IN MEMORIAM

THOMAS LARKIN
 Who passed suddenly away at Five Houses on January 10th, 1931. His death came as a great shock to his relatives and friends especially those of his own household who were always with him. It is hard to realize that one so near and dear to all should be taken away so suddenly, but such is life.

Besides being missed by those at home he will be missed by many friends both far and near, as he always had a cheery word and friendly way to all, who called. In Church, he was always a devout Roman Catholic and one of its foremost workers, always ready and willing to give a helping hand. He was attended in his last illness by his Pastor, Rev. A. A. McAulay, who administered the last rites of the Holy Catholic Church. He leaves to mourn besides a sorrowing wife, one daughter Mary Josephine (nee) Mrs. Joseph B. McMillan, and one son Joseph who remains on the homestead. He had also one son William Wilfred, who predeceased him fifteen years ago.

The funeral was held on Monday, January 12th from his late residence to St. Peter's R. C. Cemetery adjoining the Church where he was interred there to await the glorious resurrection. Wilfred Larkin, drove the hearse.

The pall bearers were as follows: Mr. Ed. McKenna, John J. Dwan, William K. Larkin, Patrick Larkin, Frank McInnis, Joseph R. Larkin. Following are the Mass Cards:—Mrs. Thomas Larkin, Mr. and Mrs. Justin Larkin, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. McMillan, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Dwan, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Leslie and family, St. Peter's Bay; Rev. W. E. Larkin and Mother, Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Larkin, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Larkin, Joseph R. Larkin, Miss Lucy I. Long, Miss Celia McMillan, Charlottetown; Mr. and Mrs. John Kelly, Auburn; Mr. and Mrs. Michael Griffin, Iona; Herbert and John D. Walsh, St. Peter's; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. McMillan and Mother, St. Peter's; Mr. and Mrs. Kearn Larkin, Farmington; Mrs. Peter Murphy, Boston, Mass.

Spiritual Bouquets are as follows:—Margaret Larkin, Victoria Larkin, Hazel Larkin, St. Peter's; Mary McMillan and William, Monica Larkin, Celia McMillan, Charlottetown; Peter McMillan, Celia Larkin, St. Peter's.

Letters of Sympathy are as follows:—Mrs. Katherine Shea and family, Iona; Mr. and Mrs. Michael Griffin, Iona; Mr. and Mrs. John Kelly, Auburn; Mr. and Mrs. John Simpson, Fort Augustus; Mr. and Mrs. John F. McDonald and Elizabeth, Little Pond; Mr. and Mrs. William O'Connell, Frenchfort; Mrs. Gertie McLeod, Dromore; Mrs. Bridget Long and family, Midgell; Miss Mary and Stella Simpson, Allston, Mass.; Mrs. Frank Morrissey, Dorchester, Mass.; Mr. Frank Kelly, Dorchester, Mass.; Miss Mary Larkin, Newton, Mass.; Mrs. Annie Morrissey, Roxbury, Mass.; Mrs. Joseph Morrissey, Dorchester, Mass.; Sr. Mary of the Precious Blood, Ch'town; Miss Celia McMillan, Ch'town.

Picked Wrong Girls' School

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 10.—When he crept, with the first rays of the rising sun, into the women's dormitory at Arnold College, Sydney Hillman made a social blunder that almost proved fatal to Sydney.

For Arnold College is not an effete seminary where languid Lucy learns how to juggle her tea without spilling a drop, or how to pluck with pale hands upon a harspichord. Rather, it is one of those red-corpused places where brawn belles with bulging biceps co-ordinate minds and muscles to become physical culture teachers.

The odor of liniment, which replaces where brawny belles with bulging biceps the odor of the students, should have tipped Sydney off that he was in the wrong pew; but it didn't.

One of the girls awoke. There stood Sydney. He had a rough twinkle in his eye.

"Boo, you beautiful creature!" Sydney said, impishly. "Comon, let's play!"

The girl awakened her companions. They rose for their setting-up exercises. Sydney was used as a human medicine ball by the pyjama-clad young women. They gave him a terrific tossing about. Finally Sydney fled, but Dean Agnes McCann, in pink nightie, gave chase and brought a heavy flashlight down upon the nape of Sydney's neck, felling him. Then she turned him over to the police.

Sydney was a mass of bruises when he got to court. He looked like an accident, going some place to happen. But Dean McCann interceded for him.

"He has already been punished," she pleaded, "so please let him go."

So Sydney went on his way, nursing his hurts.

Kenya In The Limelight New Governor Says

GEN. SIR JOSEPH BYRNE PROMISES TO DO HIS BEST FOR ALL CLASSES IN KENYA COLONY.

LONDON, Feb. 10.—Brig. Gen. Sir Joseph Byrne, newly appointed Governor-General and Commander-in-Chief of Kenya Colony, successor to Lt.-Col. Sir Edward Grigg, who recently retired, in a speech here just prior to his leaving England to take up his new duties, referred to Kenya as being in the limelight of late. He said: "Unfortunately Kenya is very much in the limelight; it would be better if they could so arrange their affairs as to be left more in peace."

Sir Joseph was the principal guest of the East Africa Dinner Club at the Savoy Hotel when he spoke. He assured those present at the dinner that he was taking office in Kenya with a completely open mind, and he would do his best to be just and fair to all classes there. Lord Passfield, Secretary for the Dominions and Colonies, proposing a toast to the chairman, Sir Charles Bowring, urged the necessity of all sections of the Kenya population working together for the future prosperity of the colony.

Sir Charles Bowring was Chief Secretary of the East Africa Protectorate, now Kenya, 1911-24, and was acting Governor on various occasions. He paid a tribute to the new Governor-General of Kenya, Sir Joseph Byrne, on his qualifications for his new post. He said that Sir Joseph's police experience alone would commend his appointment to the most extreme and irreconcilable critic of the Kenya settler. It was important that he should be given a fair chance, and the best that the speaker could wish him was that he be allowed to govern through the orthodox methods provided by the Kenya Constitution unhampered by numberless commissions and committees.

MURRAY HARBOR NORTH

Among the most pleasant things in a vacation time to be remembered is the old reminiscences that come when one visits former fields of labor and meets the men and women who formerly were co-workers in the Church. It is doubly so if these people were friends in early childhood and went to the same school and the same church from infancy. This has been the writer's privilege during the past two Sabbaths and though stormy, cold weather made the attendance smaller the interest and enthusiasm of the flock has not diminished in the least. But there seem to be no old people evident in the church and to my mind this means a serious loss to the services. We rightly prize the efforts of the young people and in no way would I wish to undervalue their importance or services. But if they discontinue their attendance at church, as their elders seem to be doing, they are losing the value of the church. One of the friends that I was delighted to meet for a brief and interesting chat was the Rev. Richard P. Bowles, D.D., formerly Chancellor of Victoria University and resident on his farm in my former pastorate. Rev. Bowles is a native of these parts and though he is now practically retired from the professor's chair is acting as lecturer on the staff of the Emmanuel College of the United Church of Canada. During the long strain of the war years we were closely associated in all the varied forms of service and we pondered deeply on the difference between the activities of our people then and now. The Disruption of 1925 separated us in a way but the friendships of former years were not severed and we felt both of us that some of our leaders had blundered and left us problems that might in many cases have been left in the background.

Let me say however that my experience of the work in this Province led me to ask my old friend about the future and with his usual composure he said: There will be a return to the old faith and we will see a bigger and better Church arise, and our grandchildren will ask what all this thing meant. I believe such has been the history of the past and if it repeats itself as they say it does we may look for this, but perhaps the Millennium may come prior to that and make all things new.

The regular services in the Murray Harbor North Presbyterian Church will be held on Sabbath the 15th inst. at 10.30 a. m. and at Peters Road at 2.30 and 7.00 p. m. Rev. Mr. Currie will begin a series of Lenten sermons on The Seven Words of the Cross. The World's Day of Prayer will be held on Friday the 26th inst.

Trade Crisis Hurts Mines In Rhodesia

BULAWAYO, Southern Rhodesia Feb. 10.—That the world trade crisis has hurt the mines in South Rhodesia by the production falling off considerably is shown in a review of the mining industry during 1936 given by J. D. Morton, Secretary of the Rhodesia Chamber of Mines. He points out that the world trade crisis adversely affected mineral production at the end of November. The decline was $1,263,595 and it is expected that by the end of December the shortfall will be $1,500,000. The decline is principally noted in the case of mineral production. Chrome has declined $568,780, asbestos $418,375, mica $136,620, coal $110,500, and gold $218,185.

The peak year for gold was 1916, when 930,356 fine ounces valued at $19,476,555 was produced, but the curve downwards has been much less marked since 1924. Southern Rhodesia claims to be the third largest producer of gold in the British Empire even today, and the position is regarded as the one stable feature. Till last year figures for the principal base minerals such as asbestos, chrome and coal, have shown a practically continuous expansion.

Life Fifty Years Hence

Fifty years hence according to one writer, men will live in a way more astonishingly different from our life today than in our own world from that of 1875.

In our own aerial limousines we shall be touring the heavens as commonly as we do the State roads today. We shall fly beneath the Northern Lights across the Arctic wastes as a short cut to a business conference in Europe. In the time the business man today spends commuting a ridiculously little distance from suburban home to office, we will travel 200 miles from some glorious sylvan summer home to a monstrous towering citadel of commerce. All that need yet be accomplished to bring the day of universal air travel is to make airplanes sturdier and to perfect a device for automatic equilibration.

Penetrating further into the future, we see our present traffic-clogged roads, where the speed of transportation that the automobile should give us is impossible, replaced by wide speedways connecting city with city and crossing over and under each other at their intersection. Railroad trains, with their puffing, inefficient engines, will be a curiosity found only in the less populated regions.

The great cities will have grown to enormous proportions. They will seem to have solidified into one amazing, unified structure, reaching upward with massive towers to mountainous heights. Their interiors will be honeycombed with streets artificially illuminated and ventilated. The main motor speedways will bore straight through them; and the business men at night will be shot straight upward half a mile in express elevators to his home in the fresh upper air among the towers. Perched high amid the crags of these future cave dwellings will be parks and play-grounds and artificial lakes; while great ledges, supported by huge columns, will serve as landing platforms for airplane. Hence rapid transit lines will penetrate diagonally down to business centres in the depths of the man-made hive.

At night the terrific mass of masonry and steel, teeming with busy humans, will look from the aircraft like a myriad-jeweled mountain in fairyland, blazing with countless lights of many colors. And the airplanes themselves, luminescent for protection against collision in the night skies, will flutter about the towers of the city and along the transcontinental air lanes as busily as in the day.

Books Stolen From Harvard

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 10.—Efforts of Harvard University authorities during the past year to prevent the theft of books from college libraries have resulted in the installation of turnstiles at the Widener Library, and students passing through these must submit to a rigid examination before leaving the building.

In a recent letter addressed to the student body, Professor George Herbert Palmer, eminent educator and Harvard's oldest living professor, bitterly berated the unknown student who stole six cherished volumes of the works of William James from a reading room in Emerson Hall.

"Dirty business, this!" wrote the Professor. The set of books had been given by the son of William James and could not be duplicated, he said. The remaining volumes of William James were removed to the comparative safety of Widener Library.

Chopped Wood On 100th Birthday

MEDFORD, Mass., Feb. 10.—Colin A. Kane, native of Ingonish, N. S., and the oldest former Maritime Province resident in Greater Boston, observed his 100th birthday by taking a long walk and chopping wood for half an hour. He has needed a doctor only once in his life, enjoys good health, reads without glasses, and hears well.

The centenarian followed the life of a fisherman in Cape Breton until he was 90 years old. He now lives here at the home of his son, John W. Kane one of 14 children. The aged Nova Scotian has 20 grandchildren and 30 great-grandchildren.

Mayor Larkin, of Medford, sent his greetings to the family reunion held here on the occasion of the birthday anniversary.

THE POTATO CROP

Figures supplied by the Dominion Fruit Branch show an increase in the 1936 crop of 19.6 per cent over 1929 production, with an estimated total of 49,160,000 cwt. Despite the prevailing low prices storage stocks on January 1 were 9.6 per cent less than a year ago. There has been an appreciable increase in truck receipts on the larger markets due to continued milk weather, and the increase in yield in the Prairie Provinces has been almost sufficient to take care of demand in that section.

Jobless May Borrow From Town and City

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 10.—A scheme designed to free the unemployed from accepting charity or patronizing loan sharks and at the same time eliminating the possibility of any dole system, is envisaged in a bill filed on petition of J. Arthur Baker, of Pittsfield, whose proposed legislation would enable a person out of employment to borrow from the city or town in which he resides an amount of not more than five dollars per week for each member of his family.

Persons seeking the loans would give a written promise to repay the amount borrowed, in weekly instalments of not less than one per cent. of the total loan, with interest at the rate of three per cent. per annum. The application for such loans would necessarily be approved by the applicant's last employer and by the Welfare Department or Overseers of the Poor of the city or town making the loan. Each case would be thoroughly investigated.

The Act also provides for a check-up by the local welfare department at least once in every two weeks on the individuals obtaining loans, so that no unnecessary delay in repaying will be made after employment is obtained.

Reports on all loans would be submitted to the State Treasurer, and that official would reimburse the city or town up to 50 per cent of the total amount loaned. Upon payment of the loans, half of the money would be kept by the city or town and the other half sent to the State Treasurer.

GRAHAM MCNAMEE, LATE FOR BOAT, IS HOISTED ABOARD

NEW YORK, Feb. 10 Graham McNamee, demon newsreel talking reporter, "tried to do too many things" yesterday and almost missed his Bermuda holiday by arriving at pier 61, North River, at 11.55 a. m. just 55 seconds after the Canadian Pacific liner Duchess of York had begun to leave her dock.

"Gosh," I'm sorry to be late. Can you fix it so I get aboard?" gasped McNamee. The quick-witted E. T. Stebbing, New York general agent of the Canadian Pacific announced to the announcer that it would be fixed. McNamee and a band of cameramen clattered down the pier stairs to the lower landing, whither a Mesock tug had been recalled from her duties around the stern of the Duchess of York. McNamee hopped into the tug and waved a photographic farewell to the Cameramen as the tug puffed away from the dock. Morris Gordon, a daring cameraman, decided to accompany the announcer and made an eight-foot leap onto the tug just as it pulled away.

"What's the idea," McNamee asked. "Oh," Gordon replied, "just so I can get another shot when they hoist you aboard." Mac opined that he would look none too graceful during the hoisting process, an opinion which subsequently stamped him as a prophet.

When the tug drew alongside the liner, McNamee was securely roped and hauled aboard the waiting Duchess. His baggage gracefully followed suit.

CANADIAN ONIONS

Canadian Onion Week, January 23 to 31, did a lot to increase the popularity of Canadian onions. It also brought to light some interesting facts about this rapidly growing industry. Per capita consumption of onions in Canada in 1930 was about 10 pounds. In other words, this means that a total of 100,000,000 pounds—50,000 tons of some 2,000 carloads—of onions were eaten by Canadian people. This huge quantity came principally from two sources. Canadian growers produced 29,976 tons, and something over 20,000 tons were imported from the United States. Over $750,000 was spent by Canadians on United States-grown onions. Canadian production is increasing rapidly and is of exceptional quality.—Dept. of Agriculture, Ottawa.
