Micro-wave Station at Tea Hill Nearing Completion

The pictures above show the four stages of the erection and placing of the last of two "parabolic reflectors" or "dishes" which are part of the new Micro-Wave Station being set up at Tea Hill, which will open up 16 new channels of long-distance telephone communication between Charlottetown and New Glasgow, N. S. The "dishes" which are made of spun aluminum of 10 feet in diameter and weighing over 600 pounds each, will house the transmitting and receiving antennas for the new Micro-Wave system. These "parabolic reflectors" are in a direct line of sight with those of the corresponding station at New Glasgow, N.S., which is located on Fraser's Mountain, and is the other half of the Micro-Wave system. Pictured in the background is the new building which has been erected to house the new Micro-Wave Link System equipment employing Pulse Time Modulation techniques. The project, which is being carried out by the Island Telephone Company in co-operation with the Maritime Telephone and Telegraph Company, will be the first of its type in the world to be used for commercial telephone service.

Vincent Massey Presents Credo For Canadians

By The Canadian Press

With a distinguished career as a Canadian diplomat, educationist and patron of the arts, Vincent Massey is eminently qualified to speak for the present state of Canada's political and cultural life. His long service as Canadian High Commissioner in London from 1933 to 1946 has made it possible for him to appraise his native country both as a proud son and a detached observer. keenly interested in the figure cut by the Dominion in Commonwealth and world affairs.

"On Being Canadian" (Dennis) is a frank and stirring presentation of Mr. Massey's thesis that Canada has achieved a distinctive national character. The author develops his theme from his observations of the Canadian servicemen in Great Britain during the Second World War. "They resembled in many ways both Englishmen and Americans," he says "but they could not be mistaken for either."

Mr. Massey, one-time history professor and at present chancellor of the University of Toronto, traces those features which have given Canada its own peculiar traits as a political and cultural entity. With political institutions drawn from British traditions, Canada's peculiar problems have risen from her wide diversities of geography and culture. This situation, he author says, is what gives the country much of its unusual color and vitality. But it is an accepted condition of unity, that we agree on all great questions concerning us. "It is a basic element in our national faith that there is common ground between all Canadians."

Canada the Interpreter

The writer discusses Canada's position as interpreter between Great Britain and the United States. His belief in the ability of Canadians to fill this difficult international role successfully is founded on his experience as Canadian minister to Washington. During his four years in the U. S. capital, he found that Canadian diplomats received a heartier welcome than their British counterparts.

However, he warns Canadians against any formal membership in the Pan-American Union, whose interests do not coincide in every respect with our own.

Above all, "On Being Canadian" calls for an emphasis in our schools upon the meaning of Canadian citizenship in the changing world of our times.

The book also calls for Canadian unity, in a moving presentation of what Mr. Massey believes should be the credo of the Canadian citizen:

"I believe in Canada, with pride in her past, belief in her present and faith in her future. . . I believe that Canada is one, and that if our minds dwell on those things which its parts have in common, we can find the unity of the whole . . ."

Duplessis Defends Quebec Rights

(By Don Hunt)

MONTREAL, Aug. 31.—(CP)—Quebec's provincial rights and the padlock law, two main issues in the recent provincial election, were defended today by Premier Duplessis in a welcoming address to Canadian Bar Association convention delegates.

He told delegates to the 30th annual convention that Quebec "cannot support" uniformly of laws in Canada but "we do favor improvement in our legislation, and laws . . . and are anxious to collaborate and co-operate for the future of Canada."

At a luncheon meeting, Chief Justice Arthur T. Vandenberg of New Jersey outlined an American survey of the legal profession which showed the profession was not over-manned. The C. B. A. is contemplating a similar survey in Canada.

The survey, Mr. Vandenberg said, was organized during the Second World War and was started to investigate United States law schools. However, the commission later decided to make a complete investigation of the law profession.

At the morning session, John T. Hackett of Montreal, president of the C.B.A., said membership was up and financially the Association was sound.

T. D'Arcy Leonard, K. C., of Toronto announced members of two committees as selected by the council. The nominating committee will be made up of all past presidents and present vice-presidents. Each Province is represented by a vice-president.

The resolution committee will be comprised of A. N. Carter, Saint John, N. B.; Gordon Forbes, Regina, and G. Russell McKenzie, Montreal.

KIER MEMORIAL PICNIC

Sunday school children of Kier Memorial Church held their annual picnic at New London light-house. The children were conveyed by owners of private cars who were interested in seeing that they got there and had a good time. Unfortunately all of the children were not in attendance owing to overcast skies which threatened rain. This failed to dampen the spirit of the young and the clouds eventually scurried away and the sun came out making the older ones feel better.

After the races and games which were in the capable hands of Rev. J.A. McGowan and teachers, everyone sat down to a splendid lunch of cakes, sandwiches and soft drinks, which brought to a close an afternoon well spent with the future members of the church.

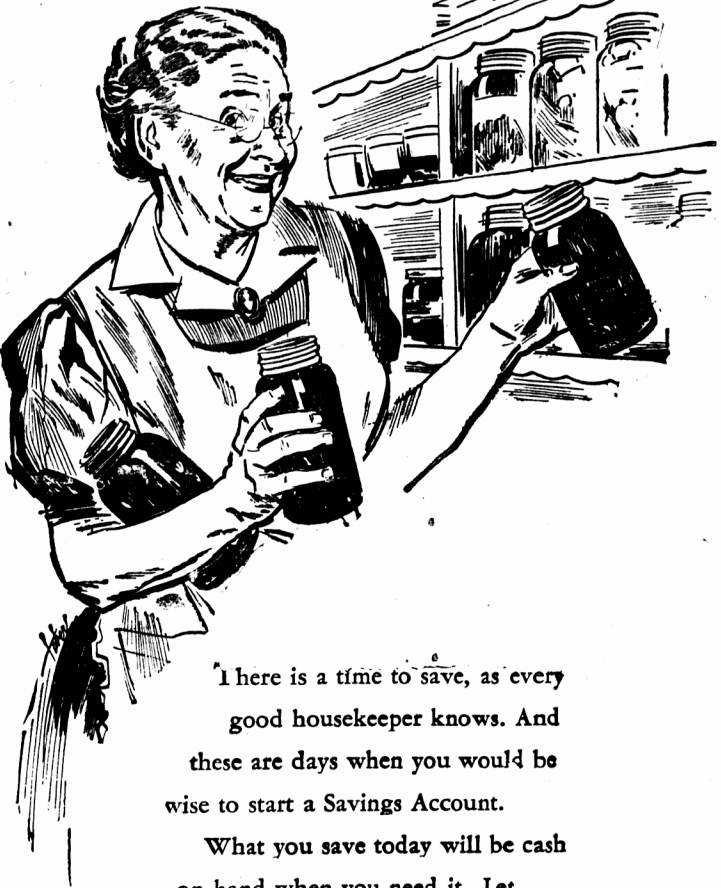

Following are the winners in the different sport events:—

- 50 yards dash—1. Clifford Bearisto, 2. P. McGowan.
- 8 to 10 years 100 yards dash—1. A. Bearisto, 2. G. Craig.
