

RAILROAD....

KIDNEY

A Disease Peculiar to Railroad Men, which is readily Cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Did it ever occur to you that most railroad men die of kidney disease?

Such is the fact, however, and the disease is known among railroaders as "railroad kidney."

The first and most marked symptom is a weak, lame and aching back. You may think at first that you are only tired; but as this trouble increases day by day, kidney disease, with all its terrors, is fast claiming you as a victim.

Mr. Geo. Cummings, for over 20 years engineer on the Grand Trunk running between Toronto and Allandale, says: "The constant duty with my work gave me excessive pains in my back, racking my kidneys. I tried several remedies until I was recommended by my friend, Mr. Dave Conley, to try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Two boxes have completely cured me and I feel to-day a better man than ever. I recommend them to all my friends."

THE EXAMINER AND PROHIBITION.

Why the local organ of the Conservative party at the present juncture should take so much pain, to antagonise the temperance and prohibition sentiment of the Province is one of the things difficult to understand. Yet the effort is quite apparent in almost every line of its article in yesterday's issue, headed, What Kind of Prohibition? The article deals with Mr. Marshall's meeting of Monday night and the movement set on foot by the Dominion Alliance to pledge 100,000 prohibition voters.

First we are told that the Kindergarten hall was "only about half full" which is untrue in fact. Then the Examiner tells that "Mr. Marshall was not as happy last evening as he was some months ago," etc. We believe the general verdict of the temperance people present was that Mr. Marshall was almost at his best, which is certainly no faint praise. The Examiner proceeds to ridicule and belittle any notion of provincial prohibition. It omits any reference to the fact that in the Alliance pledge the effort is directed to secure "the total prohibition of the liquor traffic in at least those Provinces and Territories that gave majorities for prohibition in the plebiscite." The words "at least" show that provincial prohibition is the minimum that can be accepted, while the Alliance will hereafter as it has heretofore work for the suppression of the traffic in the entire Dominion.

But why throw a wet blanket on the proposition of Prohibition by Provinces? What is the great temperance army in the United States laboring for but prohibition by States? Or, for that matter, are not the prohibitionists of every country working day by day to make the traffic illegal in cities and countries—always looking to extend the area till the entire nation is embraced? Provincial prohibition would doubtless be an incomplete form of legal suppression, but it would be a great stride in advance of merely de-legalsing the traffic in countries and cities.

But the Examiner evidently has little respect or regard for the aims and objects of the Dominion Alliance and the other temperance bodies. It proceeds to find legal objections to provincial. We quote: "There is another point to be considered. The plebiscite vote was taken for national and complete prohibition; and it would manifestly be unfair, upon the strength of that vote, to pass a law bringing Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Ontario under the operation of a partial and spurious prohibition. Many electors who voted for the first would not vote for the last.

The argument here stated will commend itself to the men in liquor trade. It will not find endorsement in the ranks of the prohibitionists. The Examiner, it is true calls for "full and complete national prohibition" and for the voting down of any party which will not give it, but we do not remember to have read that sentiment in its columns in all the long period when its favorite party was in power. The one significant note of the Examiner's article is its opposition to provincial suppression of the traffic, the one measure which the liquor interest most fears, because it is possible, practicable and may be near at hand.

The Guardian has received from the Manchester Transvaal Committee a pamphlet and leaflet entitled The Truth About the Transvaal, being a reprint of articles which appeared in the Manchester Guardian, and designed to show that the present war was practically forced upon the Boers by the Salisbury Government. The articles are ably written, but do not by any means represent the most prevalent sentiment of the Empire on this question.

Cecil Rhodes is reported to have a balloon in readiness at Kimberly to make his escape if it should become necessary. The latest reports tell that all is safe it is clear that so large a city shut up from communication with the outside world for five or six weeks must be in want of many things. We hope soon to hear that Gen. Methuen has raised the siege of Kimberly but in the meantime the concern of persons outside is by no means so great as those within the besieged city.

Mr. Donald McPherson, just returned from the Transvaal, with whom the GUARDIAN recently had an interview, admits that many of the Outlanders would prefer that the Boers should retain control of that country. The reasons assigned are two-fold: The Boers are in favor of keeping up the wages of the whites

A BRAVE WOMAN.

How a Drunken Husband Was Made a Sober Man by a Determined Wife.

A PATIENT LETTER.

She writes:—"I had for a long time been thinking of trying the Samaria Prescription treatment on my husband for his drinking habit, but I was afraid he would discover that I was giving him medicine, and the thought unnerved me. I hesitated for nearly a week, but one day when he came home very much intoxicated and his week's salary nearly all spent, I threw off all fear and determined to make an effort to save our home from the ruin I had discovered, at all hazards. I sent for your Samaria Prescription and put it in his coffee as directed next morning and watched and prayed for the result. At noon I gave him more and also at supper. He never suspected a thing, and I then boldly kept right on giving it regularly, as I had discovered, something that set every nerve in my body tingling with hope and happiness, and I could see a bright future spread out before me—a peaceful, happy home, a share in the good things of life, an attentive, loving husband, comfort, and everything else dear to a woman's heart. My husband had told me that whiskey was the stuff and he was taking a drink to it. It was only too true, for before I had given him the full course he had stopped drinking altogether, but I kept giving the medicine till it was gone, and then sent for another lot to have on hand if he should relapse, as he had done from his promises before. He never has, and I am writing you this letter to tell you how thankful I am. I honestly believe it will cure the worst cases."

A pamphlet in plain, sealed envelope, sent free, giving testimonials and full information, with directions how to take or administer Samaria Prescription. Correspondence considered sacredly confidential. Address The Samaria Remedy Co., Jordan street, Toronto, Ont.

men engaged in the mines and they also keep the colored natives under rigorous subjection. The Outlanders feel that under British rule the natives would be given more privileges and would become insolent if not dangerous; also that the British would employ more native labor in the mines and so reduce the wages now paid to white men.
