Halifax Man Tells His Story From Gratitude

Mr. John H. Wilson of Halifax Says Everyone Should Know About Dreco

Gave Him Prompt Relief From Stomach Trouble and Allied Symptoms

Verbal statements are received by the hundreds every day and many written testimonials come to hand speaking in a most flattering way what Dreco has done to bring comfort and health to the citizens of this city and country. This proves beyond all question of doubt that Dreco does what is claimed for it. A recent signed statement for publication is as follows:

MR. JOHN H. WILSON

Mr. John H. Wilson, 68 years old, living at 307 1/2 Creighton Street, Halifax, a retired Blacksmith, who has lived in Halifax all his life and in the one house 65 years, writes: "I have suffered for years with stomach troubles. I could not digest my food. I was nervous and never knew what it was to get a good night's sleep. I did not have any appetite, was always having headaches, but this one bottle of Dreco has done me worlds of good and now I am glad to tell people about Dreco. The second day after I started on it, I could see that I was much better. Last night I was asleep before I hit the bed and got up feeling fine, ate a hearty breakfast. My appetite is much better, my stomach is in good condition, I feel fine in every way. I want all the people to know about Dreco." Dreco is made of the juices and extracts of many herbs and plants, which act on the kidneys, bladder, stomach and blood and corrects many causes, such as gas in the stomach, weakness, poor appetite, nervousness, headaches, biliousness, rheumatism and such blood disorders as eczema, pimples, blotches, boils and eruptions. The first bottle usually shows splendid results.

Dreco is sold in Charlottetown by E. A. Foster. It is also sold in Summerside by Gallant Drug Co., Limited.

Canadian View Of Allied Debt

In view of finding a solution to the problem of the Allied debts, the appended letter from a prominent Canadian financier has special value. Bernard Baruch in a letter to Senator Borah dissected the Balfour note, and made important constructive suggestions, which Mr. Macaulay would further develop.

Dear Mr. Baruch Canadian have noted with satisfaction the broad-minded views expressed in your widely published letter. We in the Dominion have no direct interest in the Allied debts. We are united by strong friendship, both to the Mother Country and to our neighbor, and can, we think, view the matter impartially. May I briefly discuss the case?

You frankly agree that such portions of the Allied loans as were expended for munitions and other fighting purposes, were used for benefit of all, and that the debts may fairly be reduced to this extent.

When your country declared war you took your place beside the Allies to prosecute the struggle as a joint enterprise. The required year for preparation and during that time the Allies gave to the cause one million lives, besides billions of their own money. You could not help financially. The claim now that you were only lending while they were giving is so contrary to all ideas of co-operation and justice, that it will not stand even moment's investigation. Were your dollars worth more than their lives?

During the whole year in actuality killed, France lost 2,100,000; Britain 1,500,000; Italy 1,000,000; the United States 50,000; Canada 52,000. In lives there was no equality of sacrifice; must there also be no equality in finance?

I need not dwell further on these points, for you admit that money borrowed for military purposes should be deducted from the so-called debts. Coming from the head of the government, this declaration should carry great weight with the American people. It is a general acceptance would be a first step towards a fair solution.

You hold, however, that money applied to purposes not strictly military should be repaid. You also hold that the United States has counter-claims. Among non-military items you list food for Britain's civilian population. This food purchased at inflated prices, was sold much below cost, and the proceeds were applied to strictly military purposes. Was it not all therefore a war expenditure?

You also suggest that Britain should have transported American troops without charge. Why? The vessels were private property, and their owners had to be reimbursed. Why should Britain pay for their use while they were transporting American troops? American railways were likewise under government control. Should they have carried without charge the munitions purchased by the Allies? Britain's course gladly furnished the naval squadrons that convoyed the transports, and although they desired to step up, they were passed over because of their previous reluctance.

No man can rise who is at the mercy of those under him. He must have sufficient knowledge of details to prevent the heads of departments under him from taking advantage of him, yet he must not be weighed down by detail. Every man who gets a big post and wishes to keep it must realize that he is entirely dependent on his personnel. Often when he takes over a business the first few weeks are marked by numerous dismissals, and he wins a hard reputation. In reality he is actuated by two motives—self-preservation and loyalty to the people who employ him. Many a promising career is ruined by obscure people in far away corners of the organization.

loans would place from the brow of your country the crown of glory by reducing her from a splendid participant during even the first year to a mere money lender making claims, the justice of which the rest of the world does not admit. I know and admire the American people I am sure that when they understand the fact they will insist that their financial war record shall be made worthy of their glorious military record.

Advertising Pays Says Sir Henry

LONDON, Nov. 29.—The first thing to be learned by the man who gets the big post is that there are scores of others capable of doing the work perhaps even better than he is. (So says Sir Henry Thornton, the new chief of the Canadian National Railways in an article in the Weekly Despatch.) This realization humanizes a man. It holds in check the "ego" that might otherwise dominate him.

Attaining a big post is largely a matter of publicity. A man is known; he has a reputation, whether he deserves it or not. He is asked to take on the work, which the unknown man who has the same or even more ability is passed over.

There are a certain number of good posts in the world, and there are a number of men who can fill them. The men who get them are those who have personality.

Life is difficult for the man who has ability without personality. He may be the most suitable among 50 men for the big post, but his lack of personality holds him back, keeps him in the shadow. He is often unknown to the people who are capable of giving him advancement. The ambitious man must realize that progress entails sacrifice. At every step forward he must cast away something which he would prefer to keep. He sacrifices a good climate for a bad one, a home or country to which he is attached or one with which he is unacquainted. He is parted from old friends and sentimental associations.

I have known men to refuse advancement because they would not make sacrifices. Then later on an other opening for advancement came, and although they then desired to step up, they were passed over because of their previous reluctance.

Every man who gets a big post and wishes to keep it must realize that he is entirely dependent on his personnel. Often when he takes over a business the first few weeks are marked by numerous dismissals, and he wins a hard reputation. In reality he is actuated by two motives—self-preservation and loyalty to the people who employ him. Many a promising career is ruined by obscure people in far away corners of the organization.

POINCARÉ APPEALS FOR CITIZENS' AID

PARIS, Nov. 29.—Premier Poincaré at the inauguration of a war memorial at Boulogne today made a strong appeal for national unity.

Invoking the spirit of 1914, which brought all parties together in support of the government, permitting it to wage the war to a successful conclusion, the premier declared this great effort was being lost by the recommencement of party squabbles within the country before the treaty has been enforced.

His speech was in large measure a direct appeal for public support against intrigues now going on in the Chamber and Senate. There he is being reproached by each party with inclining too much to others and not adhering to a definite course. Ten days ago a month's grace was given him in which to show clearly whether he intended to rely on the support of the Nationalist party or the Radical and Socialist parties of Herriot and Briand. Today he appealed for longer delay.

"Before the end of the year France and her Allies will find themselves confronted by the gravest foreign problems," he said. "They will have to make important decisions on which will depend in large measure our national future. Is this, then, the moment we should choose to re-awaken latent hatreds? At least let us wait till our rights have been recognized and honored. I appeal to all good citizens—to

Wash The Kidneys If They Bother You

Take a Glass of Salts of Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers

Flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much meat and rich food may form uric acid, which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weak; then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the chances of getting sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush out the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then set fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer irritates, thus often ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink.
