RECIPROCITY COMES UP IN SENATE

LONDON, Feb. 9—The amendment to the address in reply to the speech from the throne, introduced in the House of Commons yesterday by Austen Chamberlain, urging fiscal reform, with special reference to the proposed reciprocity agreement was rejected tonight by a vote of 324 to 222. The Laborites and the Nationalists voted with the Government.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9—The first gun in the congressional battle over Canadian reciprocity was fired in the senate today by Senator Beveridge, of Indiana, when he lined up on the side of the administration. Plunging immediately into the heart of his subject, Mr. Beveridge welcomed the agreement as the first concrete evidence of the establishment of such relations with Canada, as the United States should maintain with a country so closely adjoined physically, and with a people so intimately allied with Americans in kinship and interest. Contending for the importance of the principle he urged the necessity for prompt and decided action. The details, he said, were of comparatively little significance and might well be left for future adjustment.

"Shall the United States begin the policy of mutual trade concessions and commercial friendliness? or shall we make permanent the policy of trade obstruction and commercial hostility between the two countries?" he asked.

Mr. Beveridge said these were the real questions which must be answered in dealing with the reciprocity agreement. His argument was then announced as follows:

"If some think that the agreement is not all that it should be because of the treatment of a few articles, the answer is that even if this objection is sound as to those few details, yet it is negligible when compared with the importance of getting this great national policy established.

"As a matter of fact it will be found that the objections to a few scattered items is not sound, for this is a matter of agreement and mutual concessions are necessary. Even so our government has done surprisingly well in the concessions, it has secured. If the agreement is enacted into law, and proves beneficial to the nation as a whole, it is certain to be extended as time goes on and the two peoples experience its good effects. If on the other hand it should prove harmful to the nation as a whole it could and would be repealed quickly."

CANNIBALISM IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC

MELBOURNE, Feb. 9—Cannibalism is rampant in the Admiralty Islands. According to information received here the hill tribes in the Islands descend from their fastnesses and capture civilized natives who live on the coast. These they kill and eat. Traces of horrible banquets have been found. The German authorities have despatched punitive expeditions against the blood thirsty natives and several cannibal villages have been destroyed. In every case the natives managed to make their escape.

POPUTATION OF CHINA IS 406,000,000

WASHINGTON, Feb 9—The proportion of the population of China attending school is one-fifth of one per cent, according to statistics which have been forwarded to the state department from the United States consul at Amoy. The total number of public schools of all grades in the empire is 35,000 with 64,000 instructors and 875,000 pupils. The consul estimates the total population of China at 406,000,000 and he says that there is one primary school for every 11,873 people.

ECHO OF KINRADE MURDER

LONDON, Feb 8—Edward John Corry, who some months ago, told the Deal police that he murdered a girl in Canada two years ago, is charged with being a wandering lunatic.

In a statement which was read at the time, Corry said he had been incited to shoot a girl in Hamilton by an American who gave him £100 and secured passage for him on a cattle boat bound for Birkenhead. The magistrate has ordered Corry detained at Chatham asylum while further inquiries are being made. Ethel Kinrade was the murdered girl referred to in Corry's statement.

MARK TWAIN'S WRITINGS

NEW YORK, Feb 8—The sale of many of the manuscripts of the late Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain,) at a Fifth Avenue auction room, did not include, as had been advertised, a short article he had written criticising Mr Roosevelt. It had been included by mistake in the list to be sold, and was withdrawn at the last moment by request of the estate as was a stricture he had written on Congress. It was explained that only the estate desired to retain them.

The withdrawn article on Mr. Roosevelt refers to him as a 'showy charlatan,' adored as perhaps 'no imposter of his creed had been adored since the golden calf.'

The 125-page autograph manuscript of 'A Double-barreled Detective Story' was sold to a dealer for $790. Twenty-eight pages from 'Adam's Diary' went for $180. The total realized was $2,750.

MRS. MARY SNEAD FREED

NEWARK, N. J., Feb 9—Judge Ten Eyck this afternoon on motion of Prosecutor Mott nol prossed the indictment against Mrs Mary W. Snead for the alleged murder of Ocey W. M. Snead, who was found dead in a bath tub at East Orange, and on a motion of counsel, the judge made an order releasing the woman from custody. The order was given to Mrs Snead's son, Albert C. Snead, who went at once to the County Jail to take his mother away.

Miss Caroline B. Martin, who was recently sentenced to seven years imprisonment in connection with the death of Ocey Snead, will be taken to State prison on Thursday next. The third sister, Virginia Wardlaw, who was indicted with two other women died before her case came to trial.

ALLEGED DISUNION OF LEADERS.

LONDON, Feb. 11—The Unionist leaders in Parliament, have been unable to agree upon their action in Opposition to the Government's policy.

On the eve of the meeting of Parliament it was intimated that Lord Lansdowne, Leader of the Opposition in the House of Lords, was ready to introduce a Bill for the reform of the Upper House, while the Times states that the Union Leaders decided that it would be undesirable to introduce such bill. Both statements lack confirmation.

RESULT OF FRUIT GROWERS' DELEGATION.

OTTAWA, Feb. 11—At the hearing of the Fruit Growers delegation yesterday, Sir Wilfrid Laurier made the reply for the Canadian Government.

He said that they had come too late. A delegation of farmers came urging free trade in Agricultural products af all kinds, and the Government had given heed to its request. The truck growers and fruit men had not protested.

The Canadian representatives agreement would benefit the country as a whole, though it might pinch in some spots. However some classes had to make sacrifices for the general good. Sir Wilfrid's answer is taken another evidence of the determination of the Government to live up to the terms of the Washington bargain.

GREAT BRITAIN'S FOREIGN TRADE OF HUGE VOLUME.

London 'Statist,' in commenting on the great achievement in the British foreign trade in 1910 says England has been able to pay her food, raw materials, semi-manufactured and fully manufactured products bill in 1910 without any difficulty, and also to purchase a large quantity of colonial and foreign securities.

As to details the 'Statist' says:—'First of all, value of goods exported which are produce and manufactures of the United Kingdom, has reached the unprecedented total of £430,589,000. Secondly, interest on our foreign investments has been in the neighborhood of £175,000,000. Thirdly, our great fleet or mercantile vessels, net tonnage of which is now nearly 12,000,000, and gross tonnage of which is close to 19,000,000, has brought a great income to this country. An estimate of income from this source is £100,000,000 per annum.

In addition, there is an income from 'banking brokerage, insurance, education, entertainment' and other invisible items of the trade with foreign nations of £300,000,000. In 1910 the 'visible' exports of £430,000,000 and the 'invisible' exports of upwards of £300,000,000, together have given the country the power to purchase goods and securities from abroad of a total value of upwards of £730,000,000.

By these operations England was able in 1910 to produce and pay for £574,000,000 colonial and foreign produce, and for £165,000,000 of foreign securities. The 'Statist' continues:—'A certain portion of manufactured goods we import could be produced in this country. Great Britain has a margin of purchasing power of nearly 50 per cent. actually available for increasing her purchase of food and raw materials.

In 1910 value of our net imports of food was £245,000,000, and value of our net imports of raw materials was £198,000,000,—a total of £443,000,000. Of articles wholly or mainly manufactured, amounting to £129,000,000, imported by Great Britain for consumption, we should probably be compelled in any case to purchase about £80,000,000, consisting of metals we do not produce, and of goods which are specialties of other lands, and which we need for manufacturing purposes.

Thus in all we are now buying food and raw materials and necessary semi and fully-manufactured articles from other lands to value of about £523,000,000. Deducting this from the £750,000,000 of goods we are able to purchase by means of our exports, interest, and services, there is a margin of nearly £220,000,000 available for increasing our purchases of food and raw materials when we need to do so.'

The general effect of this exhibit is important not only to England, but to the rest of the world, but the influence on the internal politics of England will be of the highest importance. The results of foreign investments in England are being felt to a greater extent than ever. The Suez canal has unquestionably added not only to her commerce, but materially to effective military power of England. Developments in Canada are supplying new source for bread and meat of the United Kingdom.

Total imports of the United Kingdom exclusive of new ships, in 1910, were valued at £678,000,000, ore imports were £704,000,000 and net imports were £574,000,000. Value of exports was £421,000,000 and excess of imports over exports was £153,000,000. Merchandise trade of the United States amounted to $4,427,218,000 in 1910, of which $1,864,411,000 was exports and $1,562,807,000 imports—excess of merchandise exports was $301,303,000.

DEMOCRACY AND DESPOTISM.

There is a legend which tells how a wicked heathen king ordered the holy St. Denis to be beheaded, and how the latter ran all the way from Paris to St. Denis carrying his head in his hand that he might be buried there and bestow his name upon the place. When one thinks of the distance, he is filled with amazement that anyone could travel so far on foot in a headless condition; still one may suppose that in such cases it is only the first step that is difficult. The scribbler who has libelled the most Christian King, George V., may rejoice that he did not live in an earlier age when good men and bad held their lives at the caprice of despotism. He published an outrageous slander on the life of the proudest and most powerful king in the world, stood his trial in a court whose freedom is guaranteed by the arms and hearts of Englishmen, and received a sentence no more severe than if he had circulated the same report about a man of his own stamp.

Under the old French monarchy a letter would have been signed by the king, and this would have consigned him to a loathsome dungeon until he died forgotten by all the world. This, if he were a person of consequence; otherwise he would be executed out of hand. Today an imperial ukase would do the work in Russia. The most faithful subject of that amiable monarch may lie down in the evening dreaming of future happiness and prosperity, and while it is yet dark he may find find himself between two dragoons on the way to the mines of Siberia. In Turkey, on the word of the Sultan, or even on the word of any one of half a dozen of the chief favorites at court, this slanderer of kings might be tied up in a sack and cast into the Bosphorus.

The acts of Lola Montez, who governed once in Bavaria with absolute power, aroused some rash enough to protest. Of course this was treason, and she went about to punish it in the simplest of all possible ways. She bought herself a pack of English bull dogs, trained to tear the flesh and mangle the limbs; and with these dogs at her heels she marched up and down the streets of Munich, with a sense of power that even a Tammany might envy. Her obedient followers needed but a sign to make them spring at the throat of their victim, and with alacrity and zeal they would carry out her wish.

The Puritans of England argued that when the king broke the covenant of kingship he ceased to be king and they abolished him without compensation. Milton and Vane, with their matchless wits and knowledge of the higher and lower law, supplied the commonwealth with all the arguments it needed for self-justification. "The king himself," said Milton, "hath unbound us."

The covenant with him had been to preserve the king's person and authority, in order to preserve for the people true liberties, not, "to bring in upon our consciences a popish religion; upon our liberties thraldom; upon our lives destruction." These resolute men never hesitated to annihilate churches and governments to save religion and patriotism, and they have brought us forward to freedom. Milton's books and Cromwell's battles, made possible this trial. They prove that no right is vested, no law valid, no government constitutional, that stands in the way of the determination of mankind to realize its full self.—St. John Telegraph.
