CANADIAN TEACHERS IN ENGLAND.—There are 15 Canadian teachers now working in the London County Council Schools in London. Three of them, Miss Banks, Miss Pollock and Miss Ballie come from Montreal, and they are all keenly interested in the work of training London citizens of the future. They have all found homes convenient to their work, but they use the pleasant house at 124 Belgrave Road as their club, where they are always welcome.

THE WOMAN HE MARRIED. BY JANE PHELPS. A DISCUSSION ABOUT CLOTHES. Chapter 66. "That's a stunning dress!" Dick said when on Sunday I put on my Felice gown to wear to church. "It's all nonsense that woman can't look well unless they hankrupt a man for clothes. That looks a million dollars. I suppose it is because you have good taste and know what to buy." "I am glad you like it," I returned. "I well knew Dick thought I had purchased my dress with the $40 he had given me. He would expect me to get a waist out of it as well. I almost laughed aloud at his ignorance. How easy it was for a woman to fool a man about clothes. Yes, I hated myself for the thought. Dear old Dick, I would be awfully glad when I didn't have to, when I could say openly: "I bought this dress at Felice's and it cost—whatever it did. Really I should be ever so much happier. It wasn't natural for me to deceive; rather, it hadn't been when I was a girl at home. But in New York one saw so many beautiful things, the women with their spending money. So I had done things I would not have dreamed of doing at home. And Dick would be no happier—if he knew—than would I when the necessity for deceiving him was passed. So I argued, stultifying my conscience. There was one thing I could not do without, would not—that was handsome stylish clothes. I tried to save in other ways, pinching in buying for the table, although I took great pride in my cooking; doing some of the heavy work, that Dick believed I had a woman do, so that I might have a hat, gloves or shoes like those Mildred Stowell wore. I never even considered that Mr. Stowell was a wealthy man, and Dick only a clerk. I went out with Mildred, and so I wanted, perhaps naturally, to look as well as she did. It is a great mistake—I found out by bitter experience—to attempt to keep in social relations with people in a different social and financial strata. It costs to be in society, costs both money and time. To be just on the fringe, to know one or two people who have and can do so much more than is possible for oneself, leads to all sorts of things—temptation, trouble, divorce, or extra. But like all foolish young women, I gave nothing of this then. To me it was not desirable to be known as Mildred Stowell's friend and intimate. I felt proud when Clara Watson and Laura Burkhead acted jealous because I had been invited to a dinner or a party at her home. I recall once Laura said: "I couldn't go if I were invited, it is just as well I don't know them." "Why couldn't you go if you were asked?" I inquired. "I couldn't," she replied, "because I should not return her invitations, and I should feel under obligations, something I hate. Then I couldn't afford the clothes to train with her crowd. I don't see how you can." "You forget," Dick's father left him some money," I explained rather loftily. I would have liked to say more, but I was always afraid the girls would say something before Dick, and he would blurt out something to embarrass me. So I changed the subject as I always did when money was talked of. But I had no objection to discussing clothes. I showed the girls my new dress I had bought at Felice's. They had seen it when I gave my dinner for Dick's sister, but wanted to examine it. "It is perfectly lovely!" Laura enthused, "but bet you paid a big price for it." "Not so much. You see, Mrs. Stowell is such a wonderful customer that they make special prices to her and her friends. Then too I have all the time I want to pay for them." "You mean that you run in debt for clothes?" asked Laura in a horrified tone. "Certainly! Why not? It is more convenient at times to pay than at other times. Why not take advantage of it?" "Those smart places are awfully particular! I'll bet she would not have trusted you five cents worth if she didn't know Dick's father had left him something." "I am going to her once and have a gown if it's the last thing I ever do!" declared Clara. "I wish I could, but Tom and I promised each other to save for a home, and I couldn't be so extravagant again," Laura said, but a little sigh escaped her as she looked at my gown.

Tomorrow—Planning for the Future.

NEW LAMP BURNS 94 P. C. AIR Beats Electric or Gas

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94 per cent. air and 6 per cent. common kerosene (coal-oil). The inventor, G. A. Johnson, 246 Craig St., West Montreal, is offering to send a lamp on 10 days FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him to-day for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month—Adv.

Harmony Now In Baseball Circles. CHICAGO, Jan. 11.—Committees chosen by two major baseball leagues to draw up a new national agreement today officially voted their approval of the agreement formulated in New York recently which provided for reorganization of the game with Federal Judge Landis as baseball commissioner. The action of the committee put at rest rumors that the American League was not satisfied with the agreement and that consequently a new fight might break out between the major organizations. The agreement will be formally acted on by the leagues, probably tomorrow, but this action is looked upon by baseball men as a mere

Was Surprise To Him, Says White. NEVER DREAMED ANYTHING COULD DO HIM AS MUCH GOOD IN SUCH SHORT TIME AS TANLAC DID. "My wonderful improvement was a surprise to myself and all my friends," said William White, Sunny Brae, N. B. in relating his experience with Tanlac recently. "I ever dreamed that a medicine could do as much for anyone in so short a time as Tanlac did for me. Although it has been several months since I stopped taking it, I am still feeling fine, and am glad to give this statement for what it may be worth to others. Last spring I was taken down with typhoid fever and was deathly sick for quite a while. Finally I was told that in about three months I would be able to go back to work. If I gained in strength like I should, I began taking Tanlac, and it seemed that I started gaining strength faster right from the start. The pains and that awful weak feeling a fellow has after such an attack, gradually disappeared, and my strength returned so fast that in just six weeks I was able to go back to work. It was quite a surprise to me to be feeling as well as I ever did in my life so soon, and since Tanlac was what put me on my feet, I gladly give it the highest praise." "Tanlac is sold in Charlottetown by Reddin Bros., in Montserrat by H. J. Mabon, J. P. White, Murray River, H. M. Chisholm, North Tryon, R. H. Coobon, Murray Harbor, Lord's Company, Borden, Lord's Company, Cape Traverse and Lord's Company, Carleton, J. W. McEwen, Bristol, A. J. McNeven, Bonshaw.

Carpentier Ready To Abandon Ring

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 11.—Georges Carpentier, champion heavyweight of Europe, in an interview in "Telegraaf," regarding his coming fight with Jack Dempsey, expressed optimism over the outcome. He said it would be a hard fight but that the result was not for him to predict. He had nothing to offer regarding definite arrangements as to where the fight is to be held. "Whether I retire from the boxing game depends upon the result of the match with Dempsey," Carpentier said. "If I am beaten I will retire, if not I probably shall go on fighting for some time." Thomas A. Edison. Who Worked Whole Year to Reproduce a Single Word so That it Would Suit Him. Everybody knows that Mr. Edison's inventions have always been ones that speeded the progress of the world. Edison gave the world Broadway, the magnificent, the well lighted stores of this city and your own electric reading lamp that takes the place of the kerosene lamp that your father used. Edison has one great ambition, one chief hope—which is, that every home shall have the happiness, the contentment and the inspiration to loftier ideals that good music brings. The home without music in it is incomplete. The heart without a song in it has an empty void.
