DAILY SELECTIONS FOR READERS OF THE GUARDIAN

Furnished by W. S.. Louson

A LITERARY NOVELTY.

This literary novelty, particularly appropriate, was published in Wheeler's Magazine, London, in 1828:—

An Austrian army, awfully array'd,
Boldly by battery besiege Belgrade;
Cossack commanders cannonading come,
Deal devastations dire destructive doom;
Ev'ry endeavor engineers essay,
For fame, for freedom, fight, fierce furious fray.
Gen'rals, 'gainst Gen'rals grapple, gracious [illegible]
How ho[illegible] heroic hardihood!
Infuriate, [illegible] in ill,
Just Jesus, instant innocence instill!
Kinsmen kill kinsmen, kindred kindred kill.
Labor low levels longest, loftiest lines;
Men march 'midst mounds, motes, mountains, murd'rous mines,
Now noisy, anxious numbers notice nought,
Of outward obstacles o'ercoming ought;
Four patriots perish, persecution's pest!
Quite quiet Quakers "quarter, quarter'" quest;
Reason returns, religion, right, redounds,
Suwarrow stop such sanguinary sounds!
Truce to thee, Turkey, terror to thy train.
Unwise, unjust, unmerciful Ukraine!
Vanish vile vengeance, vanish victory vain!
Why wish we warfare? Wherefore welcome won
Xerxes, Xantippus, Xavier, Xenephone?
Yield, ye young Yaghier yeomen, yield your yell!
Zimmerman"s Zoroaster's, Zeno's zeal
Again attract; arts against arms appeal.

"NEVER A LINE, WOMAN, UNTIL I REACH BERLIN.

A good story is being told in regard to the departure of troops from a Nova Scotia town for Valcartier. Among the volunteers going to the front was a burly cabman, popular in the town and a general good fellow. During the course of the day's' farewell he had gathered a rather generous jag. At the depot was an immense throng, among them the ex-cabbie's wife. She naturally felt badly at her husband"s departure. Sobbing, she threw her arms around his neck, "John, when you reach there you will write me, won't you?"" In a loud voice John replied, "Never a line woman, never a line until I reach Berlin."

THE CENTRAL GUARDIAN

IT PAYS to buy in this province.

INDIAN DEVILS.—Among the arrival son the Northumberland Saturday evening were two gentlemen from Cape Breton, Messrs D. A. McDonald and Allan McAskill, who brought with them three lynxes or Indian Devils. The animals are large, fierce and, withall, handsome. They were captured in Victoria County, Cape Breton, by Mr. Rod McLeod, a well known trapper, who had one of the fights of his life in making the capture.

AN EFFECTIVE ANSWER.—In the course of his sermon last evening in St. James's, Dr. Fullerton, referring to the number of Prince Edward Islanders who had volunteered for the front, said that he had recently been informed by a letter from Valcartier that over three hundred Islanders were at the Great Camp ready to take their place in the firing line. This is a very effective answer to the complaint frequently heard that Prince Edward Island is not as well represented as it ought to be at Valcartier. Of course, the number mentioned above includes Islanders who have volunteered from other provinces.

TEMPERANCE MEETING.—An interesting meeting of the Victoria Division Sons of Temperance was held in Wright's Hall Friday evening. The Rev. Z. L. Fash, President of the Temperance Alliance, and Rev. W. D. Wilson, Field Secretary, were both present and gave an explanation of the withdrawal of their allegations at Summerside. They claimed that as this was wholly a Queen's County transaction the investigation should have been held within the County, and that the expense of taking witnesses to Summerside might involve an outlay of $500 which they contended it would be unfair to ask the Alliance to assume. The subject was discussed generally by Messrs' James Brodie, George H. Foster, L. P. Tanton, Captain McDonald, Andrew McNair and others. It was announced that a campaign of education along temperance lines would be carried on throughout the province. The attendance was fairly large and marked the opening of the winter campaign of the Sons of Temperance in this city.

CREATING A WHITEWAY.—It has been constantly felt that two of the city's main thoroughfares and best Streets. Kent and George, have been very sadly neglected as regards lighting. Now, however, thanks to the enterprise of some public-spirited citizen, one at least of these streets will for the future command more of the attention it deserves than has hitherto been its lot. Kent St. or a portion of it—the block sandwiched by Great George and Queen Streets—has been provided with five of the splendid incandescent electric lamps whish render Sunnyside and Victoria Row so attractive a resort at nights, and if other residents in the streets should follow the example, Kent Street would soon become rival of the streets around Queen Spuare. These five lamps have ben erected on the north side of the block above defined, extending from the Singer Machne Co's. to the residence of Mr. J. O. Arsenault, and the cost of their installation and maintenance is being borne equally among the Singer Co., the Revere Fox Exchange, the Revere Hotel, A. Horne & Co., Miller Bros., and Mr. J. O. Arsenault. Especially is his noteworthy at this period, when the city will be crowded with visitors to the Exhibition. It is understood that Massey Harris &Co, whose premises are on the opposite side of the street, propose following suit also some residents in Great George Street, between Kent and Grafton intend having similar lamps installed in front of their premises—in which case, with the existing lights in Sunnyside and Queen Street, this particular square may soon be converted into a great whiteway and not only add to the city's attractions but enhance its value with visitors. The five lamps that have been installed in Kent Street were lighted for the first time on Saturday night and had at once a great effect, attracting much attention. Messrs Bruce Stewart & Co., made the handsome iron ornamental standards upon which the lamps are erected.

SERVICE FOR THE DEAD.—Next Sunday the Catholic anniversary Service for the dead will be held in the Catholic Cemetery in the afternoon, at three o'clock. In making the announcement at mass yesterday, Rev. Father McLellan appealed to all those who had plots in the cemetery to have them cleaned up and otherwise attended to during the present week in order that they be in condition befitting the occasion. Not only should they do this for this occasion specially, said Father McLellan, but the graves should always be kept in as good a condition as possible, and should never lack attention; it was a duty they owed to the dead and one of which they were too often neglectful.

BERLIN CLAIMS LOUVAIN NOT MUCH DAMAGED.

BERLIN, Sept. 20.—(via London)—The Nord Allgemeine Zeltung publishes official dispatches from the German administration of Louvain, stating that though from a fifth to a sixth part of the city is in ruins most of the public buildings have been preserved, including the beautiful city hall, regarding which there has been so much discussion.

The despatches say the damage to St. Peter's Cathedral was such that the building can be restored easily, and the art works were protected by German soldiers. The German officers did everything possible to check the fire. Many of the residents are returning, and some of the shops have been re-opened. Trains are being operated on the railway line between Louvain and Brussels. The courts of justice have resumed their sittings at Louvain.

KILLED THE DUKE, BUT HE IS ALIVE

Absolutely Filled Him With Imaginary Bullets in Valcartier Sham Fights.

VALCARTIER CAMP, Que., September 18.—Enthusiastic riflemen acting as part of the "Red" force in today's brigade exercises mistook the Duke of Connaught and his mounted aides for "Blue" cavalry, and ambuscaded them, peppering away until a color sergeant discovered the mistake and the supports ceased firing. These men, part of the 90th Regiment, had been placed on the road as support for an outpost. The approach of cavalry was reported and the party promptly took advantage of the cover afforded by a ditch along the road side. The advancing party cantered along unconscious of the present of the "hostile" force. As the first of the mounted party reached the top of the hill there was an immediate volley of musketry and had the conditions been real the supposed "cavalry" would have had a merry time of it.

THE MISTAKE EXPLAINED.

The mistake being discovered and the Governor-General gone on his way, there was some stiff "ragging." The outpost explained their part in the proceedings by declaring that it was impossible to distinguish the identity of the mounted party owing to the dust kicked up by the horses on the dry, sandy road. Of course blanks were being used, so that there was no actual danger.

IF ALLIES WIN AT AISNE FRANCE IS CLEARED.

LONDON, September 19.—The correspondent of The London Times and The Halifax Herald and The Evening Mail at Bordeaux, writes:—

The success of the allies, in the battle now raging, would probably mean the clearance of the Germans from French soil. Already in the north and Lorraine and the Vosges, the invader has disappeared. The Germans on the Aisne are fighting desperately to keep their footing in France.

The defeat of the Marne has not caught the enemy unprepared and the formidable nature of the defense works thrown up in anticipation of a possible retreat all along the present front, particularly north of Chalons, enable them to make a firm stand. The enemy's trenches north of Chalons are a yard deep with shell shields every twenty yards and rest chambers. The multiple lines of trenches are flanked with further defense woeks concealing mitrailleuses. The trenches are covered with doors, torn from houses and covered with earth. The enemy have certainly received considerable reinforcements of men and it is known that heavy guns have been mounted.

* * *

All the enemy's forces scattered along the flanks have been concentrated to support the main army which is now confronted with two alternatives, to gain the victory, or to make a final retreat.

The Germans have their backs to the wall, and on the third day the battle issue is still uncertain and the position of the opposing armies unchanged.

News is to hand from Nancy that the inhabitants of the Lorraine capital were ready to sacrifice their city, which is practically without fortified defenses, and it has always been imagined that it would be one of the first towns to fall into the hands of the enemy. The adoption of an advance through Belgium, together with a victorious defense around Nancy, has saved the city from capture.

* * *

It has, however, suffered considerably from the bombardment in the early days of the war, when the enemy succeeded in getting guns in position.

The first shell fell in Nancy shortly before midnight in the midst of a thunderstorm. Most people were asleep, and at first simply took the report to be due to lightning. A second shell followed quickly and immediately beds were hurriedly forsaken and sleepy children and frightened women were removed from the upper stories to the cellar. From time to time a burst of shells, followed by a crash of masonry. At midnight the welcome sounds of the French artillery replying to the German bombardment were heard, and at a quarter to one the bombardment ceased, almost at the same moment as the thunder storm. From every house people rushed into the streets, in order to ascertain the extent of the damage. The glare of fires were seen in various parts of the town, but firemen prevented any serious conflagration.

Most of the German fire had been concentrated on a small section of the town and the damage done was disproportionately small, taking into account the number of shells rained upon the city.

LEMBERG PANIC STRICKEN WHEN RUSSIANS CAME.

LONDON, September 18.—An account of the capture of Lemberg as given by an English engineer who had just arrived in Petrograd from Lemberg, is contained in a despatch to the Central News from its Petrograd correspondent:

"Panic broke out in the city on the approach of the Russian army," the engineer is quoted as saying. The entire Austrian administration fled precipitately. No defence of the town was attempted. The Russians gave the demoralized Austrian military authorities three days in which to evacuate the city.

"On the third day as the appointed time approached, Russian scout aeroplanes appeared over the city, watching for the departure of the Austrians.

When the Austrians failed to leave the Russians made a show of opening a bombardment. Although no shells actually fell in Lemberg, the cannonading terrified the citizens, of whom 35,000 bolted into the surrounding country.

"The large Jewish community was particularly alarmed, owing to the stories which had been printed in Austrian newspapers. Bankers emptied their vaults and made their escape with the money. Nobody was allowed to leave for Vienna by train unless they deposited 5,000 kronen at the railway station to show their ability to meet the enormous increased expense of living in the capital. A deposit of 1,000 kronen was required for a trip to Budapest.

"Among the pitiful sights in Lemberg were numerous Austrian soldiers begging in the streets for bread. Many of them were seriously wounded. Other Austrian soldiers were seen carrying their uniforms under their arms in bundles, which they declared they were about to burn.

"The utter disorganization of the Austrian military administration is very evident. The army proved itself an unwilling mass of men, of which large numbers were delighted to throw down their arms to the Russians.

"The Russian army entered Lemberg in splendid condition, and attended by an enormous provision train.

"Exemplary order was immediately established under Russian control."

SIR EDWARD CARSON, UNIONIST LEADER MARRIED.

LONDON, September 18.—Sir Edward Carson, leader of the Unionists in Ulster, was married at Wincanton, Somerset, yesterday to Miss Ruby Frewen, niece of Marton Frewen, member of Parliament for Northeast Cork. The Marquis of Londonderry acted as best man. The guests included the Countess of Ilchester, and Andrew Bonar Law, leader of the opposition in the House of Commons.

GOOD SUPPLY OF TEA FOR THE FIGHTING MEN.

PARIS, Sept. 19.—Telegraphing from Petrograd, a correspondent of the Havas agency says that Japanese tea merchants of the Russian capital have presented the Russian army with 100,000 pounds of tea. Two hundred thousand pounds are given to the English and French armies and 20,000 pounds to the Belgian army.
