MUNITION FACTORIES ALL OVER ENGLAND

LONDON, July 28.— Sixteen National Munitions factories have been established in England. After consultation with the French Ministry, the British Government decided to set up in addition ten large establishments. This announcement was made in the Commons this evening by Minister of Munitions, Lloyd George, who said the progress made by his department in overcoming the shortage of shells that had prevented the army on the continent from doing all it might otherwise have done. These new factories are being erected in the vicinity of Arsenals and existing munition establishments, and, according to Lloyd George, when the Government has completed the work of a few weeks the development it is not engaged in the supply of shells will be doubled. "This will not merely enable us to support our men, but will enable them to cleave their way through to Victory."
Lloyd George explained that until the new factories are built, the work of his department will be directed in speeding up existing contracts. At first the Government had been faced with grave fuel shortage, some machines were lying idle because no one could be found to work them. One third of the machines engaged in Government work at the outset were not being utilized at night. During three months his department had succeeded in adding nearly forty thousand men and women, nearly half of the present employment. However, scores of thousands of skilled men who had enlisted had been traced and arrangements made with the war office for the return of these men to the factories. While trade union leaders agreed to the relaxation of Trade Union Rules, he had not been able to convince the workers not giving figures, which he dared not give. Were the restrictions relaxed hundreds of thousands of men could be added to the works. Steps, Lloyd George said, had been taken to increase the supply of munitions and hand Grenades for trench warfare. The country had been divided into two great co-operative areas so that all available machinery could be used for turning out supplies. National factories were erected and these to be erected would be under Government control. He believed this would have an influence on the men who would not object to temporary relaxation of their trade union rules when the Government and not an individual was profiting. The Government had taken over the control of the machine tool factories so that no delay would arise in equipping the new establishments. This would tax the engineering resources of the country but when all was completed within a few months the Government would be able to equip the armies in a way which would leave them in no way inferior to the best equipped armies on the Continent.

MEETINGS OF "ANTIS" ENDED PEACEFULLY.

MONTREAL, July 28.— Turbulent spirits were present in large numbers at the meeting of "protest" against recruiting and the general attitude of the employers, in regard to the single men in their employ, held on the open square at St. Jean Baptiste Market last evening, but the presence of a large number of constables under Lieutenant Lauzon, kept the worst of the crowd in check.
Several orators did not seem to see the righteousness of member of their race going to the front and fighting for Great Britain and the Union Jack, and said so in pretty plain words.
Although there was some expectation of a free fight among the audience at the meeting, nothing of the consequence transpired, and the gathering wended its way homeward after cheering various speakers.

Store Your Butter and Make Money

Butter cannot be held in ordinary stores and cellars without losing flavour. The best proof of this is the fact that large butter merchants with their own ice storages always store the butter they hold for any length of time in Public Cold Storages, where the temperature is below freezing. The increased price for butter thus held pays handsomely over the small cost of storage.

CHEESE can be stored to advantage to the cheese always, and to the seller frequently.
