—WAS RECOMMENDED FOR COMMISSION—Recently received the Rev. Sister Mary Leonard, St. Vincent's Orphanage, was an illustrated article from the Sunday Post, Edinburgh, describing the exploits of No. 602 (City of Glasgow) Squadron, R. A. F. to which her brother, the late Sgt. Pilot Leonard J. Burke, Tighish, was attached. Leonard's picture appears among the fighter pilots of the squadron, which from the early days of the battle of Britain, has achieved an enviable record, with a score of more than 95 enemy planes. In a letter to his family dated Dec. 18 last, Leonard stated he had been recommended by his commanding officer for a Commission, and was engaged in filling out the necessary papers. He anticipated getting his Commission within a couple of months. The letter, which is characteristically modest with regard to his own activities, was written thirteen days before he was killed.

—I.O.D.E. MEETING—The December meeting of the Abegweit club was postponed to Jan. 10, which had been postponed from Jan. 10 to Friday afternoon in St. Mary's Hall. Miss Hunt the Regent presided. The different convenors submitted their reports and it was decided to continue the milk fund and to meet on Monday. Miss Wyatt gave an excellent report of the work done for the soldiers. There was a great need for more sweaters and there was a call for members to make them. Miss Hunt announced that the I. O. D. E. had been asked to stimulate the buying of War Savings certificates and the order had been sent special folders for War Savings certificates with the Badge of the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire on them. Mrs. Eric MacKay was appointed Convenor of this Department and it was decided that these folders may get in touch with her. Miss Hunt urged on the members the necessity of being prepared for the "blackout" and asked all members to cooperate fully with the blackout wardens in their work. The meetings closed with the National Anthem.—S.

Entries were closed Friday night and the classification of pelts began Saturday morning in the grading room of the Canadian National Silver Fox Breeders Association headquarters. The entries included all color phases of standard silver fox, lighter color phases of marked silvers and a few specimens of platinum silver types. The novelty class included silver pearl blues, white marked crosses, crosses and the classification of pelts.

Judging will commence on Monday after the arrival of the judge, Mr. George Myers, Representative of Lampton, Fraser and Hill, New York city, who will arrive by plane at noon. The judging will be done in the head grading room of the C.N.S.F.B.A. and will not be open to the public. Judging will continue on Tuesday. Everyone should endeavour to see the pelt show, which has every indication of being the best yet.—S

Soviets Drive Nazis From New Positions

(By Henry Cassidy, Associated Press Staff Writer)

MOSCOW, Jan. 4.—(AP)—The town of Borovsk, an important position for the security of German-held Moshansk, was captured today by the Red army in a new onslaught against the Nazi forces before Moscow.

The Soviet information bureau's night communiqué announced the recapture of Borovsk, 50 miles southwest of the Soviet capital and 25 miles southeast of Moshansk, the main Moscow-Smolensk highway, and said the Germans had failed to consolidate themselves in new positions and had suffered heavily in losses of men and arms.

Both day and night war bulletins told of new positions retaken by the counter-driving Russian armies and of progress on all fronts. Except for Borovsk, however, there was no mention of specific places of German retreat.

The account of Germany's steadily receding front in Russia, showed that more than 2,000 of its troops had been driven back beyond an intended winter line at one point on the southern end of the front was contained in a report in Pravda, the Communist party newspaper.

Soviet troops and tanks, it said, fell upon an "intermediate line" the Germans had prepared and fortified in that area, destroying it and holding off the counter-thrusts.

Telling of the successive entry into several towns identified only by cryptic initials, the dispatch cited one village defended for days. It said the Germans had to be driven back at bayonet point, house by house, but ultimately were forced out after they had lost 400 officers and men.

Another 200 Germans were killed at the Moscow radio said, by one Red army unit which recaptured several towns on the front south of Moscow.

In all, said the Soviet information bureau in a review of the week from Dec. 25 to Dec. 31, the Red army wiped out more than 10,000 Nazis southwest of Moscow and 2,000 more in the Polesia sector.

It said the Red army destroyed 745 supply trucks, 552 supply carts, 21 pieces of artillery on the Moscow front and captured:—

Twenty-two tanks, 122 guns, 80 mine-throwers, 128 machine guns, 1,000 automatic rifles, 1,000 rifles, 210 trucks, 45 motorcycles, three wireless stations, 180 supply-laden carts, 7,000 mines, 13,536 shells and 200,000 rifle cartridges.

In the Crimea, it added, more than 1,000 motorcycles, 250 trucks, 115 passenger cars, 33 buses, 265 horses and large quantities of other war material also were seized.

Not only will the Russians come back in the air with faster and mightier planes and with bombers able to carry heavier bomb loads than in 1942, but they also will hold the upper hand during the winter months because of advance preparations.

Winter Hampers Germans

Because the Germans were sure of victory before the winter, he wrote in the paper, they made inadequate preparations and their air operations consequently have dwindled sharply.

"German planes are still on wheels while ours already are mounted on skis," he wrote. "Planes on wheels require well-prepared airbases constantly swept of snow, which is difficult in our conditions."

"Russia's winter requires stationary airbases with special installations for heating oil and water. Such airbases cannot be set up everywhere while German flying personnel has little experience in performing all this in the field."

"The Germans will also be confronted with difficulties in using aircraft guns and machine-guns and bomb releases since the heavy cold freezes lubricants."

Gen. Scherbakov declared the Red air force had proved itself, contending it had forced the Germans to move in small units rather than in long columns, as the careful Nazi plans for air assaults on Moscow.

EDEN PREDICTS

stance, was not that he was a Nazi at home. The trouble with him was that he would not stay at home."

Mr. Eden bitterly added that "no free nation will be secure so long as he lives and the German military power is unbroken in Europe."

Then he cited the unity of Britain and the U. S. S. R., and expressed the conviction that the allies would gain "a lasting peace for all peoples."

He dwelt on the calibre of Russia's stand against the Nazi invasion, relating how flying conditions were so hard on his warty arrival in Russia that he went by train to Moscow.

"One stretch of our journey," he said, "we over a section of railway which Goebbels has told you has been cut."

"I can tell you from practical experience that Goebbels is wrong. The railway is intact, undamaged and working smoothly and well."

Vividly describing his trip to the front near Moscow, Mr. Eden pronounced the spirit of the Russian troops as "magnificent," their morale "higher than ever" and declared they were hammering without respite at the retreating Germans.

"We drove along the Moscow-Leningrad road to Klin and some miles beyond," he related, "I saw there were plenty of signs of the fighting by the roadside—shell-torn trees, derelict guns, shattered homes...."

"It has always liked a war of movement. He is getting it now."

Mr. Eden said he had no doubt that the harmony achieved between the allies on all war matters alone would have more than justified his trip but that "personally I attach as much importance to the discussions which we had upon the organization of peace and security after the war."

The Foreign Secretary pointed out that neither he nor Stalin could take any "final" decisions during the meeting and added:—

"Intimate consultations with the governments of the Dominions, with the United States and with other allies will be necessary in the months that lie ahead."

Of the situation ahead Mr. Eden referred to the German-Russian front and said: "The Russians know very well how formidable is the German military machine but they believe they have now the measure of their foe."

Mr. Eden said the Red army is "determined that he (the enemy) shall pay to the uttermost for destruction of towns, villages, farms and factories of the Soviet Union."

Hitler's attack on Russia more than six months ago, he said, "was political lunacy" because it united all of Russia and made the war a "crusade to rid the Soviet of the last German."

After relating the difficulties of Russian defence, he declared that the tide now has turned, the Germans are discovering the severity of the Russian winter and whatever lies Hitler may tell, his armies were not prepared for that.

Mr. Eden described his trip to the Russian front, drawing a graphic picture of the Soviet's scorched earth. Most of the burned-out homes were wooden, he said, so that brick chimneys, pointing to the sky were all that remained and the effect was "even more awful than total destruction would be."

The Foreign Secretary said he talked to some German prisoners who were "not much more than boys, ill-clad and suffering bitterly from the cold."

"They were not a bit like soldiers of a victorious army," he told his radio audience, "with the exception of Hitler's own elite troops, German soldiers generally were issued inferior and inadequate clothes for winter wear."

He indicated that Russia, despite severe losses, has been able to maintain a high output of war materials and declared that the figures are "now climbing again, to an extent which astounded me."

Mr. Eden declared that the British-Russian talks "went further than any political or military discussions that have taken place between our two countries since the last war."

He said they fell into two parts. "In the first," he explained, "we dealt with the conduct of the war. You don't expect me to tell you a great deal about it. Events will speak for themselves. I hope... I found a note of confidence and resolution—not a confidence based on a light-hearted underestimate of the enemy."

The output of British and American factories is being put at its splendid pace on Russian battlefields.
