DOCTORS DISAGREE

A Professor Pearson of the University of Pennsylvania recently reported to the Department of Agriculture that rabies was a disease to be reckoned with, and that as many as five people had died of it in one year in the United States. Dr. Dulles of the same institution declares: "I have come to believe that the common fear of dog bites is utterly unreasonable and that the unfortunate results that sometimes follow dog bites are largely the result not of the bites, but of the senseless fear which is felt by most persons in civilized countries of the so-called 'mad dog.'" Dr. Dulles argues that the connection between hydrophobia and dog bites is so irregular and uncertain that no theory of the transmission of a specific virus is possible. He practically maintains that so-called cases of hydrophobia are cases of mania induced by suggestion and fear, and they do not occur where people are bitten and think no more about it. If so, the success of Pasteur's inoculation is easily understood. By being believed a remedy, it really became one. Dr. Dulles does not say that people may not die from being bitten by a dog. He merely says that hydrophobia is a myth. We hope he is right. If hydrophobia can be prevented by removing the fear of it and belief in it, that is easier than the process of inoculation.

ORDINARY CORN CURES ARE DANGEROUS.

because they contain acids, but Putman's Painless Corn and Wart Extractor is entirely vegetable in composition. Refuse a substitute for Putman's; it's the only safe and painless cure for corns and warts.

FOREIGN PRESS CRITICISM.

At a dinner in New York last week, which included among the guests the German ambassador, Baron Speck von Sternburg and a number of other personages prominent in national politics and diplomacy, reference was made in several of the speeches to the influence of the press on the conduct of international affairs. Baron von Sternburg, in what he had to say, urged the newspapers of the United States and of Germany, to withhold the pin-pricks and to display a spirit of mutual conciliation, and to work together for the larger understanding which the interests of the two nations demand. This plea for journalistic moderation in the discussion of international questions could not have been uttered at a more appropriate time, says the Montreal Witness, for in the press of both countries there have been of late expressions of suspicion, distrust, and in some cases positive enmity, towards each other. German writers, it must be admitted, have been the worse offenders, and it is not their fault if the relations between two countries have not been strained. Less virulent than in their attacks on the British, they nevertheless made evident a feeling of animosity, calculated to give rise to unfortunate complications. It will be remembered how perilously near causing war with Great Britain the press of France came at the time of the Fashoda affair. The outrageous course pursued by German newspapers towards Great Britain during the Boer war produced a feeling between the two nations which may not be overcome for many years. But the worst abuse of its power ever perpetrated by the press was when the yellow newspapers of the United States frantically insisted on war with Spain, and, by exciting the popular wrath over the destruction of the battleship 'Maine,' forced the Washington Government to declare war. If in the present controversy between the journals of Germany and the United States no evil results have yet occurred, the fact is owing to the wisdom and moderation of their governments.

SHOULD BOOM CANADA SOME.

The fifth Congress of the Chamber of Commerce of the Empire will be held at Montreal from Aug. 17 to 20. Once in every three years the leading representatives of the business world, from all parts of Great Britain and her self-governing colonies, gather to discuss the great commercial, industrial and economic questions of the day. Never before has this convention been held outside of Great Britain. The idea of coming to Canada to attend this meeting is proving very popular in British commercial circles. The Montreal Board of Trade is in communication with similar bodies everywhere throughout the Dominion, in order that the delegates, after the convention, may have ample opportunity of visiting every part of Canada. It is proposed first to conduct the visitors for a week's trip over Ontario. The Toronto Exposition will next receive a visit. Then the grain fields of Manitoba, in the first week of September, and Alberta and British Columbia will next be seen. Returning, the visitors will tour Quebec and the Maritime Provinces, visiting our chief manufacturing centres and the Atlantic ports. Literature, giving full particulars regarding Canada as a field for profitable investment, is being prepared for distribution among the delegates.

THE KING'S TRIP.

Every movement of our King, whether among his ministers or among his fellow-sovereigns, seems to make for peace and good will. His friendly meeting with President Loubet is of good omen. The interests of France and England have long been regarded as antagonistic; but such they have ceased to be, now that the supreme interest of each is the preservation of peace that all energies may be set free for industrial and commercial development. Each has quite as much foreign territory as it can manage. With regard to unappropriated territory, the two empires are certainly not on a par. Every square mile that Britain gets is open to France. What France gets is, so far as possible, closed to Britain. Still it is better to agree as to spheres of influence than to fight over them. To us in Canada, sprung from both, cordial relations between these powers are of the utmost importance. The diligent quest of some basis of permanent settlement of all outstanding differences and the cementing of mutual good will is the part of the highest statesmanship. It was not more than a few years ago that Lord Lansdowne had made good progress to such a universal settlement of the questions which are between the two countries, and we have endeavored to prepare the first laurel for that statesman's brow. Though we have heard no more of it, let us Canadians hope that progress is being made towards that happy achievement. —Witness

THE FRANK DISASTER.

The terrible disaster at Frank, Alberta, involving the loss, so far as known, of eighty-three lives was at first reported to be the result of volcanic eruption, and following so closely on the Mount Pelee catastrophe was calculated to spread horror and alarm among all residents of the mountainous region of western Canada. Later despatches and the opinions of eminent geological authorities tend to explode the theory of any volcanic disturbance. It is now supposed to have been something in the nature of a landslide due to the contraction and subsidence of the crust of the earth. While the actual results in loss of life are bad enough it is fortunate that the cause is not as at first feared as there is less danger of a repetition of such phenomena.

A member of the Legislative Assembly of New York State got into serious trouble the other day by calling a fellow member a lobbyist. The aggrieved member said that lobbyist was an obnoxious word and called upon his fellow member as a legislator and a gentleman to withdraw it.

The Insurance and Financial Chronicle says that "the banking and currency system of the United States is an ever-present danger to the national credit; it restricts what it should develop, and paralyzes those energies which it ought to invigorate."

The personal supremacy of Mr. Chamberlain in the Councils of the Government since his return from South Africa is the most pronounced feature of British politics at the present time. He is being openly called the Pitt in an Addressing Administration, a comparison as complimentary to Mr. Chamberlain as it is the reverse to Mr. Balfour.
