REV. ROBERT WHISTON will preach at Hearz Hall tomorrow. Special music.

A male quartette will render two selections tomorrow night at the Central Christian church.

YESTERDAY'S Moncton Times says: The many friends of M. Oliver Jones will regret to learn that his condition this morning is unimproved. In fact, Mr. Jones is noticeably weaker and is conscious only at brief intervals.

The laying of what is the corner stone rather than the foundation stone of the new University residence took place this afternoon at 3 o'clock. First came the reading of a psalm by Dr. Stewart; then was sung the hymn "Before Jehovah's awful throne," followed by prayer by Prof. Andrews. President Allison next addressed the gathering introducing at the close Rev. Dr. Lathern, chairman of the Board of Regents, who proceeded to lay the stone in the orthodox style, pronouncing it to be "well and truly laid in the name of the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost." A few more remarks by Dr. Allison, terminated the proceedings. The corner stone in question is in the northeast corner of the front projection, in a line with the top of the front door, and has on it the figures 1899. In it is embedded a tin box with papers, calendars, etc., etc. In the corresponding stone in the southwest corner, with the figures 1893, the date of the commencement of the old residence, is the box which was taken from its corner stone after the fire.—St John Globe

DESPITE THE ORDERS

He Will Thank British Embassy, Regretting that it Was of No Avail.

MONTREAL, Nov. 3.—Sir Louis Davies, who arrived here to-day from London, where he has been attending to the Alaska boundary matter, had an unpleasant experience with the customs service in New York on Sunday morning.

Before leaving London Sir Louis received word from the British embassy that the Washington authorities had instructed the collector of customs in New York to show him every courtesy with regard to his baggage. Sir Louis being on a diplomatic mission, took this to mean that his baggage would be passed without delay or examination.

He was met in New York harbor by an official who confirmed the message he had received from the British embassy, but when he reached the wharf he was met by another official, who said he would examine the baggage.

"Well, any one can have his baggage examined," said Sir Louis, "but what is the meaning of the courtesy which is to be extended to me if my baggage is not allowed to pass without examination?"

The official did not know, but "guessed" an examination would have to be made. Sir Louis explained that he was on a diplomatic mission that he had already made a statement that he carried nothing dutiable; that he had a large number of state documents in his baggage, and that he decidedly objected to exposing them.

The customs official was obdurate, and said if Sir Louis did not consent to an examination the baggage must go through bond. Sir Louis firmly refused to open anything except a small hand bag, and he arrived here with only what he was wearing at the time.

Sir Louis will write, thanking the British embassy for its kindness, and regretting that it was of no avail.

IS SHE YET ALIVE?

Miss Martin, Who Died Suddenly on Sunday Night has not been Buried Awaiting More Decided Evidence of Death.

OWING to certain symptoms supposed to indicate life, the body of Miss Martin, whose sudden death at Alberton last Sunday night was recorded in the GUARDIAN last Monday, has not yet been buried. It is the intention at present, to await more decided evidence of death, possibly a few days, before burial takes place. The case is exciting intense interest in Alberton and vicinity.
