APPLICATION OF RADIO TO AIR SURVEYING

LONDON, Sept. 20.—(C. P.)—Admiral Sir Percy Douglas, who recently retired from the post of Hydrographer to the Navy, is now advising on the ground organization of the Royal Air Force. He is responsible for the novel application of radio to air surveying, which will involve the use of motor lorries equipped with wireless apparatus to maintain contact between the ground base and the aeroplanes. Wing Commander Laws, commandant of the School of Photography, Royal Air Force, will be manager of the survey expedition. Two Australian pilots, Captain C. W. Snook and Flight Lieutenant S. C. Campbell, will assist him when flying operations begin early next year.

Two specially equipped twin-engined biplanes have been ordered for the work. The cabin of each machine will be modified to meet the requirements of air survey flying. In addition to radio telegraphic and telephonic gear they will carry special navigation instruments and the latest types of electrically actuated and controlled cameras.

AERIAL MOTORCYCLING

LONDON, Sept. 20.—(C. P.)—An aerial motorcycle, which can ascend from and alight on a tennis lawn or even flat roof of a large building, has been making trial flights at Hanworth, Middlesex.

Built in Scotland to the designs of Senor de la Cerva, the inventor of the autogiro, this new motor-cycle of the air is a tiny single-seater with revolving wings which enable it to rise and descend almost vertically like a helicopter. It is driven by a small air-cooled engine of the motorcycle type, and will, it is expected, be the cheapest aeroplane to buy and fly yet produced. Its controls are so simple that, it is claimed, any one who can drive a motorcar can learn to fly the aerial motorcycle in a few hours.

A MATTER OF WEDDING RINGS

MONTREAL, Sept. 25.—Couples in love have a friend in Judge Maurice Tetreau who fined Albert Edelstein $50 and costs for violating the provisions of the Precious Metals Marking Act by selling rings marked in a manner not authorized by the act. Edelstein pleaded guilty to selling rings bearing the mark "14 carat gold shell." Any purchaser might easily be misled into believing they were genuine 14 carat rings, Judge Tetreau said.

program will be followed by the evening service.—Rev. C. U. MacNevin, Pastor.

It concerned an Irish gentleman who, visiting friends in Leicestershire, was out with one of the crack pools of that famous hunting shire. His horse got out of hand when hounds were momentarily at fault, and galloped right into them.

The master "spoke" to him with great fluency and fervour, to which the visitor took exception. Sir, he remarked in dignified accents, I am Mr. Fall—one of the miles an hour Falls of Dungannon. I don't care a hang, sir, thundered the irate M.P.H., if you are at Falls of Niagara; I won't allow you to override my hounds.
