For Chronic Coughs

When any affection of the throat, bronchials or lungs has passed the acute stage and still clings stubbornly, what is needed is a constitutional remedy like my Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites.

This remedy has a specific action on the cells and tissues of the air passages. It cures the serious lung troubles that nothing else will cure. Equally good for all wasting diseases or for lowered vitality from any cause. Especially recommended for children. It usually helps from the start.

A SPIRIT OF FAIRNESS.

We referred on Saturday to the spirit of fairness which the Boston Herald had shown in recommending a renewal of the suggestion made five years ago on behalf of the United States to give Canada for a hundred years a port on the Lynn Canal for convenience of access to the Yukon Territory. It is one of many instances in which this leading Massachusetts journal has evinced a spirit of fairness and liberality in the discussion of questions concerning the Canadian Dominion, and which we cheerfully place to the Herald's credit. In a subsequent issue The Herald has returned to the subject, pointing out that the treaty of 1825 between Great Britain and Russia is an agreement such as would not in these days be entered into between two self-respecting nations. The duty of the Boundary Commission was not to pronounce upon the righteousness or fitness of that treaty, but merely to interpret its meaning.

No self-respecting nation would now consent, as Britain did in 1826 to shut out a vast hinterland from all access to the sea along hundreds of miles of coast. It is not conducive to the successful development of a vast area of country containing untold natural resources that it should be thus shut out from the sea by the intervention of a narrow strip of land, which must be of little value to its possessors, because it is not a homogeneous part of the great country which lies in the rear of it. It is clear that the treaty of 1825 was most unwisely drawn, as The Herald points out, and the fact that such a treaty was then made can only be explained on the ground that the contracting parties held that the territory involved could never be of any use except for the purposes of the fur trade. There was still time to have righted the wrong by Britain purchasing Alaska after the Crimean war, or at any time down to 1867. This aspect of the case The Herald discusses:

"The mistake that England made forty years ago or more was in not acquiring from Russia this entire 'panhandle' strip of Alaska, for, even though Sitka, the capital of the Russian colony and the headquarters of the Russian Fur Company, was located on one of the islands of this strip of territory, it would not have been difficult, for a monetary consideration, or possibly as a part of the settlement at the close of the Crimean war, to have arranged for this transfer, which would have given to British America a broad frontage on the Pacific ocean. That some such arrangement was not entered into was due to the trifling importance that at that time attached to the subject."

The Herald proceeds: "Now that the award has been given in our favor, we are quite prepared to assert that, looking a generation or two ahead, it would be to our advantage if we could make an arrangement to amicably surrender to Canada the entire strip of Alaskan territory from Mt. St. Elias southward. There is little in the possession that is of intrinsic advantage to our people, except the objectionable one of forcing a friendly people to pay tribute for passing over our land. The gold mines in this area are not numerous, and even if they were, it is the quantity of gold that is mined in the world rather than the place in which it is mined that is of financial advantage.

"We occupy, by means of the rights accorded in this Russian treaty, the position of a man who owns a narrow strip of land between the street and the dwelling of a neighbor. In order to reach the street from his house, or reach his house from the street, his neighbor is compelled to pass over his land, and for this convenience its owner can exact, perhaps not 'blackmail', but something approximating thereto. All the value that the strip of land has, as it is too small to cultivate or build upon, is as a means of collecting forced toll, and hence it would be of advantage to the community if by some friendly arrangement the man who could rightly use the land could acquire possession of it. The case we have cited is analogous to that concerning southeastern Alaska, and yet national feeling is such that the more worthless the area is for honest and legitimate purposes the more tenaciously it will probably be clung to, and those who have, as we have, the temerity to suggest that it had better go to those who can make the best use of it will be considered as entirely wanting in a true appreciation of national interests."

An amicable arrangement for the surrender of the strip of territory from Mt. St. Elias southward as proposed by The Herald would do more to create and maintain good feeling and friendliness between the Dominion and the United than could probably be brought about in any other way. Canada would doubtless be willing to pay a fair price for the strip of territory which is now an impediment to her development. At least it is gratifying to find an American journal broadminded enough to propose so friendly and reasonable a method for rectifying our boundary.

JUMPING UP

Is a great deal harder than jumping down. And yet people who have been for years running down in health expect to jump back at once. It takes years generally to make a man a confirmed dyspeptic, and he cannot expect to be cured in a few days.

There is no quicker means of cure for dyspepsia or other forms of stomach trouble than by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition and builds up the body with sound flesh and solid muscle.

"I was taken sick two years ago," writes Rev. W. H. Patterson, of White Cloud, Ala., "with what the doctors thought was gastric trouble, indigestion or nervous dyspepsia, also constipation and inactive liver. I was in a dreadful condition. Tried several different doctors with but little result. I had gotten so feeble that I was almost past traveling about; had got down to 112 pounds. I went and bought six bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and got it delivered, and began following directions. When I had taken about five bottles I felt very much better and was greatly improved, and weighed one hundred and thirty-eight pounds, and I will say that Dr. Pierce's medicines are a God-send to poor suffering humanity, and I advise any and all chronic sufferers to give them a fair trial and I believe they will be satisfied."

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing "just as good" for diseases of the stomach. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure biliousness and sick headache.
