On Friday night last a large quantity of advertising was left at this office almost all of which the writing staff inserted in Saturday's paper rather than disappoint the persons who furnished it. In consequence the Guardian of that date did not contain as much news, as it should or otherwise would, thus making the issue of less value to readers and as an advertising medium. In justice to those who collect the news, persons having advertising which they desire to appear will be required to invariably furnish same early in the day to save disappointment. This is all the more necessary in the last issue preceding a holiday for in such cases news is all the more plentiful, and the mechanical staff cannot set up in type even all the news offered.
