool Bomb Victims Thankful For Lord Mayor's Fund

"We Expected the Worst—It Came"

A woman who was bombed out of her Merseyside home writes to the Queen's Canadian Fund for Air Raid Victims: "I am glad there are such things as the Lord Mayor's Fund to help the bombed citizens of our country; I can fully appreciate the feeling of comradeship the help gives." (The Queen's Canadian Fund remits all contributions intact to the Lord Mayors Fund.) The woman tells the story of her misfortune, giving thanks that her family were spared their lives, though they lost their home, in the following letter. From Liverpool, England, she writes: "We had spent many a long night under the stairs, wondering just how much longer it would be before we were wiped out, but then came the dawn, and we thanked God, for such experiences teach one to realize that 'someone' higher than Hitler is shaping our destiny, and certainly is protecting us. On that Friday evening we were just sitting down to tea, it was 6:30 p.m., and my husband and I were home from work, when the sirens started screaming. My young daughter, who is only 15 years of age, hadn't come home from work; she only had a little way to go to the laundry office, where she was employed, but I was anxious, knowing she would be nervous, out in a 'blitz' especially in the Blackout. "We had been caught out once before, and it isn't a very nice sensation, nevertheless it seems she had the feeling things were going to him, so she came home just as her Dad was setting out to bring her. She hadn't removed her hat before the German planes were close to the house. Down came the bombs, and the anti-aircraft guns fired back, the din was terrific. We fled under the stairs taking our little 'budgie' with us; we hadn't any tea that night.

"WE WERE NUMB" "The falling bombs, and flares, seemed all around us. Well, at 11:30 p.m. we heard a commotion overhead, then something seemed to hit the air. We buried our heads putting our hands over our ears and waited. We were numb, I think, with the numerous shocks, we had had all through the night. "We expected the worst—it came. "For a few minutes everything was black, the ceilings windows, doors, curtains etc., had all vanished, soot was knee deep, but we were alive, and not injured. Warden's were in to us like a shot, to see if we were all right; they couldn't find us for a while. The electric light had gone, leaving us in the dark. "When daylight came we viewed with dismay what was left of our little home, everything broken, furniture, yes, but not our spirit. The following evenings, Saturday and Sunday we went through the same ordeal again, still under the stairs, this time in the dark, and in a ruined house, where we lived for 7 weeks afterwards, until we were forced to move, because my husband's work got a direct hit and we had to find somewhere that offered accommodation as well as work. "So we arrived at the above address, we are very happy and looking to the future, which we shall have to make a new home. It was a 'land mine' that visited us, killing my next door neighbour and injuring the other members of the family. They lost everything." ANN WHITEFIELD

The Hospital Appeal October 1st

The Trustees of the Prince Edward Island Hospital are calling all citizens to remind them that next month the annual collection in aid of the Hospital funds takes place, October 1st. It is the one that is being fought by the Tuberculosis League "may last indefinitely." In his concluding remarks, Mayor Holman urged the members of the League to "continue your good work as ambassadors of good health, and you will be rewarded not only here but also in Heaven."

Dr. W. B. Howatt Dr. W. B. Howatt, Summerside, spoke on "the food we eat and the vitamins we should find in it" dealing in particular with the latter aspect. He pointed out that lack of vitamins in a diet is responsible for deficiency diseases such as rickets, scurvy, purpura, beri beri. These conditions are rapidly disappearing but doctors are often confronted yet with symptoms such as dizziness, faulty vision, pains, aches, loss of weight, loss of appetite which can be directly attributed to the food that is eaten and the lack of essential vitamins in it.

One of the most important is Vitamin "B" which gives so much relief to patients suffering from neuritis. Dr. Howatt stated. This vitamin is found normally in great varieties of food such as cereals, fruit, vegetables, legumes, eggs, milk, meat products, grain, nuts, etc. It is needed daily and in winter many depend on milled flour for their supply. "Unfortunately, the part of the wheat which contains the vitamin is the husk and the wheat germ," he added. Neither of these lend themselves very favourably to the baking of light cakes and pastry. The vitamin is also water soluble. Molasses and parsley are other sources of Vitamin "B."

Dr. G. J. Wherritt Dr. G. J. Wherritt, Ottawa, gave an interesting address on the effect of the present war on health in general and tuberculosis in particular. Using the period from the end of the last conflict to the beginning of this one, he outlined the wonderful advancements made in the interests of public health.

He termed these years as "very important" ones and enumerated some of the things done mentioned the new conception of preventive medicine; the attention focused on the health of children—health programs in schools, etc.; better water and milk for communities; introduction of better nutritional methods, vaccines, and serum; the adoption of better facilities for diagnosing and treating diseases; control of tropical diseases. These were the "golden years" of public health.

Now that war has been in progress and countries in Europe have been overrun, it is not hard to see what will happen, Dr. Wherritt pointed out. He stated that the judgment on the experience of the last war. The health section of the League of Nations has supplied a valuable report on the health conditions existing during the World War. Tuberculosis increased in all countries, the report revealed. And no doubt the same thing will happen in this war, the speaker declared.

"Indications are that there will be a rate for 1941," Dr. Wherritt, who has visited many sections of the Dominion in the interests of Public Health, revealed. The cause of this is the war. The cause is a disruption to some extent in health services. The operations of clinics, have been curtailed. Another reason for the indicated increase is the tremendous industrial activity which means longer working hours. He referred to the fact that tuberculosis is not a great problem in the present war and stated that "surprisingly" few have broken down after a few months in the service."

Dr. W. J. P. MacMillan Dr. W. J. P. MacMillan said he had been dealing with the problem of public health for the past 30 years and so was in a position to evaluate the work later accomplished by the Tuberculosis League. After complimenting the members of the League on their work, he declared that there was "no fear as to the ultimate success of the organization" because behind it was "that great body—the Women's Institutes." Paying tribute to the latter organization, he said it was "the greatest individual lever for success" in the province. The Institutes have accomplished a great deal for education and public health, two things which cannot be separated, he added.

Reviewing the history of the fight against tuberculosis in this province, Dr. MacMillan told of the erection of the Dalton Sanatorium in 1914, made possible by the generosity of the late Sir Charles Dalton, which was later dismantled. The action of those responsible for the loss of this institution gave the fight against the disease a great set back. The next step was taken by the Women's Institutes, which were instrumental in having the people of the Island subscribe to the erection of the Provincial Sanatorium. The provincial government agreed to an annual grant of $12,000 which since has been raised to $18,000.

Continuing, he said that the greatest example of the co-operative effort is the way the women and people of the province have helped in the work of the great Red Cross Society. When the war is over these efforts will continue and more voluntary work will be done for the Sanatorium, he predicted. Pointing out the seriousness of the situation where there are active cases outside the Sanatorium, Dr. MacMillan stressed the need of more beds in the institution. Referring to the efforts of the Government to assist the League in its work, he said it had been decided to place a tax on liquor and tobacco for this purpose but a similar tax had been levied in New Brunswick and its validity was awaiting the judgment of the Supreme Court. The Provincial Government is awaiting the decision to ascertain what steps to take here. Miss Olive Ings, Public Health Nurse for the P. E. I. Tuberculosis

League, in her comprehensive report of the year's work stated that the usual clinics had been operated in the province. "In spite of the fact our local Sanatorium has a bed capacity of 82, there is still a waiting list of 35 in need of institutional treatment," she revealed. At the present time there are 630 known cases of tuberculosis of which 186 are active; of these 27 patients have germs in their sputum, she said. Miss Ings told of paying visits to 680 patients for the purpose of providing instructions. Health literature was distributed as well as used clothing to needy families. Since the outbreak of war fewer parcels of clothing have been received for distribution. "However, we are grateful to our friends for the help they gave us in this connection; particularly for the fine quilts provided by the women's organizations," the Public Health Nurse added. Miss Ings then read the brief which was presented to the Provincial Government at the opening of the first session of the Legislature as a result of which the League was granted a sum of $7,000.

President's Address In his opening remarks President John E. Cameron, welcomed the members of the Gyro Club adding that this organization had pioneered in the work of the League which is the "brain-child" of Dr. P. A. Creel, man, Superintendent of the Provin-
