FUNERAL YESTERDAY — The funeral of Andrew Cass was held yesterday afternoon from his late residence at Cornwall. Service was conducted by Rev. T. W. Goodwill assisted by Rev. E. R. Wood-Ken. The pallbearers were Messrs. Doersty, Brewer, Boyle, Michael McManus, Michael Dev-ereaux, James McPhail, John Hearty. Interment Clyde River Cemetery.

TWO ACCIDENTS IN CITY — Two minor car accidents occurred in the city yesterday — both at intersections. Late last night two out-of-town cars were in collision at the corner of Kent and Great George Streets. One of the cars, a coupe, was badly damaged when it was hit broadside while the other, a sedan, received some damage to its headlight. Nobody received any injuries in the accident. In the morning yesterday two cars collided at the Baptist Church corner, one of the drivers receiving slight cuts. One of the cars was on Fitzroy Street and the other going north on Prince. Both cars were slightly damaged.

STUDENTS ENROLLED — Prince of Wales College opened for the 1940-41 term yesterday and a total of 234 students enrolled in the classes of second, third and fourth years. This figure is slightly below the corresponding figures for last year. College officials said. In the second year class the enrollment for the term is 187, in third year 36 and in fourth year 11. The first year students will register in the corresponding figures of eleven in Montague School having an enrollment of 20 on the opening day yesterday. This is larger than in former years. The city schools, which also opened classes yesterday, had enrollment as follows: Queen Square 600, Prince Street 500, Rochford Square 552, Notre Dame 200. Figures for the enrollment at West Kent were not available until this night. Mr. H. W. Yeo, Principal, said. Last year the enrollment for West Kent was 550. The Model School figures were also unavailable but approximately 125 attended classes there last year.

Fine Weather Returns After High Wind
 Fine weather returned to Prince Edward Island yesterday after a night of high wind and rain. Damage was confined principally to battered grain crops. In Charlottetown a few ornamental trees were blown down, taking some electric wires with them. The western end of the province was hardest hit. At Borden the car ferry Charlottetown struggled in the darkness with wind and tide for almost an hour before making her pier. Captain John Read said the storm was the worst in his more than 20 years experience on the route. Service between Borden and Toronto since the Hawker after hawser snapped as attempts were made to get the big ferry in to the dock. Wind and tide would make the vessel near unmanageable and the Captain would head out of the small harbor inside the breakwater. The ship would turn about and try again only to have to repeat the attempt.
 Finally a slight lull gave the Captain the chance he waited for and the docking was accomplished without damage to the ship.
 Numbers of passengers were on board the boat because of the storm a freight crossing was not made until early in the morning. At Charlottetown no rain fell except for a few minutes when it amounted to hardly more than a mist.
 Highest wind velocity recorded at the Charlottetown Experimental Station was 36-miles-per-hour. Wind velocity in the western section of the province was higher. In several areas considerable rain fell, particularly in Prince County.
 The storm which began late Monday afternoon blew itself out early yesterday morning.

Registration Of Women Ends Tonight
 The voluntary registration of women in Charlottetown was pressing "very satisfactorily," Mrs. J. A. Macmillan who heads the committee in charge of the work here said last night. They were looking for bigger registration tomorrow.
 The voluntary registration of women began here yesterday and will conclude at 8:30 this evening. Mrs. Macmillan said she could not give figures as the returns were not checked yet.
 In country districts the date of registration has been set for September 18.
 Mrs. Macmillan appealed to all women, regardless of race, creed or society to take advantage of this registration which will finish this evening. Everybody has something they can do to help our cause, she said.
 Texts of final appeals by Mrs. R. Moorhead Legate and Mrs. A. B. Cosh follow.

MRS. R. MOOREHEAD LEGATE
 Recently, when our Canadian-born Lord Beaverbrook, Air Minister for the United Kingdom found that there was urgent need for an industry, a supply of aluminum, so much used in the building of war-planes, he issued an appeal which went razing through Great Britain and the Empire asking them to donate their pots and pans to meet the emergency. And nobly they responded, one and all. Her Majesty the Queen's own little princesses' toy kitchenware, and even a poor woman's battered tea-strainer rolled in to swell the national fund. So great and hearty was the response that soon all that was needed was obtained — and more.
 The story goes that two Cockney women were discussing a mutual acquaintance. One of them said: "Oh, hert! She's kind 'round with 'er nose in the air and has no time to speak to the likes of you 'n' me." The other replied: "I've seen 'er in 'er own kitchen." And the point which the story brings home to us is what co-operation, unity and strength of purpose can do. Of course, one woman cannot of itself bring down a bomber, but, taken collectively, who can estimate what Britain has been saved and the enemy has lost as a result of that widespread women's effort.
 And so it is with this Voluntary — that glorious word "voluntary" — which we here in Canada can still treasure, though it has been lost to the European nations that have gone under the heel of Germany. So it is with this Voluntary Registration of the women of Canada. And what is this Voluntary Registration? It is just the pooling of our resources, the offering of each gift or talent, whether great or small, to the good of our country, to be used for our country's welfare in this time of grave national emergency. It is the expression of our willingness and our readiness to do our part at a moment's notice, in backing up the brave lads whose names have buckled on, and whom we have sent forth with high hearts to face such fearful odds.
 I do believe that if we could ask each other to do this, that our great movement, that their shout would come booming across the ocean that divides us.
 "Carry On, Canadian Women, Carry On!"

MRS. A. B. COSH
 In this, our closing appeal, may I point out once more to the women of Charlottetown, the clear call to duty extended by those who have already responded to you during the past two weeks.
 On Friday and Wednesday of this week, from 10 a.m. to 8:30 p.m., it will be your privilege to come to one of the six registration booths at Charlottetown, the clear call to duty extended by those who have already responded to you during the past two weeks.
 Let no one think that lack of higher education is any barrier to service. Those who are physically unfit for a life of stress and strain, may give incentive and encouragement to those workers in the forefront of this crusade.
 Many of you have heard the Organizing Secretary, Miss Margaret Hindman, tell the following pertinent story. On the day that our Empire was shocked into silence by the collapse of our ally — France — she was sitting with a certain woman, who was working overtime at Voluntary Registration Headquarters. Her reply was: "Never did I realize that I could be of any use to my country. I can do for those who are using the education I am so fortunate enough to have. I can do for those who are using the education I am so fortunate enough to have. I can do for those who are using the education I am so fortunate enough to have."
 Let us also be vigilant and alert for evidence of disloyal, and worse still, of subversive activity in our midst — for this undoubtedly there is — be we ever so sceptical.
 Do not imagine for one instant that this little gem of Canada — this little gem of Dominion — this Garden of the Gulf, has been left out of our clever enemy's calculations in his policy of "defeatism" from "Not Be then, I beg for ever alert to counteract such influences, and how better can this be done than by a co-ordinated body of efficient women banded together in the interests of our glorious cause.

 After hearing reports of the different conveners, the meeting was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

Island Jesuit Visits Former Home Here
 Rev. Elliot McGuigan, S.J., is in the city at present visiting his father, Dr. J. D. McGuigan and Mrs. McGuigan and family. He arrived recently from England where he spent a couple of months on his way from Italy.
 Fr. McGuigan has been studying at the Gregorian University in Rome for the past two years and was obliged to return to Canada when all British subjects were ordered to leave Italy on account of the possibility of war between that country and the British Empire. He left there in May.
 Speaking of conditions in Italy, he said that the country did not contain a large supply of food-stuffs and in his opinion could not hold out under such conditions for a very long time. There were numerous demonstrations of University students who were agitating for war against Great Britain during the winter and early spring months. This was before the country entered the war on the side of Germany. The people are under the domination of Mussolini who makes everything compulsory.
 Fr. McGuigan said that before he left Italy the general opinion was that the country would not go to war against Britain but on account of the continual demonstrations by certain factions, the British Government thought it advisable for all British subjects to leave the country.
 He saw Pope Pius 12th shortly before leaving the country and the Holy Father looked "tired and worn" with worry. He looked 75 years older, Fr. McGuigan said.
 On his way from Italy the Island Jesuit passed through the Southern part of France and near Paris, Steady streams of Belgian refugees were encountered on the journey and most of them were weeping. The women and children were terrified by their plight. Everything was in a turmoil and even buses were not available. The French people were discouraged and pessimistic. They could see no hope. The only thing that gave them reason
