A WHIST TOURNAMENT, under the management of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the A. O. U., was concluded last evening, after a series of games, and the prizes awarded.

The lady's first prize was awarded to Mrs. John McQuillan, a fruit dish with knives, her marks being plus 100; lady's second, Miss Mary Lee, a gold piece, plus 63 marks. Gentlemen's first went to Charles McQuillan, a fountain pen, with plus 63 marks, and second was won by Fulton Adams, a gold piece, plus 61. The boys from St. Francis Xavier were entertained during the evening, which was most pleasantly spent, a dance and enjoyable supper bringing to a close the series of games.

At the Y. M. C. A. Hall last night there gathered together an audience moved by the desire to hear the songs sung by Miss Crawford, and to listen to Miss Hyde in her readings and impersonations. There was not a note, on the part of the audience, any expectation of a performance beyond power of lesser stars of music to give, but it may truthfully be said that the high quality of the entertainment was a surprise to those who heard those two ladies for the first time.

Both are capable of pleasing, even delighting, a fastidious audience. Last night they succeeded in wreathing with happy smiles most of the faces in the Hall. In her songs, the Scotch ones especially, Miss Crawford got very near to the hearts of her hearers, while the humor which characterized Miss Hyde, numbers amused all. It is needless to particularize—the songs and other numbers were chosen with regard to the desires of an average audience, consequently general satisfaction resulted. Miss Crawford and Miss Hyde leave this morning for Pictou. They will probably come back again before long. They will find many anxious to hear them once more.
