CORVETTE PLANNER DIES IN ENGLAND

GATESHEAD, Durham, England, Nov. 9 — (CP) — William Reed, 73, the man largely responsible for designing anti-submarine corvettes and frigates, died here.

His experience on whale-hunts were embodied in his corvette designs, which were accepted by the Admiralty in 1940 and built in many parts of the world, including Canada.

He studied he queer tricks of whales, which can submerge for long periods without giving any indication of their undersea course," said an official of the Middlesborough yard of Smith's Dock Company. Mr. Reed was general manager of the company for many years.

"He discovered that to have any chance of bringing the whaler's harpoon gun to bear, the ship would have to be fast, extremely manoeuvrable and capable of standing up to any weather."

NEW EASTERN AIRLINE

NEW DELHI — (CP) — The government of India is examining a scheme to start the eastern air service to link India with Burma, Malaya and Australia. The question for decision now is whether the agency undertaking the service would be government-controlled or a combined one as in the case of Air India International.

MINISTER REMEMBERS B.C. SKULL BINDING

VANCOUVER, Nov. 11 — (CP) — The days when British Columbia's Indians bound their skulls to produce cone-shaped heads were recalled here recently by Rev. G.H. Raley.

Dr. Raley spent more than 50 years with the west coast natives, and now owns the "talking staff" carried by Chief Shakes when he went to Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee celebration.

He remembers seeing an Indian woman whose head had been bound with cedar strips when a child so that it measured 16 inches from chin to crown.

THE WIZARD OF ONE OZ.

LONDON, Nov. 11 —(CP)—The current crack inspired by the bacon-ration reduction from two ounces weekly to one:

"Have you heard Food Minister Strachey is starring in a Christmas show?

"It's called 'The Wizard Of One Oz.'"

ALCOHOLICS CELEBRATE

TORONTO, Nov. 11 —(CP) — Nine men, all former alcoholics, celebrated an anniversary last night. For each of them it marked at least 12 months of sobriety and each received a silver medal inscribed with the letters "AA." standing for Alcoholics Anonymous. Two mottos on the coin read "easy does it," and "first things first."

CRITICAL DEAN DIES

PETERBOROUGH, England — (CP) — Dr. James Gilliland Simpson, 82, Dean of Peterborough for 15 years until retirement in 1943, died here. He once criticized cathedrals as in danger of becoming "almshouses for elderly clergymen."
