PRINCE IS DEAD - At the age of 19 years, "Prince," that indomitable old Police dog, was owned by Mr. Golding Smith, Cornwall, has passed on to the happy hunting grounds. No more will residents of this tiny village be able to see Prince meandering from the Post Office with his masters mail, and never again will his master have his boots and other articles of wearing apparel brought to him by his faithful valet, for good old Prince has gone the way of all dog flesh. This intelligent animal made front-page news on more than one occasion by tracking down escaped foxes. Indeed, Prince was the envy of all dogs for miles around. Few fox hounds could claim the strategy and cunning of Prince when it comes to outwitting Mr. W. G. and in his palmy days his services were much sought after by local ranchers. How many of these fugitives from captivity he captured in his lifetime is a matter for conjecture, certainly their numbers must have been many. Now he is gone, but his record of achievement shall not soon be forgotten by those that knew and loved him.

Average membership of each union in 1941 was 123 and the average shareholding $14.83. Thirty credit unions paid three per cent dividend, five paid four per cent and two paid five per cent. Mr. Dennis said. The average dividend for the previous year, Mr. Dennis said five per cent is "too high a rate. It is preferable to rebate interest to borrowers rather than pay such a dividend." Borrowers numbering 2,297 increased slightly during the year, the review indicated, but the average loan was slightly smaller.
