GENERAL BOTHA'S 'NARROW' ESCAPE.

SYDNEY, Australia, Oct. 2.— Although the war, so far as South Africa is concerned, is over, every scrap of news which reaches Australia concerning General Louis Botha—the fine spirit of the former Boer General—against whom many Australians fought not many years since—is read with intense interest. So also with accounts of the arduous but successful campaign he conducted in German Southwest Africa.

Major Harry Trew, who was at the head of Botha's bodyguard, has written to a cousin here showing that Botha's came within a hair's breadth of being killed by a German mine.

"We have been trekking day and night, and even when the various columns had a day's halt we got no rest because we had the escort the General from column to column. We saw very little fighting on the advance, as the German tactics were to delay us as much as possible without risking a battle; so their opposition took the form of long-range sniping, mining all roads and passes and poisoning all the wells as they fell back.

"We had to have analysts with all the scouts to test the water. This was a difficult matter, as they used everything, from Cooper's (sheep) dip to the bacillus of cholera.

"God is undoubtedly on our side, for the escape from mines were truly wonderful. The favorite form was one in which a thin steel rod projected about an inch above the surface of the ground. This steel pin ran through a tube, at the bottom of which was a thin glass tube containing a high explosive. Any pressure on the pin broke the glass and fired the charge, which often consisted of twelve boxes of dynamite. With them all we had only ten men killed and twenty wounded. They were especially our nerves badly, though, especially during a night march. The General staff, and bodyguard rode over one, which was afterwards fired by a loose horse. In Kuba's Nek our engineers discovered and exploded eighty-four of these mines.

"The General is a great source of anxiety to me. He does not know what fear is, and as soon as a shot goes off he fidgets until he gets up to the firing line. He is a most charming chief to work for, and as a General would, in my opinion, take first place in any army in the world. His strategy is bold and farseeing. His combinations over a vast front invariably come off as he has planned them. Local success or failure does not elevate or depress him. All his attention is fixed, on the big objective. While always trying to turn his enemy out of strong positions by wide flanking movements, he is quite prepared to fight when anything is to be gained by so doing.

"I entered Windhoek, and my sergeant Major had the honor of hoisting the Union Jack there. I managed to get the flag that was presented to the Governor by the Kaiser. It is a huge thing that used to be flown on State occasions. It is red, black, and white, with a large double eagle in the centre and the royal crown over it. Did I tell you the inscription carved on the captured German guns we got? I think it is rather fine—'Ultima ratio regis.' (The final argument of the King.)"

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—Long distance wireless telephone communication was accomplished for the first time today, when experiments extending over several months culminated in successful transmission of the human voice by radio from the great naval plant at Arlington (Va.) across the continent to the station at Mare Island (Cal.) 2,500 miles away.

DISORDERS IN PETROGRAD: FIVE PERSONS KILLED.

PETROGRAD, via London Sept. 30.—A proclamation issued by the prefect of Moscow exhorts the inhabitants of that city to avoid a repetition of the regrettable incidents of the last two days, when five persons were killed and a number slightly wounded as a result of unwarranted interference with the police. The prefect also requests the people not to gather in crowds, saying that ruffians await opportunities to begin disorders wherever people assemble, however casually. The proclamation has had the desired effect. It is universally admitted that the disorders began without the police in anyway being to blame and also that there was no political design connected with them.

of the navy's radio service, in co-operation with the American Telephone & Telegraph Company and the Western Electric Company.

Secretary of the Navy, Daniels, announcing the result tonight, predicted that further development of wireless telephony would make great changes in long distance communication, both for military and naval service in commercial usage.

Successful operation of a device for automatically transferring to the radio telephone conversations, originated on metallic circuits, also was accomplished in today's tests. President Theodore N. Vail and other officials of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. at New York, talked easily with the Mare Island Station, the conversation traveling over an ordinary metallic line from New York to Arlington and thence by radio across the Continent.

"The fact that the voices can be started on a land wire and automatically transmitted to a voice radio transmitter," said Secretary Daniels, "holds out hope that persons inland should readily be put in touch by telephone with others at sea through some central transmitting station."

ALLIES MAY DO TO GERMANS WHAT LATTER TRIED WITH RUSSIA.

NEW YORK, September 30.—The Paris correspondent of the New York World says: "The allies' offensive is likely to become the most decisive movement on the western front since the present lines were established months ago. Unless the German resistance is far greater than expected at present, or German strategy dictates a change of plan, the allies will be able to compel a retreat that must mark the end of trench warfare."

"Two wedges are being driven into the German lines at Arras and west of the Argonne, thus gripping the armies of Von Buelow and Von Heeringen in pincers of artillery concentration more powerful than anything concentrated on any front hitherto.
