THREE SKELETONS FOUND IN RUINS

Those of Mrs Fenwick, Her Guest, Mrs. Barnes, and the Maid, Miss Boyer, Seeking Escape By Rear Exit, They Were Caught By Fall Of a Steeple

BOSTON, April 30.—The finding of the skeletons of Mrs. Minnie L. Fenwick, Mrs. Walter Barnes of New York and Miss Vinie Boyer, Mrs. Fenwick's maid was by far the most intensely interesting event of the day. The prominence of Mrs. Fenwick in social philanthropic and school affairs made her one of the best known women in the city, and the suspense as to her fate became great. The first of the three bodies was found in the morning. Only a few bones were there, but beside them was a corset steel, and this indicated that the crumpled skeleton was that of a woman. At first it was believed that the skeleton was that of Mrs. Lewis Janson, who, with her husband, was known to have been in their home at 152 Cherry street when the fire started Sunday morning. BODIES IDENTIFIED. Then the idea that the body was that of Mrs. Janson was dispelled by James H. McDevitt, a Chelsea man of prominence, who told the police that he saw Mr. and Mrs. Janson a quarter of a mile away from the site of their house some time after the advance wave of the conflagration had passed over Cherry street. Mr. and Mrs. Janson recognized Mrs. McDevitt and shouted to him as they hurried to safety that they had lost everything by the fire. Soon after noon the fragmentary remains of another skeleton were found near the first one on the Cherry street lot. A little farther away from the burning steeple another skeleton was found. Medical Examiner McGrath was soon on the spot and decided that these two skeletons were also the remains of women. Near the bones were the frame of eye-glasses, the frames of three pocket-books and in a state of remarkably good preservation, a gold watch. On the case of the watch was a monogram made up of three letters, "M. A. M." The number of the bodies, the fact that they were bodies of women, and the fact that they were found so near the Fenwick home, suggested at once that they were the remains of these three women. Mr. George B. Fenwick and Mr. Barnes were asked to go to the police station to identify if possible, the watch and the other articles. DOUBT SET AT REST. Mr. Barnes, when he saw the watch said it decided the fate of his wife. The timepiece was her mother's, and Mrs. Barnes wore it when she left New York, two weeks ago, to visit her aunt, Mrs. Fenwick. Dr. Fenwick was at first disinclined to believe that one of the bodies was that of his mother, but when Mr. Barnes was sure of the watch and Dr. Fenwick agreed that a reduction of thirteen. Eleven were cut off in order to conform with recent decision of the supreme court and two present holders of licenses did not apply. All new applicants of the three women and Dr. Fenwick were turned down.

WONDERLAND

Final Appearance of Little Lor! Fautleroy, and Tommy Atkins.

This evening closes the engagement of the Boyd Coleman and Co. with Duster Brown; and of Harrison and Moffatt in their comedy specialties etc. These actors have proved themselves worthy of due appreciation, and have for the past week put on good acts at Wonderland, changing their specialties frequently. Little Lord Fautleroy last evening, was an exquisite bit of acting, and the touching play which depicts in the dearest child impersonation in present day literature, lacked nothing to make the audience forget that it was a drama. Tommy Atkins will be another feature of this evening's program, and the last time it will be given here. Miss Moffatt as the illustrated song singer of the week, is a success and her remarkably sweet voice has charmed all who have had the pleasure of listening to her. The pictures are all good subjects including Red Tapism—Testing a Life Boat—Adventures of an Overcoat—Cowboy Equipment etc. Come to Wonderland for the week end performance; it is always good, and tonight is exceptionally so.

In A Daughter Of The Play And Eight Big Vaudeville Acts

Col. The McAuliffe Co., this season numbers 25 people and carry eight big vaudeville acts, thus combining comedy, drama and vaudeville. While at Halifax the past three weeks, Jere packed the Academy of Music nightly and the press of that city were lavish with comments on Jere's good company. Mr. Stanton is the man that the Abegweit hockey team saved from a watery grave while in the ice last winter. A Glace Bay Paper says of this company: A DAUGHTER OF THE PEOPLE. The always popular and welcome Jere McAuliffe and his company last night commenced a week's engagement at King's Theatre presenting a thrilling drama entitled, "A Daughter of the People."

UTAH Opera House Tonight

But two more performances remain, and the Klark-Urban Company, who have been filling a successful two weeks engagement at the Opera House, will be gone, but not forgotten. They have during their successful stay here, presented a fine repertoire of high class plays, in a highly creditable manner, and intelligently interpreted by a splendid cast of actors and actresses. Their vaudeville has also been on the highest plane, and they have made many friends during their stay here, who will be glad to welcome them on their return to this city another season. In the afternoon, they will present at the Matinee, Mr. Power's beautiful Pastoral Drama, "One Night in June," which made such a decided hit on Tuesday evening. This will be the last chance to see this beautiful production, so everyone should avail themselves of the opportunity. In the evening the play selected is, the great Mormon play in four acts, Utah. Wherever this Company has appeared, there has always been the greatest interest displayed in regard to Utah. It is a well written drama of Mormon life, and the interest never ceases. The plot is a strong one, with plenty of good comedy and startling climaxes. The cast is exceptionally good. Mr. Balfour will be seen as Dan Stang, Mr. Powers in his remarkable characterization of the wily John Farnum. Mr. Klark is well cast as Frank Farnum, and furnishes plenty of laughs, ably seconded by Miss Cecil as Grace Caldwell, Mr. Vickery as Pa. Baldwin, and Miss Durgeon, as Faith Farnum, the heroine, are also well cast. This will be the last chance to see the splendid vaudeville, which is a strong adjunct of this organization and which will be changed to make it interesting. Karland will attempt to escape from Russian thumb screws.
