Rideaus Meet Third Consecutive Defeat At Hands Of Maritime Teams, This Time 4 To Nil.

(Canadian Press)

MONCTON, N. B., Nov. 17—Suffering the third defeat of their Maritime tour, Ottawa Rideaus lost out to the Moncton Hawks, 4-0, in an exhibition hockey match here tonight. It concluded the Rideaus' Maritime schedule. Previously they drew one game with Halifax Wolverines, lost a second and then fell victims to the Charlottetown Abegweits. Montreal Royals also invaded the Maritimes for a single game this week and returned home after the Hawks defeated them 2-1.

Showing Ottawa under an avalanche of rubber Moncton reserved enough strength to slam 21 shots at the Rideaus cage in the last period. Only a low shot from Norman Cook's stick managed to get past the Ottawa goalie in this session. Moncton had the edge throughout tonight's play.

The Rideaus, playing their fourth game in as many nights, appeared tired, but nevertheless played hard hockey. Monty Muckle scored in the first and second periods and Gill had one in the second.

Officials—Jack Brown and "Buzz" McLeod, Moncton.

The Second P. W. C. rugby squad defeated the Third Saints in a hard-fought battle at the C. A. A. Grounds yesterday morning. The score was 5-3 when the closing whistle blew.

Although the game was very closely contested the winners had the edge and deserved to win on the play.

P. W. C. got their points when Bill Brown, their rangy back, took a pass from Gaudet, who carried it almost to the line, and breezed around behind the goal posts for the try which he converted into a goal with a nice kick that just cleared the cross bar.

The losers got their tally when Butler carried the pigskin for a try, a mere twenty seconds before the end of the game. Flemming's attempt at converting went for naught as it was from a very difficult angle.

The line-ups:

S.D.U.	Fullback	P.W.C.
Flemming	Three Quarters	McMillan
Perry		Walsh
McLellan		Peters
Corrigan		McKenzie
Connolly		Jones
Butler		Holman
MacNeill		Gaudet
Delaney		Leightizer

Redmond		Gilmore
Ayers		Murphy
McInnis		Trainer
MacKinnon		Callaghan

LOOKING 'EM OVER

(By Tec.)

Still Playing The Game

LET A AND C BE THE DEFENDING AND ATTACKING ZONES RESPECTIVELY AND B BE THE NEUTRAL OR CENTRE ICE AREA:

- No offside in Zones A and B. All attacking players must be outside in Zone C.
- Forward pass from defending player in Zone A to player of same side in Zone B prohibited.
- Any defending player behind the blue line, defining Zone A, may skate up and play the puck that has been passed out of Zone A into Zone B, whether said pass out was made by a defending or an attacking player.
- Puck-carrier in Zone B may be the first player over the second blue line into Zone C or he may shoot the puck over.
- If puck-carrier shoots before reaching the second blue line any of his team-mates who are in Zone B when the puck is shot may enter Zone C and play the puck.
- The attacking team must be outside in Zone C, but a back pass to a team-mate and one shot from the corner or behind the net is permitted so long as there is no interference of any kind.
- Puck may be kicked in both Zones A and B and over the first blue line but not over the second blue line or in Zone C.

Many rabid hockey fans are still playing Wednesday night's Abbie-Rideau game, and the opinions voiced both pro and con are varied and to some extent humorous. One fan remarked to the writer yesterday, "Why doesn't Gardner teach the players to shoot straight?" And here's another, "Why did the players miss so many passes?" Well, the last crack might as well be blamed on Gardner also. On the face of it some of the comments heard are laughable. However, thousands of such like questions are asked all over the hockey world and will continue until the end of time.

In the first place, a fast-skating puck carrier rushing over the blue line with the mouth of the cage his objective, is not always in position to drill the rubber just where he wants it. He may be forced to swerve to right or left; he may be off balance when leaning on his blade, and a hundred other logical reasons can be offered to demonstrate just why the puck carrier misses the net when chances for a score look somewhat rosy. Of course the idea is to get in close, but one cannot always do that—there's two defence men for some reason or other always in the way. Then again there are some hockeyists who possess a "shovel shot," which has passed out with the Ark, and further still one might find some people who couldn't shoot a puck into a dark alley—but they do not come under the name of hockeyists. With regard to passing a puck, the forward pass in vogue this season makes it very simple for the player who finds it difficult to pass the puck in a straight line. In the neutral zone, the rubber may be passed at any angle, and the same applies in the defending zones, only the player receiving a pass must be behind the line when the pass is made. All in all the Abbies indicated latent strength in Wednesday's game, and the fact that they will improve both in combination and individual play before many games have passed, is undoubted. It was not to be expected that Abbies would flash mid-season form, but what gave the fans decided satisfaction was that the Red Shirts skated fast and never ceased seeking goals from bell to bell. The hockey was of the wide open brand and that is the sort that appeals to the crowd.

Give Jimmy Gardner time. If he cannot mould his team into a winning machine, then Eddie Gerard, Joe Simpson, Cy Denny, Newy Lalonde, Art Ross and many other famous coaches would fall the same as he, because Gardner knows as much hockey as any of them and is undoubtedly as good a leader. So let's go everybody, get behind the genial Jimmy and his smart aggregation of hockeyists.

RESPECTS ABBIE PROWESS

The following comment from the pen of W. J. Foley, Halifax Sports Writer is timely—and shall we say, hits the nail on the head. At any rate the self same Foley knows his hockey, and reading his comment between the lines, one is inclined to believe that the Abbies command a certain respect in the Blueson Capital and vicinity. Here it is:

Jimmy Gardner's Charlottetown Abegweits defeated the Rideaus, of Ottawa, in the Island hockey igloo last night by a 2-1 score in a fast exhibition game. The fact that the Abbies just nosed out the Upper Canadian team, which is just a fair collection of hockey players, would seem to indicate that the Abbies are not so far advanced in their practice. When the Abbies hit their stride they should furnish great opposition to the Moncton Hawks and the Halifax Wolverines. Some people are inclined to think the Abbies as the "weak sisters" of the Maritime Hockey League. Believe it or Not, there are no "weak sisters" in this circuit. The Abbies have a nice team. To those who doubt this statement I would like to say: "Wait and see."

Kerrect "W. J."—"Wait and see."

RETURNING WITHOUT A WIN

Rideaus no doubt are a disappointed lot of hockeyists returning today to the Dominion Capital. They came to the Maritimes, they saw, but conquered not. They lost to Moncton Hawks last night, making it three straight and one draw in a row—not a very creditable record for the boys who come from the hockey country up yonder. The Maritimes are coming into their own, at least in a hockey sense; and who knows history may be in the making this coming winter.

Miniature Rifle Shooting

Miniature rifle shots from the city and vicinity open up the 1932-33 activities on the Armouries range tonight. Extensive repairs have been made to the range and lighting system, new rifles are being supplied and the members will find the range very comfortable.

It is expected that a team from the Charlottetown Club will shoot against Summerside in a week or so and this team will be picked by the Secretary taking the highest average scores for this season.

This shooting club is not run strictly under the militia and welcomes any person who takes an interest. Some splendid shots have found their best training on the miniature range and apart from this the good fellowship on the range each night ensures one of an evening well spent.

For the first few nights, instructions regarding the rifles, sights, etc., will be given for the benefit of all new members.

Old members of the club are especially requested to be on hand and bring along new members.

Lace Worn Once By Men and Women

PARIS, Nov. 17—Lace was born in the 16th century and reached its golden age during the 17th and 18th Centuries. Both men and women sat up nights trying to find more and better ways to use it. They wore it on all their underwear and outerwear. The French Revolution finally ended its sway.

"At a certain court entertainment which he gave at Marly, Louis XIV surprised every woman present," says Max von Boehm, "with the gift of a gown trimmed with most exquisite lace."

"A gentleman is known by the lace he wears in an old saying, and it has been admitted by historians that a masculine fashion plate here might wear a dirty shirt, but that if his jabot and cuffs were not of the finest quality of lace, his social prestige was worth no more than a bowl of cherry pits."

A Boxing Treat

The moving pictures of the recent Walker-Schmeling bout now running at the Prince Edward Theatre are a real treat to every red-blooded follower of sport, and especially those who prefer boxing in all its flourishes.

The gameness and cleverness of little Mickey the "Toy Bulldog" was demonstrated to a nicety in this bout with Max Schmeling, who towered above the American by almost half a foot and outweighed him by almost twenty pounds. The talkies gives one a ring-side seat at this bout, showing clearly the action in each and every round.

Among the many highlights of the set-to was Walker's knockdown in the first round, his game comeback to outslug Schmeling in the second and later to force the fighting in the fourth and fifth, and finally Schmeling's drive to victory at the beginning of the eighth when Mickey ran into a straight left and a wicked overhand right to later flounder about the ring, both eyes closed but still fighting gamely until Jack Kearns, his manager, waved a towel in token of defeat. It was one of the most strenuous eight rounds of milling seen between heavyweights in an American ring.
