

Miss Nellie Holmes, treasurer of the Young Woman's Temperance Association of Buffalo, N. Y., strongly advises all suffering women to rely, as she did, upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Your medicine is indeed an ideal woman's medicine, and by far the best I know to restore lost health and strength. I suffered miserably for several years, being troubled with menorrhagia. My back ached, I had bearing-down pains and frequent headaches. I would often wake from restless sleep, and in such pain that I suffered for hours before I could go to sleep again. I dreaded the long nights as much as the weary days. I consulted two different physicians, hoping to get relief, but, finding that their medicine did not seem to cure me, I tried your Vegetable Compound on the recommendation of a friend from the East who was visiting me. I am glad that I followed her advice, for every ache and pain is gone, and not only this, but my general health is much improved. I have a fine appetite and have gained in flesh. My earnest advice to suffering women is to put away all other medicines and to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Miss NELLIE HOLMES, 440 No. Division St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Miss Irene Crosby, prominent in Social Life in East Savannah, Ga., adds her testimonial to the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—It always gives me pleasure to find an article of real value and unquestioned merit. I have found Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound well calculated to relieve and cure the various troubles arising from irregularities and menstrual pains. Much suffering could be spared if we only paid more attention to proper living and diet, but as long as women do not do this, your Vegetable Compound has come to the front as a true friend in need. I have been very pleased indeed with the relief it has brought me. I find that I have perfect health now, and that my mind is also more clear and active since I used your Vegetable Compound. It has been of great benefit to me, and I gladly recommend it. Very sincerely yours, Miss IRENE CROSBY, 313 East Charlton St., East Savannah, Ga."

Remember that every woman is cordially invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham if there is anything about her case or symptoms she does not understand. Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and is cheerfully given to any ailing woman who asks for it.

A GREAT FUTURE FOR CANADIANS

And the Country in Which we Live

Sir Thomas Shaughnessy Writes to a Leading New York Paper of the Faith that is in him.

Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, writes in the New York Daily News of the wave of prosperity that is turning towards Canada. Sir Thomas says: "The tide of immigration is turning from the United States to Canada, and is sweeping through the great North-west at a pace that is amazing to Canadians. Towns and villages have risen where but a few months ago there were only vast plains and forests."

"During the past year 32,000 homesteads sprang up in the North-west, and the same number of farms have been created and made profitable for their holders. Though the present year is still young, immigrants continue to pour into Canada. The numbers may not seem big to the people of the United States, but they do to the people of Canada. All over the Dominion there exists a feeling of great satisfaction because of the turn of the tide."

"It is more than a tide in Canada to get immigrants, but the sudden increase indicates great progress in the North-west. Canada is going to have relatively the same growth as the United States, and is going to be a great agricultural centre. Canada is going to have the same protective tariff as the United States."

"Canada is going to have great industries, and is going to make all of its own home products and take care of its workmen."

"Canada after all has had a protective tariff almost on the same basis as that of the United States, but there has still been a marked difference, and the prevailing sentiment in Canada is to put it on exactly the same basis as that of the United States."

"Keep your eyes on Canada. She is well worth studying at this important period of her growth. Canada is growing every hour. She is becoming active and making great strides in the direction of prosperity. Her people are pushing ahead with the ambitious purpose to build up industries all over Canada, and they are going to do it."

"Canada is going to be one of the greatest, if not the greatest, agricultural centres in the world, and it is toward this end that Canada is working. By making Canada a great agricultural centre the people of Canada hope to make it a great industrial centre. There is not the slightest doubt in my mind as to their success."

As to the improvements being made by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, I can say little, except that they are important and extensive. We are pushing work on many new branches and building terminals where they are needed. At the close of the current year we will have expended, since the beginning of 1902, $32,000,000 on improvements, aside from the building of new lines. We are going to keep right on making improvements, and we are going to do all we can to make Canada a prosperous agricultural and industrial centre."

Sydney Lee.
The Marquis de Fontenoy says that Sydney Lee, the well known author and lecturer who was recently in Canada, matriculated at the University of Oxford as Solomon Lazarus, the latter being the patronymic of his father. His intellectual brilliancy caused the famous Master of Balliol, Dr. Jowett, to take a particular interest in him, and, foreseeing a great future for the young Hebrew undergraduate, he quietly recommended him to change his name, pointing out to him in the most delicate manner possible that, owing to racial prejudice, it would be difficult for him ever to acquire under the name of Solomon Lazarus the literary fame which was otherwise in store for him. Young Lazarus took the advice of the Master of Balliol and forthwith changed his name to Sydney Lee.

A Reverend Marquis.
Lord Normanby, who ranks first among the parson-peers, and is the only clerical marquis, bore for seven-and-twenty years the style of Earl of Mulgrave, and was ordained under that courtesy designation. He has been a Lancashire vicar, a Riviera chaplain, a successful schoolmaster, and a canon of Windsor, and has lately, when nearing his jubilee birthday, taken to himself a marquisdom. Tall and handsome, and gifted with a singular courtesy and charm of manner, Lord Normanby is a man of many friends (as was evinced on the occasion of his recent marriage), and he is the happy owner of a castle in Yorkshire which is not a show house, and yet is, within and without, one of the most charming of English homes.

Avoiding a Dispute.
Niece (showing the wedding presents to Uncle George)—I wanted you to see them all, dear Uncle George, so that you won't send duplicate. Duplicate wedding presents are so very annoying, you know.
Uncle George—H'm! What's this?
Niece—That's papa's check for £500. Isn't it lovely?
Uncle George—Very. I intended to send the same thing, but rather than annoy you with a duplicate present I'll send you £100.—London Tit-Bits.

SLIPPING AWAY.

They are slipping away, the sweet, swift years. Like a leaf on the current east. We watch them, as one to one they go. Into the beautiful past.

As silent and swift as a weaver's thread. Or an arrow's flying lead. As soft as the languorous breeze hid. That lift the willow's I tress and hid. And ripple the glassy stream.

As light as the breath of the tulip-down. As fond as a lover's dream. As pure as the flush in the sea-shell. So tender and sweet they seem.

As sweet as the woodbine's fragrant breath. Down the daisy-fingered path. We hear the sunbeams, the merry ring. In the stars of the east as they sing. As beautiful and as true.

There's only a few years left to you. Shall we waste them in the strife? Shall we tremble under our own feet? These beautiful days must not pass. By the dusty way of life.

There's only a few swift years—ah, let No envious taints be heard. Make life's fair pattern of rare design. And fill up the measure with love's sweet wine. But never an angry word.

GLADSTONE TO CLEWS.

Great Britain Never Intended to Recognize the Southern Confederacy.

That Great Britain never intended to recognize the Southern Confederacy is brought out by The New York Tribune in a letter which was written many years ago by William Ewart Gladstone to Henry Clews of New York, which Mr. Clews has now made public. It was written on May 30, 1859, in recognition of the receipt of a copy of Mr. Clews' book of memoirs, and runs in part as follows: "I think it would be less than ingenious if I did not, after reading what relates to the Cabinet of Lord Palmerston, make some reference to it."

"Allow me to assure you that, so far as the Cabinet is concerned, you have been entirely misled in regard to matters of fact. As a member of it, and now nearly its sole surviving member, I can state it never at any time dealt with the subject of recognizing the Southern States in your great Civil War, excepting when I learned the proposition of the Emperor Napoleon III., and declined to entertain that proposition without qualification, hesitation, delay or dissent."

"In the debate which took place on Mr. Roubuck's proposal for the negotiation Lord Russell took no part, and could take none, as he was a member of the House of Lords. I spoke for the Cabinet."

"You will, I am sure, be glad to learn that there is no foundation for a charge which, had it been true, might have aided in keeping alive angry sentiments happily gone by."

Mr. A. Daignault
Was Tired of Life because of Constant Illness.

Mr. A. Daignault, St. Hyacinthe, P. Q., once so very near the grave, says:—"I desire to say that, had it not been for Paine's Celery Compound I would not be living to-day. Five years ago I was taken sick, suffered from dyspepsia and catarrh. For three years I was unable to work, and would lose consciousness several times a day. I was tired of life, and could realize that death was my only deliverance from suffering. At that time one of my friends urged me to use Paine's Celery Compound as all other medicines had failed. After the use of six bottles I am as well as ever before in my life; my appetite is restored, and I can do a full day's work. My friends say my cure is a miracle, as I was surely condemned to die. I cannot thank you sufficiently for your wonderful life-giving medicine."
