The Way to Tell a Good HARNESS

Every manufactured product that is worth it, is marked by the maker with his trade-mark. Harness is no exception. To be certain you get BIG VALUE and get a set you can DEPEND UPON, get the famous TREES HARNESS, sold all over Canada as IMPERIAL BRAND, and trade-marked with the Horse's Head in the Horseshoe. Watch for this trade-mark in buying and always ASK YOUR DEALER for IMPERIAL BRAND HARNESS. We prefer to have you buy it from your dealer but, if he hasn't, it will be direct to us. Prices range as low as $22 a set, single complete, and $39 a set for team, with out collars. Harness cheaper than this is not safe to buy. Our cheapest harness is SOLID VALUE and, in its class, is by far the best for the price. Our Buggy Special at $28 is one we strongly recommend for strength, good looks and long service. We have a stock of everything in the harness line and can supply you promptly. It only costs 3 cents to write us and find out all you want to know.

LOVE IN A VICTORY BOND

"I'll hold my bonds twenty years—then I'll be thirty-five." He went through a mental calculation. "No, I'll hold it fifteen—no ten years."

IX

"I don't suppose you'll wear it, Miss Hamlin," but you are entitled to it—here it is." The Secretary laid something beside her, and went away. "I have bought my Victory Bonds," flashed at her in blue and red. She picked up the button, examined it from all points, and looked up, to find Mr. Evans watching her. Immediately, he became absorbed in the arrangement of documents on the table.

"I don't understand this button—I— Very easy to understand. Ever employee whose application is registered for a Victory Bond is entitled to a button!"
"Yes, but I haven't—you know."

told you I couldn't buy a Victory Bond."

"Yes, I know you told me so. I told you the same thing, but I managed to buy one." There was silence. Ethel stared in perplexity at the button. "It's a mistake—I must give it back—pushing it aside."

"How can it be a mistake when our name is signed to an application and the money is pinned to a form?" Her stare was transferred from the button to his face, and followed his retreating figure.

"Here, Miss Hamlin, here's the button. No doubt, you can identify your own signature, if you cannot swear to our five ten dollar bills!"

"She DID identify her signature, though she uttered no word. Her eyes were fixed on a cream-colored strip bearing the name 'Ethel Hamlin,' and pasted on to the signature line; next, her eyes wandered to a bunch of bills pinned to the top corner of the application. She looked up at Mr. Evans, who smiled triumphantly. He spoke. He disappeared, the button under his arm; when he returned, he slipped into his own office."

X.

The campaign was over! Results were gratifying! On the morning of December first, the officials of the Canadian Jillingworth Company agreed that its employees had done well.

The Company mail included a letter for Ethel Hamlin. Who could be writing to her at the office? Wonderingly, she unfolded the note, and read:

"My dear Miss Hamlin,—I want to leave with you some token of my love—I have chosen a Victory Bond. May I hope that you will accept the offering of patriotism, even if you cannot accept the love which goes with it? I will make a chance to see you soon; we expect to go overseas in a month. I know you never wear a patriotic button, though I believe you possess some. May I beg a favor? If there is at least hope for me—will you wear your Victory Bond button?"

ARTHUR LAWTON.

That Saturday noon, when Ethel Hamlin went home, she was seen for the first time wearing a button—it was a Victory Bond button.
