"I have endeavored to bring to your attention a few of the items of the auditor's report. Might I suggest that the chairman of all committees of the Council study the auditor's report with great care. This will enable them, when we meet to bring down the estimates of expenditures for the forthcoming year, more readily to bring down such estimates for the year 1946 in their respective departments as will present a complete picture showing a surplus of Revenue over Expenditure."

MORE THAN A "PET PROJECT"

Training at HOLMAN'S is more than a pet project of the personnel office. It's an integral part of the service that makes our store the favorite shopping place of so many customers. We want our salespeople to serve you better — to know the merchandise they show. Above all, we want them to be a part of our store — to know why we do things as we do.

That's a policy that we feel has paid; not merely because it has attracted an unusually large number of customers, but because it has led to greater confidence in our store. And we want you to enjoy that confidence.

War-time limitations sometimes make it necessary to condense this training, in order to provide an adequate staff. But whenever it is possible, the salesperson who serves you here is an expert in his or her field. They're people we are proud to have associated with us — people, we are sure, you like to have serve you.

War-time limitations sometimes make it necessary to condense this training, in order to provide an adequate staff. But whenever it is possible, the salesperson who serves you here is an expert in his or her field. They're people we are proud to have associated with us — people, we are sure, you like to have serve you.
