Washing Windows

Another easy and quick way to wash windows is to dip a chamois in a vessel containing two quarts of water and one cup of vinegar, wring it dry, and wipe the glass as usual. It will clean and dry at the same time.

Apple Sauce

To improve the flavor of apple sauce, add a few drops of lemon juice. This addition will be a great improvement if the apples have a flat taste.

Solled Feathers

If the feathers on a hat are solled, cover them with warm pipe clay and allow to stand for several days. Then beat out the powder.

Slim, Glamor Gals Out as Dream-Dust

BY VIVIAN BROWN

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(A.P.)—Pin-up and glamor girls are no longer dream-dust to the boys. This year it'll be the sweet unsophisticated girl who'll ring the church bells. And she won't be slim—her body will be well rounded, predicts Harry Conover, agent for models.

Why this sudden change on the romantic front? Harry says: "The boys finally got bored sitting in foxholes and canteens gazing at the unrealistic long-legged beauties posted up on the walls. They wanted to fall in love with the kind of a girl they could visualize in the kitchen baking a pie, darning their socks or sitting on the back porch knitting booties."

One way to identify the boys' preferences is by looking at the current cover girls. Since most of them are picked by advertising men who have the male idea of beauty in mind, they select a girl who gives the reader a warm, familiar feeling that she is a girl they have met somewhere before or might meet—they are lucky.

Harry points to Madelon Mason as being the ideal cover girl for 1946. She is, he says, the wholesome, refreshing type of girl who looks just like the girl next door or down the street.

Of course, other types of girls will be popular this year. Fashion models are likely to be more sophisticated than cover girls. But they won't be the ultra-slim types that have been popular in the past.

WHAT IS THE COMING YEAR

By which we reach new fields of service for our God and fellow man.

A door by which we can explore wide spheres of usefulness our world to bless. And reap the sheaves God's Word of witness yields.

HINTS ON ETIQUETTE

You would not think of interrupting a friend who happened to be reading. Don't interrupt the member of your family who is doing the same thing, unless, of course there is a fire or other catastrophe.

FLENTY OF OSTRICH

NEW YORK—Milliners can never quite resist ostrich when it is in fashion and this season ostrich in lots of it. Clipped ostrich, handled like a bumper halo, appears for many a frivolous or formal occasion. You see it in solid black as well as in mixed natural shades which blend and beige. Large picture hats tremble with bands of curled feathers. They contrast with the more sedate bonnets, resembling those affected so successfully by the Victorians after the Napoleonic wars when curled feather tips often dusted the star dust, marked the edge of a bonnet, and the twinkle of jet, not to mention the glaucous of black silk passementerie with its bobbing ball fringe, set the mode.

WOMEN AND HOBBIES

Women with hobbies have brighter outlooks than those without them. Nellie L. McClure discovered in the early years of her married life in Mantou, Man. Her own double hobby of consuming interests in music and writing is vividly reflected in "The Stream Runs Fast" the second volume of her "Antebellum" series. It reflects the rugged life of the artist and the women who make their homes there.

NEED MORE SHOES

Shoe production is rising, but England is so "down" that it will be an estimated two years before Londoners can choose the shoes they want without queuing for them.

LOOSENS BARK

Certain chemicals introduced into the rising sap in a tree make easier the peeling of the bark from the log when the tree is felled, and the process may be widely used in the future; sodium and ammonium salts are used.

GOOD BREAKFAST SHOULD START DAY

Chubby girls often try to shortcut their way to slenderness by skipping breakfast. This is neither wise dietetically, nor particularly effective, because the pangs of hunger usually tempt them to overeat at dinner time.

A well-planned reducing diet always includes a good breakfast. A breakfast of an orange, black coffee, poached egg on whole wheat toast only adds up to 200 calories, but it's worth a whole lot more than that in providing the energy you need. On the mornings you don't eat an egg, you may safely use a whole pat of butter (thin one though) for your toast and stay within the calory limit.

Coffee that's richly creamed and sugared is not for you girls who would eliminate the bulge. But if black coffee is a bitter, unappetizing brew to you, try mixing it half with warm milk. While you're dieting, leavened white bread from the grocer's shelf and use enriched whole wheat instead to step up the roughage which may be missing from your meals.

FUR GARMENTS REQUIRE CARE

The canny buyer regards her fur coat as a major clothing investment, and insures its dividends of beauty and warmth by treating it properly. There is a woman who has had a mink coat for 50 years. She thought it was worn and faded, the pelts are still in good condition, and she is able to use it as a warm lining for a handsome tweed coat.

The girl who hangs her coat on a hook, tosses it over a chair, or lets it drag on the floor will cry the loudest when it wets into shaggy bundles under the treatment. Fur coats should always be hung up on a padded hanger with the top button fastened. Fur won't wear off turn-back cuffs. If the crease is changed frequently, and the place for your handbag is in your hand—suckling it under the arm is not to rub the silky "ward hairs."

To look their fluffiest, fur coats should be given a good shake before and after wearing. A wet fur coat is a sad sight. Instead, don't dry it near a radiator or fire. Let it dry gradually in a cool place. An experienced professional should clean your coat at least once a year and make the necessary minor repairs before they become major ones.

THE DOCTOR'S REVENGE

Whistler, the noted artist, had a French poodle which he was very fond of. The poodle was seized with an infection of the throat and Whistler had the specialist, Sir Morrell Mackenzie, called.

"How do you do, Mr. Whistler? I wanted to see you about having my front door painted."

Cook's Corner

CRUMBLE FILLED LIGHT CAKE

This is indeed a versatile recipe—serve the cake warm, with a very little butter, and call it "coffee cake"—or serve it cold, with cream, which requires no frosting. We think it especially good, either way.

For Filling Crumble: 1 tablespoon flour, 1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon, 1/2 cup brown sugar, 1/4 cup chopped unblanched almonds, 1 egg, well beaten, 1/4 teaspoon grated orange rind, 1/2 cup milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

For the filling: Mix together the flour, cinnamon, brown sugar, almond butter, and stir in the melted butter. Cream shortening and blend in the granulated sugar and corn syrup. Beat one egg and add a little at a time, beating well after each addition; stir in orange rind. Combine milk and vanilla. Add dry ingredients to the creamed mixture alternately with the flavored milk, mixing thoroughly. Spread one-third of the batter in the bottom of a buttered 8-inch square cake pan. Sprinkle with half of the crumble mixture. Spoon carefully with a knife, sprinkle with remaining half of the crumble mixture, then top with remaining batter.

Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, 35 minutes.

Ellen's Diary

By an Island Farmer's Wife

"Another slice of the roast?" I asked James at dinner. But he pushed his plate aside in next to disgust. "Then a spoonful of jam by way of dessert brought me only a listless and negative reply. Altogether this has been a day to challenge the skill and ingenuity of the cook in this household. Until this evening, it was difficult to choose victuals that might tempt my family. Even the wholesome porridge that hardly ever fails to interest us at breakfast fell short of its usual appeal. This was the help our daughters and our daughters-in-law in taking care of their children, but in reason. However, when they dump down whole nurseries on us and go off to take a job, or to spend their evenings cheering up the service boys by dancing with them, it is something else again. Yes that the way it works out and Grandma is left to hold the bag and change the dummies. If it happened once a week, it wouldn't be so bad. But when Grandma is turned into a night and day nurse and has to run after a toddler with her poor rheumatic knees, and isn't even paid the wages of a baby-sitter, it is pretty tough going for her."

For, fittingly, a new work commenced at Alderley today—the hauling home of the wood. So the farm folk go to labor to labor. Like the harvest home from the fields, I like to see the fire on the woodlands begin. It gives me, and I suspect many other Island farmers' wives a feeling of security and comfort. What a storm sweeps over the countryside and delicate traceries of frost adorn the panes? With an abundance of fuel and a fire on the hearth, I can sit and fret! One of James' recent dreams, and quite disturbing, had been that he and I should carry it away from the woodshed by the armful and lately by handled so that it takes a great store for our winter use. I have been thinking then, to see the first sleigh load of the "green" drawn smartly to the yard. James himself went after the sleigh, and when he returned, he and Jack placed the "foundations" of this and the many succeeding loads.
